JARECKI HOLDS 1928-1929 TAX LEVIES INVALID

Finds Real Estate Burden Is Unfair.

What Ruling Means

County Tax Attorney Hayden Bell says:

(1) The State Supreme court must reverse Judge Jarecki's decision, or

(2) The state legislature must enact new laws requiring a reassessment for 1928, 1929, and 1930 in which it will give credit to property owners who have paid their 1928 and 1929 taxes.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The 1928 and the 1929 tax levies for Cook county, aggregating $480,344,000, were declared void yesterday by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki. The 1930 levy, now being extended for probably $286,000,000, was made by the same method and upon the same tax base as the 1928 and 1929 levies. By inference it, too, in the opinion of tax lawyers, would be declared illegal by Judge Jarecki if its validity were questioned in his court.

The judge held that the 1928 and the 1929 tax assessments are fraudulent. His ruling said that the rolls violated the state constitution, which provides that all property, both personal and real estate, shall be equally and uniformly assessed. He said that it had been shown that 16 billion dollars' worth of personal property is available for assessment in the county.

Points to Levy Totals.

The judge found that the real estate assessed totals more than nine billion dollars. Making allowances for error and the practical difficulties of assessing personal property, Judge Jarecki concluded that there is as much personal property as real estate which should be assessed. In contrast the 1928 and 1929 assessments contained only three-quarters of a billion dollars of personal property. Therefore, in the opinion of the court, those assessments are null and void.

The great majority of general taxpayers will get no relief on their 1928 and 1929 taxes by this decision. Technically the suit decided was an objection by Mrs. Lillian Cisar, an Oak Park widow, to her assessment. She had the backing of the Oak Park real estate board and the court held the assessments void as affecting her property alone.

Cannot Obtain Rebates.

"Other property owners, in like circumstances, who have filed like objections, may reasonably expect the same decision," explained Morris Schaffer, who with Roy D. Keehn acted as counsel for the Oak Park real estate board.

But of the $480,344,000 of taxes levied for the two years $360,073,000 has been paid. Legally, according to the county tax attorneys, these payments were voluntary, and those property owners cannot obtain a rebate.

Of the $120,270,000 of taxes for 1928 and 1929, which have not been paid, only $71,552,000 have filed objections or other court proceedings. A large part of that group is in a position to take advantage of the decision, if it were considered final.

Appeal to Supreme Court.

But as soon as County Judge Jarecki entered the order supporting his opinion yesterday afternoon, County Tax Attorney Hayden Bell and Special Assistant City Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch announced an appeal to the Illinois Supreme court. They expect to get the case heard and decided during the February term of that court. They believe the state Supreme court will disagree with Judge Jarecki.

"Having the utmost faith in the integrity of Judge Jarecki," said Mr. Busch, "I know he decided the case under the law and evidence as he interpreted them: but he is as wrong as a man can be in this opinion. I have every confidence that he will be reversed."

"I, too, think that Judge Jarecki made a decisive mistake," added Attorney Bell.

Results of Decision.

The important immediate effect of the decision, according to the view of lawyers who crowded the courtroom, will be that the property owners will hesitate to pay their 1930 taxes, although Attorney Bell hoped that the decision would influence the patriotic citizens to support their government in the hour of greatest need.

"In a word, what must be the out-

REVELRY GRIPS CITY; WELCOME TO A NEW YEAR

Jam Hotels, Cafes; Forget Dry Law.

In happy-go-lucky revelry, Chicago at midnight last night ushered in New Year 1932 and waved a regretless farewell to disconsolate 1931.

The greetings of the new year and farewell to the old were to the accompaniment of an old fashioned, noisy, hilarious carrying on. Liquor was in abundance, as were snooping dry agents, and the merriment went on everywhere in genial, whoopee spirit. Every café, cabaret and restaurant in the loop and near loop district was crowded. Hotels were thronged. Theaters were filled nearly to capacity. And the festivities were not limited to public places. In countless thousands of homes, New Year's eve celebrants welcomed the new year at private parties.

Rain Fails to Interfere.

An intermittent drizzle failed to dampen the spirit of the celebrants, thousands of whom filled the Rialto, marched up and down State street, and raised a screeching din with horns, cowbells and other instruments of noise.

Promptly at midnight came the climax to the festivities. As the hour and minute hands reached upward as though one, the city burst into a thunderous roar. Locomotive and factory whistles shrilled, automobile horns and sirens added their raucous voices. Street car motormen clanged furiously on pedal bells. In public gathering places orchestras burst into snappy, cheerful numbers, and revelers lost their adult dignity for the moment to shout good-byes to 1931 and wish 1932 well.

Volstead Act Ignored.

As in former years, Chicagoans temporarily forgot there was such a thing as a Volstead act and a prohibition law. Seemingly officials whose duty it is to carry reminders of the existence of those acts also temporarily forgot them. In the words of one observer, "the night was plenty wet, and I don't mean rain." Here and there, it was reported, there were a few arrests, and those only for defiant violations.

One of those arrested for overzealous celebration was David Edwards, 22 years old, 526 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park. He flaunted a bottle of whisky in the Lakeford restaurant at 300 North Crawford avenue. Told to desist by Policeman John Jacobs, Edwards, it is charged, persisted, and fled out of the restaurant. He was seized outside after Jacobs fired several warning shots. "Just celebrating," said Edwards.

Dry agents arrested John Shogren and George Clark, owners of the restaurant at 2530 Milwaukee avenue, when they found a barrel of beer and some wine and whisky in the place.

20,000 at Loop Parties.

Early this morning the public and private parties were still going on, many of them under the eyes of prohibition agents. It was estimated that 20,000 celebrants were at cafés, hotel restaurants, and other places in the downtown area. At an average estimate of $20 each, it was figured that Chicago paid something like $400,000 to get rid of 1931.

As couples journeyed to the various fun centers the dry agents, under the general charge of A. E. Hamilton, assistant to the prohibition administrator, and under the direct charge of A. E. Aman, chief enforcement officer, the man who raided Tex Guinan's Planet Mars early yesterday, started out on their assignment. Some of the deputies were recruited from other cities so they would not be recognized.

Dry Agents on Job.

The deputies went to the various clubs and mingled with the guests, but for the most part they were at a disadvantage because they were compelled to operate alone. By a recent administrative order they were not permitted to have woman companions as blinds. At midnight the headquarters of the dry agents was as quiet as a morgue.

At midnight the loop was crowded with pedestrians waving horns and blowing them, and waving cowbells and ringing them.

Virtually all downtown hotels were packed with celebrants. Hotels and restaurants in outlying sections were likewise thronged.

At the south end of the loop major

ROSENWALD IS RESTING WELL, PHYSICIAN SAYS

Julius Rosenwald was still gravely ill in his home at Ravinia last night, but was resting comfortably. All members of his family were at the residence, but none except his wife was permitted at his bedside for fear of unduly alarming him.

Dr. Herbert Pollack of New York, attending physician, issued a night bulletin saying that Mr. Rosenwald had shown no change in his condition and that his illness, a combination of a kidney ailment and hardening of the arteries, was still serious. Mr. Rosenwald was able to partake of light nourishment in the morning, at noon, and in the evening, Dr. Pollack said.

Members of Mr. Rosenwald's family at the home besides his wife are his five children, Lessing and William of Philadelphia, Mrs. Adele R. Levy of New York, Mrs. Edith R. Stern of New Orleans, and Mrs. Alfred K. Stern of Ravinia. William Rosenwald, Mrs. Levy, and Mrs. Edith Stern arrived yesterday. During the day scores of messages from all sections of the country were received at the Rosenwald home, but were unopened.

Mr. Rosenwald is 69 years old. He became ill last April. He is chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co.

C. V. Barrett, G.O.P. Leader, Dies Suddenly

Charles V. Barrett, Republican of prominence, for the last 13 years a member of the Cook county board of review, died suddenly in St. Joseph's hospital at 6:10 o'clock last night. He was 49 years old.

A heart attack was the immediate cause of death. It developed as a complication from an earlier attack of appendicitis, according to Dr. Thomas J. O'Donoghue, who with Dr. William Burmeister was in attendance.

Mr. Barrett entered the hospital on Sunday and was operated upon. His heart weakened yesterday. His wife, Helen, their six children, and his brother, Attorney George F. Barrett, a former judge, were at his bedside when he died. The children are Helen V., Marian, Gertrude, Ruth, Charles Jr., and Edward. Mr. Barrett was conscious until the end.

G. O. P. Leader for 20 Years.

For twenty years and more Mr. Barrett was an active west side Republican leader, and in the last ten or twelve years was one of the prominent figures in Cook county Republican politics. He was three times sent by his party to its national conventions as delegate. Last winter at the solicitation of 9,800 business and professional men he became a candidate for mayor, but later withdrew to throw his support to the primary campaign for Judge John H. Lyle.

Mr. Barrett was a native Chicagoan. He grew up in the atmosphere of politics, taking to it, as he often said, "almost by instinct." He was born on the west side in 1882. His father was for 33 years a member of the Chicago fire department.

Young Barrett entered Joseph Medill High school and worked his way through with a job as a teamster for a hay, grain and coal yard. He was graduated from high school in 1900. He paid his way through the University of Illinois by serving as a law librarian, and was graduated in law in 1903. He was an honor student and was elected to Theta Kappa Nu, honorary le.. fraternity, now the Order of Coif.

Enters Practice of Law.

He hung out his shingle in Chicago, forming a partnership with his brother, George. Soon he became an assistant state's attorney under State's Attorney John E. Wayman.

Combining politics and law for a career, Mr. Barrett worked up in the political ranks in the old Eleventh ward. In 1912 he was elected ward committeeman. He was regarded as an adherent of Edward J. Brundage, and later for a time he was identified with the Lundin-city hall camp.

In 1918 Mr. Barrett was elected to

Finance, Industry, Markets in 1931

THE TRIBUNE this morning publishes a review of 1931 in finance and commerce. Complete tables of the year's dealings in stocks and bonds on the New York and Chicago exchanges are printed. The review also features expressions by leaders in finance and industry.

FANCIEST BAR IN N. Y. RAIDED AS 1932 DAWNS

New York, Jan. 1, 1 a. m.—[Special.]—New York said good-by last night without regret to the hard luck year 1931 and greeted 1932, begging its favor with bands, horns and gladness.

The city opened its arms to the merrymakers, declaring null and void for the one night the 3 a. m. curfew hour, extending the closing hour to 5 a. m.

But before the new year was ushered in prohibition agents got busy. Federal men raided the Royal Box, the most ornate and elaborately furnished restaurant of its sort established since prohibition has been in force.

The Royal Box, which was opened only a few weeks ago, with lavish furnishings estimated to have cost $250,000, and catering to the most expensive trade, is known popularly throughout the city as "Zelli's place."

Joe Zelli, the urbane and dapper restaurateur who once was a sergeant in the American army in France and became known to thousands of Americans who visited his café in Montmartre, was the host.

Two Incendiary Fires Are Blamed on Burglars

Two fires are believed to have been started by burglars early yesterday. Damage of $3,000 was caused when a fire swept through the Schiller Elementary school at 700 Vedder street. Firemen found twisted newspapers which had been used as torches and teachers' desks had been jimmied open. The second fire, believed to have been started by a discarded cigaret of a band of safecrackers, caused damage of $1,000 in the Goldhammer Brothers bowling establishment at 3951 Armitage avenue.

First Wedding of 1932 One Minute After Midnight

The first wedding in Chicago in 1932 took place at 12:01 o'clock this morning, with Miss Vera Marie Getse of 6624 Normal boulevard and Clyde Robert Davis of 6545 South Union avenue as the bride and groom. The ceremony was performed in the Thoburn Methodist Episcopal church at 64th and Paulina streets by the Rev. J. H. De Lacy, pastor, officiating.

Two Mothers, 6 Children Die; One Man Saved

(Auto deaths in Cook county in 1931 set new record as 1,306 are killed; exceeds 1930 record by 206. Details on page 4.)

Nine persons, bound for their sleeping quarters on a docked ship after attending church services last night, were drowned when the automobile in which they were riding rolled off an embankment into water 7 feet deep in the Wisconsin Steel company slip at 107th street and Muskegon avenue.

One member of the party, Jacob Schiller, 29 years old, of Coopersville, Mich., escaped. The dead:

Mrs. Lena Schiller, 29 years old, wife of Jacob.

Arline Schiller, 5 years old.

Lois Schiller, 3 years old.

Shirley Schiller, 7 weeks old.

John Postema, 38 years old, of New Era, Mich.

Mrs. Reca Postema, 38 years old, wife of John.

Mildred Postema, 11 years old.

Howard Postema, 8 years old.

Clarence Postema, 3 years old.

Schiller is shipkeeper on the lake freighter Harry Jones, which was docked near the spot where the accident occurred. On Wednesday his wife and children, with Postema and the latter's family, came to Chicago to spend a short holiday with him. Postema was Schiller's brother-in-law.

Auto Plunges Into Water.

Last night they attended services in the Reformed Christian church at 103d and State streets. Postema was driving as they turned from Muskegon avenue into a narrow road running alongside the deep slip.

They had just passed the freighter B. Lyman Smith, also laid up in the slip, when the car slipped. Postema attempted to right it, but failed, and it plunged into the water.

Saved By Rope Ladder.

William Adria, shipkeeper of the B. Lyman Smith, ran over with a rope ladder and tossed it down to the car. In some way Schiller forced open a door and came to the surface. Adria and Anas Howell, 9235 Brandon avenue, who was passing, aided in pulling him ashore.

Two fireman heroes thrilled several hundred spectators by submerging themselves in the icy water over a period of 45 minutes to affix tackles to the submerged car. They are Frank Mallo of 12036 South State street and Bernhard Magnuson of 7554 Vernon avenue, both of squad 5. Each went under water ten times. The auto was brought to the surface shortly after midnight.

MEET THE FIRST BABIES TO ARRIVE ON NEW YEAR'S

Two baby girls were born as the whistles and horns ushered in the new year last night. The first, a few seconds after midnight, was born to Mrs. Alida Van Gauberen, 838 East 55th street, in the Lewis Memorial Maternity hospital. Both the mother and the baby, who weighs slightly over six pounds, were reported doing nicely. Almost at the same time, but a second or two later, a seven and a half pound baby girl was born to Mrs. Beatrice Tobias, 1625 Greenleaf avenue, in the Garfield Park hospital.

Two more new year morn babies were Junior Andraschko, 7 pounds, born to Mrs. Thomas Andraschko, 3200 West 65th place, at the Southwest General hospital, 57th and Wood streets, and a girl weighing 7 pounds and 7 ounces, born to Mrs. Walter Patelski, 3941 NorthAlbany avenue, at the Welles Park hospital, 2544 Montrose avenue. Drs. Haldene Clemenson and H. Diesner attended the cases, respectively.

HIGH EXPLOSIVE BOXES COME TO 2 CHICAGOANS

Search for Foes of Fascist Regime.

BULLETIN.

Easton, Pa., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Postal Inspector Harry E. Getchel, in charge of the parcel post bomb investigation here, said tonight that he was informed four packages thought to contain bombs had been sent by express to addresses in Cleveland in addition to the one found there today. Getchel had no information as to the addresses of the four packages or their present whereabouts.

Postal inspectors and the police of six American cities were striving desperately last night to find a gang of bombers who sent a dozen boxes of high explosives by mail and express to men identified with or favorable to the cause of Fascism in Italy.

Two of the bombs, in express packages, directed to Chicagoans, were turned over to the police here. One was carefully exploded in a quarry and experts from the detective bureau asserted that its charge was powerful enough to destroy a building covering half a block.

Five Sent from New York.

These packages had been sent from an express company office in New York, as were three others of the same type addressed to Italian consulates in Cleveland, Detroit, and Youngstown, O. Police Commissioner Mulrooney of New York announced he had evidence to show that the dynamite used in all the bombs seized yesterday had been stolen from a construction company in Manhattan.

Oscar Durante, member of the board of education and editor of L'Italia, daily newspaper published in Italian, and Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul general to Chicago, were the persons for whom the bombs sent to Chicago were intended. Mr. Durante's bomb reached the newspaper's office at 84 West Harrison street, but was refused there, and Sig. Castruccio's was sent to a house several miles from his home and was seized there by the police.

Another Dead in Easton.

The cautious attitude of Mr. Durante toward his package was due to his knowledge of the anti-Fascist plot, which first came to public notice on Wednesday with the explosion of one of the bombs which had been mailed at Easton, Pa., in which city two postoffice clerks were killed outright. Also a dynamite expert died of his injuries yesterday and three postal clerks and a policeman are suffering from injuries received in the blast there.

Mr. Durante's package purported to come from Carlo Italo Falbo, New York editor, who was one of those to whom bombs were mailed in Easton. As soon as they saw the package, the publisher and his brother, Hector Durante, ordered it taken away.

The driver of the express company truck, C. W. Snell, summoned a special agent of the company, Albert Wiedenhoffer, and he carried the box to the detective bureau. There it was turned over to Sergt. Michael Toohey of Frank Johnson's bomb squad.

Equals 180 Dynamite Sticks.

With Assistant Chief of Detectives Walter Storms, Toohey took the bomb to the Bridewell quarry at 26th street and California avenue, where it was set off with a fulminating cap. The experts asserted that it was equivalent in strength to 180 sticks of dynamite and that pure nitroglycerine had been boiled out of an immense number of dynamite sticks by the plotters.

Consul General Castruccio's bomb was addressed to him at 4034 Sheridan road. He resides at the Knickerbocker hotel on the near north side, but the package was received at the Sheridan road house by Miss Helen Tremain. She believed that it might be intended for a man of somewhat similar name living in the house.

This man declined it and the package was in possession of Miss Tremain when the police, notified by the express company of the probable nature of its contents, arrived and took it from her. Like Mr. Durante's, the consul general's package was wrapped in brown paper and was about 10 by 6 by 5 inches in size and purported to come from Falbo.

Keep One Until Today.

The second bomb was taken to the Bridewell quarry, but the police decided not to set it off until this morning.

A third package, which may have contained a bomb, was received through the mail by the Associated Press in the Ashland block, 155 North

Clark street. It bore the name of Tony Massilo, which was not known to the Associated Press management. The postoffice was notified to take it away. Although it was returned to the federal building, postal inspectors said last night it had not been brought to their attention.

The Ashland block houses several Italian organizations and it was theorized that the bomb—if it was a bomb—might have been intended for some one of their officials.

Sig. Castruccio said that all employés of his office had been on the alert for bombs since the blast at Easton. He said he believed the bombers were a group of ignorant anarchists rather than a well organized political group.

"Had they been well organized," he said, "they would never have sent a bomb to me at a place so far from my real home. It may be that associates of Italian miners, who have been at odds in Italy with the government, were the senders. So far as I know, there is no real movement for the overthrow of Fascism anywhere in this country. If such doings were attempted in Italy they would be stamped out at once by the secret service there."

Radio Bomb Scare.

Another bomb scare developed in Chicago yesterday from the settlement of the proposed strike of radio musicians. An anonymous caller informed radio station WMAQ that the homes of William Hedges, 1763 Washington street, Wilmette, representative of the broadcasters, and of James C. Petrillo, 1039 North Austin avenue, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, would be bombed because unemployed musicians were dissatisfied with the agreement.

The Chicago police guarded the Petrillo home and the Wilmette police the Hedges home.

GUARD TWO EMBASSIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Special police guards were placed around the Italian and Argentine embassies tonight, as the aftermath of the explosion of a bomb addressed to Emanuel Grazzi, Italian consul general at New York, in the Easton, Pa., post office yesterday. The special details were posted following a conference today between S. Nobile Giacomo de Martino, the Italian ambassador, and Assistant Secretary of State James G. Rogers.

Meanwhile, the state, justice and postoffice departments joined forces in an effort to run down the series of bombing incidents which recently have occurred in the country pointing to a widespread anti-fascist plot, and to guard against damage from further efforts along this line to foreign property and officials.

The action in regard to the Argentine embassy was taken in view of the fact that one of the unexploded bombs found at Easton was addressed to the Argentine consulate in Baltimore.

Aids Families of Victims.

New York, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Generoso Pope, for whom investigators believe one of the Easton, Pa., bomb packages was intended, sent $1,000 today to each of the families of Edward W. Werkheiser and John B. House, postoffice clerks who were fatally injured when the bombs exploded yesterday. Mr. Pope is owner of an Italian newspaper published here.

DIVORCED WIFE SUES BROKER IN ASSAULT CASE

Mrs. Mary Louise Quinlan McKinlock, 2970 Sheridan road, yesterday filed the praecipe of a $25,000 damage suit in the Circuit court against her former husband, John McKinlock, 28 years old, a broker, a few hours after she had appeared as complainant against him in the Felony court. The suit, according to Mrs. McKinlock's attorney, Randolph Bohrer, is an outgrowth of the injuries she alleges she suffered in a post-Christmas meeting with McKinlock for which she caused his arrest Wednesday on charges of assault to kill.

In the Felony court Mrs. McKinlock told Judge Alfar M. Eberhardt that McKinlock had swung an inadoor bed against her, fracturing one of her toes. She charged also that he had beaten her for two years. When she asked that her former husband's bond of $1,000 be increased the judge refused and continued the case until Jan. 22.

Outside court McKinlock said that he and his former wife had been seeing each other occasionally since their divorce last summer. He lives at 540 Briar place.

CAVE ROOF FALLS ON CARD PLAYERS; THREE ARE KILLED

Waterloo, O., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Three men were killed and two others badly injured tonight when the roof of a cave, scene of a card game, fell on them.

The dead were Amos Woolum, 36; Samuel Cooper, 63, and Paris Cooper, 55. Roy Woolum, 24, and John Woolum, 21, were taken to an Ironton hospital.

The men had gone to the dirt cave, a short distance from town, to play cards. They built a fire in it and in a short time the heat dried the wet earth, causing several tons of rock and dirt to fall.

Woman Carrying a Valise Gives Pope a Bomb Scare

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 31.—(AP)—A young woman with a French accent and a small valise, who insisted on seeing Pope Pius, caused a bomb scare in the Vatican today. Papal authorities became suspicious and induced her after much argument to open the valise. It contained dolls, magazines, newspapers and other articles. Authorities considered her conduct was strange and escorted her to the Rome police for identification.

Mr. Walshaw Doesn't Fare So Well as 1932 Arrives

The first crime for the new year was committed one minute after midnight this morning by two armed bandits. They held up Robert Walshaw, 1535 Juneway terrace, as he stood in front of his home, and took $40.

ITALIAN CONSUL IN CLEVELAND, O., RECEIVES BOMB

Device Found to Contain Pint of Explosive.

Cleveland, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—A long distance telephone call to New York city today saved the lives of Count C. P. A. Buzzi-Gradenigo, Italian consul here, and at least two other men. The call was made after the consul had received a small wooden box disguised as a present of silverware.

The name of the sender was listed on the package as "Trombetto" and the address of the sender as "56 East 45th street, New York City." In another corner of the package was written: "Dinner set and tablespoons."

Capt. Stefano Emilio Ardito, the consul's secretary, called Domenico Trombetto, editor in chief of Il Grido della Stirpe, official Fascist newspaper in New York, and the publisher denied that he had sent any package.

Detective Inspector C. W. Cody was then called and police took the package out to the Hart rifle range, where a bullet was sent into it at a range of 120 yards.

Explosion Rocks District.

An explosion that ripped a hole 30 feet in diameter and rocked the neighborhood followed. Although the rifle range is more than a half mile from the nearest house, windows were shattered and police stations were swamped with telephone calls inquiring about the blast.

Inspector Cody said the bomb was so contrived that it would have exploded as soon as the brown wrapping paper on the box in which it was shipped was unwrapped. It contained a pint of nitroglycerin, he said.

Shortly after the receipt of the bomb Detective Lieutenant Charles Cavola, head of the black hand squad, raided the headquarters of a known ring of Italian terrorists and confiscated papers that definitely linked Clevelanders with the nation-wide death plot against Italian consuls and Italo-Americans. Cavola stated tonight that he expected to make at least one arrest within twenty-four hours.

Suspicious; Refuses Package.

Youngstown, O., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Dr. Attilo Rosapeppe, Italian consular agent, narrowly escaped death today when he received a package sent by express from New York which contained a deadly bomb. Suspicious of the package, Dr. Rosapeppe reported to police, who exploded it. The bomb was a powerful one, exploding 100 feet in the air, spraying flame and sparks like a huge rocket. It tore up the ground for 15 feet in the vicinity and rocked police cars parked 600 feet away.

It is thought the bomb was sent to Dr. Rosapeppe as a part of a nation-wide plot directed at Fascisti supporters in the United States.

Recalling the bomb explosions yesterday in Easton, Pa., when two lives were lost Dr. Rosapeppe refused to accept the package containing the bomb when it was delivered by the express company. Instead, it was later turned over to police.

Bomb Received in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—A bomb similar to those which killed two persons in Easton, Pa., was received today at the Hotel Gotham, residence of Count Ugo Berni Canini, Italian vice consul in Detroit. It was immediately turned over to police.

The package was sent from New York and bore a return address of: "Mr. Falbo, 42 Elm street." This is the same name noted on a similar package sent to Oscar Durante of Chicago. The Detroit bomb squad examined it, removing the outer wrapper to find within a wooden box which was said to resemble the Easton packages. It had a hinged lid fastened with hooks. The bottom of the box was fastened with screws and the screw holes filled with putty.

Officers took the infernal machine to a river bank and set it afire. There was a terrific explosion.

BOMB EXAMINED AT EASTON IS DESCRIBED AS WORK OF EXPERT

Easton, Pa., Dec. 31.—Special.]—Postoffice inspectors today issued a description of bombs which exploded here yesterday, killing two postal clerks, and injuring five other persons. It was the explosion here which forewarned Italian consulates and Italian language newspapers throughout the country against many similar bombs which were received today, but which were prevented from doing damage.

An examination of one of the opened bombs showed that it was made by a clever craftsman. It contained a small olive or pickle jar containing 70 per cent strength dynamite, in which a blasting cap had been inserted, the wire leading out through a hole in the metal top. Electricity was furnished by a radio "C" battery. It was so hooked up that when one of the two small hooks holding down the lid was pushed to one side to open the box, a contact was made on the inside and thus set off the bomb.

Third Victim Dies.

Easton, Pa., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Charles V. Weaver, 49, of Easton, explosives expert, who was injured yesterday afternoon while trying to open one of the infernal machines mailed at the Easton postoffice, died tonight at the Easton hospital. His right hand and left leg had been amputated. He was a native and life long resident of Easton. He had been employed as an expert by the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours company for about 18 years.

Weaver's death is the third fatality in connection with the bomb episode at the Easton postoffice. Edward H. Werkheiser, a postoffice clerk who opened the package yesterday morning died an hour later, and John House, another clerk, died from injuries yesterday afternoon. Two men arrested at Roseto, yesterday and later dismissed, were taken into custody again tonight at Allentown and brought to Easton. They are Anthony Cipolla, 20, and Jack Viola, 20, both of New York.

Nation-Wide Plot Seen.

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Federal and city authorities were on guard here tonight against what they believe to be a nation-wide "communist or anti-Fascist plot." Five of the six bombs delivered to intended victims in the middle west today were mailed or expressed from this city, indicating that the conspiracy has its headquarters here.

Two of the missiles bore a sender's address designed to indicate that they had been sent by Italo Falbo, editor of Il Progresso, an Italian language newspaper published here. One of the bombs posted at Easton, Pa., was addressed to Falbo. The editor was shocked over the use of his name by the plotters.

"Someone is using my name as a camouflage," he declared. "I don't blame them [the intended victims] for not opening the packages. I wouldn't have done it either."

The discovery that the explosives used in one of the bombs which exploded at Easton with a loss of two lives was stolen from a construction job here caused the police commissioner, Edward P. Mulrooney, to order a checkup of all other such jobs by the bomb squad to see whether any dynamite is missing. Two bomb squad men were sent to Easton to coöperate with the authorities there in the investigation.

FINLAND'S DRYS ADMIT DEFEAT; WET VOTES LEAP

Estimate 68% Majority for Prohibition Repeal.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists alike admitted tonight as the returns came in from the country-wide referendum that 1932 is likely to be a wet year for Finland.

In the former parliament building 510 clerks worked in three shifts to tabulate the vote and by 9 o'clock their count of about one-fifth the total vote indicated that 75 per cent were for repeal of the present prohibition laws, that 24.2 per cent voted to retain the laws, and 0.8 per cent for modification to permit the sale of light wines and beer.

Women Vote for Repeal.

What surprised observers most was that 60 per cent of the repeal votes in early returns in this city were cast by women.

The largest newspaper in Helsingfors estimated on the basis of its own poll in various sections of the country that the final vote would show a 68 per cent majority for repeal.

"Reason has conquered," said T. O. Kivimaki, minister of justice, who began drafting a bill for government administration of trade in alcoholic beverages.

"The Finnish home has been saved," said Prof. Lucina Hagman who was one of the most ardent drys among Finland's women when the prohibition law was adopted thirteen years ago.

The trend was disappointing to prohibition quarters, but the leaders of that faction indicated a determination to continue their fight against alcohol.

Liquor Flows in Helsingfors.

Helsingfors celebrated New Year's eve with liquor in evidence in almost every restaurant and hotel. No effort was made to conceal the contents of bottles and glasses and the waiters openly asked the patrons what brand of champagne, wine or cordial they preferred.

The Rev. Sigfrid Sirenius, a leader of the Finnish settlement movement, expressed the sentiments of the prohibitionists this evening.

"What makes us sad," said he, "is to think that revenue from the sale of liquor will soon figure as the basis of the national budget. Even in the days before prohibition the liquor revenue had to be devoted to certain welfare purposes, but the wets have fought this campaign on the plea that there will be a deficit in the budget unless the state gets revenue from liquor.

"The logical deduction will be that it will be a patriotic duty to drink heavily so that the state will get more revenue, but the temperance fight has only begun. Now we must get liquor revenues stricken from the budget estimates as quickly as possible."

Reports 3,000,000 Fewer Yule Letters Than in 1930

Figures given out yesterday by Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder showed that letter mail handled during the Christmas rush season from Dec. 21 to 27, inclusive, was considerably less than that handled during the same period in 1930. The postmaster's report showed a decrease of approximately 3,000,000 letters from the number handled in 1930, which was 108,887,096. Approximately 15,000 more sacks of parcel post mail were handled during this Christmas season than in 1930, however, according to the report.

DRIVING RAIN ENDS CHICAGO'S WARMEST YEAR

1931 Mean Temperature Above Normal.

The year 1931, warmest of record and unusually wet, closed yesterday with rain driven by a 34 mile gale that also rolled huge waves over Lake Michigan's shore line. The forecast of Meteorologist W. P. Day called for continued rain, possibly mixed with snow, today. Little change in temperature was predicted.

Some damage was reported along the lake shore from Indiana to Milwaukee and continued pounding threatened to increase the loss. In Lincoln park the breakers reached the outer drive and it was closed to traffic.

Temperature Above Normal.

The mean temperature of 1931 was 53.9 degrees, 4.8 degrees above the normal, and a record for the 61 years since the establishment of the weather bureau. Such a temperature, according to C. A. Donnel, principal meteorologist, is normal for a point in Illinois 200 miles south of Chicago.

The former temperature record for Chicago was 53.5 degrees, set in 1921. The coolest year of record was 1875, when the mean temperature was 45.5 degrees. The monthly mean temperature was in excess of the normal for every month of 1931 except March and May, when slight deficiencies occurred.

The temperature reached 90 or higher on 26 days during the year, a greater number by four than for any previous year. The highest temperature for the year was 99 degrees, on July 1, and the lowest was 6 above zero on Jan. 21. In only three years in the past has the temperature failed to fall below zero. The highest year's minimum of record, set in 1921, was 8 above zero. The highest temperature of record for Chicago is 103 degrees, established on July 21, 1901, and the lowest is 23 degrees below zero, reached on Dec. 24, 1872.

The total precipitation for 1931 was 39.27 inches at 7 o'clock last night, which is 6.41 inches above the normal. January, February, April and July were the only months in which a deficiency of precipitation occurred. The highest precipitation of record for one year was 45.86 inches in 1883, and the driest year of record was 1930 with 23.34 inches.

Snowfall Below Normal.

The total snowfall for 1931 was 28.1 inches, which is 5.4 below the normal. The percentage of possible sunshine was 58, which is exactly normal, and the prevailing direction of the wind was the southwest, which is also normal.

A summary of the year's weather by months follows:

January—Decidedly mild and dry, being both the third mildest and driest of record. The ground was snow covered only five days.

February—Also markedly mild and dry. During this month the temperature remained practically stationary for 26 consecutive hours.

March—Normal in temperature, precipitation 29 per cent above normal.

April—Slightly warmer and drier than usual.

May—Cool and wet.

June—Fourth warmest June of record but exceptionally wet.

July—Warmest in ten years, fourth warmest of record, somewhat dry.

August—Closed the second warmest summer of record. Temperature and precipitation slightly excessive.

September — Warmest of record; very wet.

October—Fifth warmest of record, precipitation normal.

November — Warmest of record, bringing to a close the warmest fall of record; very wet.

December—Fourth mildest of record, precipitation 2.26 inches, as compared with the normal of 2.04.

Pounding Waves Force Closing of Outer Lincoln Park Drive

Breakers sweeping over the granite blocks with which the shore line at Belden avenue is paved. The waves were driven before a 34 mile gale and the picture shows that they had already dislodged some of the granite blocks. The waves were so high that it was deemed advisable to prevent autoists from using the drive last night. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

COOK COUNTY SPENDS $2,850,000 IN POOR RELIEF DURING YEAR

The county's bureau of public welfare spent $2,850,0000 for poor relief in 1931, according to the annual report of Joseph L. Moss, director. The sum was used for milk, food, shoes and coal, which went to 65,000 families, comprising 325,000 persons. In addition a total of $1,050,000 was paid out in pensions to 1,800 dependent mothers with 6,000 children, while emergency medical relief was given to 50,000 persons in their homes through the bureau. Another relief item was the $466,904 paid out in quarterly pension checks to 1,350 blind dependent persons.

HUNDREDS FLEE FLOOD WATERS IN MISSISSIPPI

4 Towns Are Menaced as Levees Crumble.

Glendora, Miss., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Hundreds of residents in the Tallahatchie river valley fled to high ground and awaited rescue tonight after warnings by messengers speeding about in motorboats that higher flood waters are headed this way.

Their flight was hastened by the sight of crumbling levees that have served vainly to keep the muddy torrents from spreading through the streets of Glendora and the surrounding countryside.

Residents with boats volunteered their services in warning citizens of a far flung area to seek shelter while there was time. The endangered zone includes the towns of Glendora, Swan Lake, Webb, and Summer.

More than a thousand convicts went into action along a twelve mile levee front, to hold back the water.

The desperate situation was not realized until today. The population was thrown into a state of panic, as practically no hope was held for the miles of levees holding through the night.

A cloudburst last night sent the Tallahatchie river on a new rampage right at the time when a thousand refugees were preparing to return to their homes.

Yesterday a great inland lake of floodwater, stretching a hundred miles in length and fifty miles in width throughout Quitman, Panola, and Tallahatchie counties, was beginning to recede, but the new downpour of rain started the water rising again.

Glendora is exposed to an abrupt bend of the Tallahatchie. The town has about 275 inhabitants, mostly farmers, normally, but now is overrun with refugees.

Says "Miss Poland" Wife Beat Him; Asks Divorce

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The last divorce action of 1931, filed just before the courthouse closed today marked the end of the romance of Miss Janina Smolinski, international beauty contest winner as "Miss Poland" and Walter Grabowski, wealthy Los Angeles businessman, who married her last September to save her from deportation to Poland. Grabowski filed suit, charging his wife with striking him with her fists in bed last Monday until his lips were cut and he required several stitches over one eye.

WINTER GRIPS 15 STATES IN WEST; 18 BELOW ZERO

Snowdrifts 25 Feet High; Blizzard in Idaho.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Winter took its final fling at 1931, a year of generally mild weather, with an onslaught along a front covering 15 western states.

The passing year was swept out in swirls of snow, sleet and rain in the wide expanse between the Canadian border and the Texas Panhandle.

Ranging eastward from the Pacific coast to the Mississippi valley, the storm left drifts as high as 25 feet in some sections of Idaho, blocking highways, grounding airplanes, endangering human life and catching live stock away from shelter. In some parts of western Nebraska snow was drifted over the housetops.

Houses Collapse Under Snow.

Cold and snow tonight had reached into the Dakotas, Minnesota, Nebraska and Iowa. The storm area included Oregon, California, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Iowa, Minnesota, and Missouri. A 16 year old girl was frozen to death a mile from her home in Colorado.

In some of the mountainous sections of the west temperatures slid down to 18 and 20 degrees below zero.

Many houses in the Lake Tahoe region of northern California collapsed under recent heavy snows. With scores of persons marooned in that resort area, the situation had become acute through food shortage.

Snow Drifts Fence High.

A blizzard raged through Idaho, hampering automobile travel and grounding west bound planes from Boise. At Donnelly, Idaho, snow had reached the top of fences. Part of the highway between Boise and Cascade was blocked by drifts ranging from 10 to 25 feet.

Sixteen inches of snow fell in the Jackson Hole country of Wyoming. Highways east and north of Cheyenne, Wyo., were covered with heavy snows. Temperatures of ten degrees below zero were recorded at Evanston and Basin.

South Dakota was under a blanket of snow. Heavy rain in Iowa turned to snow. Snow moved across northern Nebraska and swept into northwest Missouri.

Drifts blocked the Oklahoma Panhandle and snow touched the northwestern and central parts of that state. There was a light snow in the north portion of the Texas Panhandle.

Freak Windstorms in Dixie.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Freak windstorms in widely scattered sections of the southeast last night and today left at least five persons dead and sixty injured and extensive property damage.

Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas, and Florida areas were affected by the storms. All of the fatalities and 53 of the injuries occurred in Simpson and Covington counties, Miss.

Beaten Aurora Mayor to Appeal to High Court

Counsel for Col. Charles H. Greene, for ten years mayor of Aurora, yesterday announced that they would appeal to the Supreme court a decision of County Judge O. A. Allen holding that Conrad M. Bjorseth was elected mayor over Col. Greene by four votes in the election of last April. The judge made his decision at the conclusion of a recount in the course of which Mayor Bjorseth lost 189 ballots and Col. Greene 208. The corrected figures gave Greene 9,355 and Bjorseth 9,359.

AUTO FATALITIES 1,306 FOR YEAR; A NEW RECORD

Total Exceeds Previous High by 206.

Auto deaths in Cook county during 1931 totaled 1,306. This is an increase of 206 deaths over the previous record total of 1,100 set in 1930.

The accident in which an auto went into the river last night [reported elsewhere] carried the total past the 1,300 mark.

The comparative tables of deaths for the two years, month by month, follow:

Month.	1930.	1931.
January	55	113
February	74	95
March	66	80
April	79	88
May	75	86
June	87	82
July	92	102
August	106	131
September	83	123
October	134	118
November	120	134
December	129	154

It is noticeable that while only four months in 1930 exceeded the 100 mark in deaths, in seven months in 1931, the last six consecutively, the toll exceeded one hundred.

Make Plea for Safety.

Automobile accidents have caused funerals from 1,289 homes in Cook county during the year, the mayor's safety commission disclosed yesterday. "If all the lives lost in automobile accidents were lost in one catastrophe it would be remembered for years to come," said the report. "But because they occurred at various times and different places during the year no one seems to be getting excited about it and little is being done to prevent the continuation of this tragic situation."

Asserting that heavy traffic did not cause accidents the report declared that a public education in safety was necessary to prevent many deaths in 1932 and recommended that every teacher in the public school system begin by impressing the need for care upon their pupils.

Last Death of Year.

The last fatality victim of the year —the 1,306th—was Daniel C. Richmire, 70 years old, of 1455 North Lockwood avenue. He was killed at five minutes to 12 in a collision between the machine driven by his son, A. W. Richmire, and that of J. B. Cislo of 4204 Archer avenue, at 28th street and Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn.

Other victims of the day were:

Joseph Epstein, 85 years old, 1533 West Madison street. Died in the county hospital from injuries received on Dec. 24 when he was run down at North and Western avenues. The driver was G. B. Taylor, 4901 West Erie street.

Albert Kappel, 64 years old, 4922 Schubert avenue. Killed last night when his automobile collided with another at Sheldon and Mansfield avenues. Mario Vinci, 1909 West Grand avenue, was the other driver. Police said both cars had skidded on the wet pavement.

First Fatality of 1932.

The first fatality victim of the new year was Mrs. Lucille Hoyne, 30 years old, of 4431 South Troy street. She was killed early this morning, and her husband, Marshall, also 30, was probably fatally hurt when they were struck by a Yellow cab at Broadway and Catalpa avenue. Kenneth Calling, 7709 Addison street, was held.

Police said the Hoynes were standing at the intersection waiting for a street car. A touring car passed the street car and the couple backed up to avoid it, and stepped into the path of the cab which was also passing the surface car. They were taken to the Lake View hospital.

Hurt in Georgia Crash.

William Clark Dickson, 1635 Ridge avenue, Evanston, was critically injured yesterday when an automobile in which he was riding with several other persons overturned in a ditch near Atlanta, Ga. Others in the party suffered only minor bruises.

GRAND JURY ASKS STRONGER LAW ON AUTO FATALITIES

Bolstering of the motor vehicle laws to provide punishment in automobile death cases where a criminal charge of manslaughter cannot be sustained was advocated in a final report submitted by the grand jury yesterday to Acting Chief Justice James J. Kelly of the criminal court.

"We find that in many cases of manslaughter with an automobile the evidence is insufficient to warrant a criminal indictment and as a consequence the defendant escapes with a light and inadequate penalty," said the report signed by Avery Brundage, well known amateur sportsman. "It is our suggestion that steps be taken to increase the penalties for violations of other sections of the motor vehicle laws."

The jurors also suggested that State's Attorney Swanson take a hand in instructing members of the police department on the proper presentation of evidence and the taking of confessions in criminal cases. Another suggestion is that the criminal court judges draft a better confidence game law as regards fraudulent checks. The jurors also said that many cases sent to the criminal courts should be disposed of in the municipal courts.

ROB THREE IN FLAT.

Two armed men robbed Mrs. Betty McIntyre, her daughter, Margaret, and a niece, Miss Zelma Flemming, of $16 in cash and $60 worth of clothing yesterday in the McIntyre apartment at 2326 Van Buren street.

DUCE TO MAKE NEW YEAR BOW FOR KING TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Dec. 31.—In the high uniform of prime minister and accompanied by his cabinet, Premier Mussolini will bow before the throne tomorrow when he pays his annual call on King Victor Emmanuel at the royal palace and extend his New Year's greetings. Senators and deputies will follow Il Duce on his visit.

Roman citizens got an unexpected New Year's gift in the form of a 33 per cent increase in electric light bills. This increase was announced by the Roman municipal commission in approving the budget today.

It was announced that revenues fell $500,000 short of the amount needed, which was made up in part when the state agreed to pay $500,000 more for the upkeep of the metropolitan police, the municipality's contribution to the police force being reduced from $750,000 to $250,000.

While it cost less to run the state-controlled royal opera this year, the street car and bus systems failed to make expenses. The revenues totaled $6,400,000 and expenditures about $6,550,000.

3 KILLED, 2 HURT AS PASSENGER PLANE CRASHES

Wreckage Buried in Mud on Ohio Farm.

Springfield, O., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Three men lost their lives and two others, including the pilot, were injured seriously when an American Airways plane crashed in a rain soaked cornfield 12 miles east of here tonight.

The dead are A. L. Wenner and Louis E. Stone, both of Cincinnati, and A. C. Mayer, Louisville, Ky.

The injured are L. L. Bowen, Louisville, the pilot, and W. D. Wieback, Cincinnati.

Plane Buried in Mud.

The plane, buried three feet in the soggy field, was found shortly before 9 p. m., two hours after farmers in the vicinity heard the crash. Two boys, William Hickman and Thomas Meyers, were the first to find the wreckage.

Later, about 500 other persons crowded the field, part of the farm of C. L. Snodgrass, a mile south of the National highway. While residents of the community were trying to extricate the victims doctors and ambulances arrived from Springfield. The injured were brought to a hospital here.

Cause of Crash Not Known.

Residents of Brighton, near the Snodgrass farm, said the plane, apparently in trouble, circled the community for several minutes early in the evening and then continued on its way. The plans was reported overdue in Cincinnati at 8 o'clock.

An examination of the wreckage failed to show the cause of the accident, but several persons at the scene said the plane appeared to have lost a wing before it plunged.

Injured as Freak Plane Falls.

Springfield, Mass., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Mark Granville, 20, was seriously injured today when he crashed 100 feet to the ground at Springfield airport while flying the Ascendor, a freak plane designed by his brother, Z. D. Granville. The brother also designed the Gee-Bee machine in which Lowell Bayles recently plunged to his death while traveling close to 300 miles an hour.

JARECKI HOLDS 1928-1929 TAX LEVIES ARE VOID

Finds Burden on Realty Is Unfair.

come and effect of Judge Jarecki's decision?" Attorney Bell was asked.

"The state Supreme court must reverse this decision or the state legislature must enact new laws requiring a reassessment for 1928, 1929, and 1930 in which they will give credit to property owners who have paid their 1928 and 1929 taxes. That was done after the great fire in Chicago."

"Cannot the state tax commission order a reassessment?"

"Positively not for 1928 and 1929," said Mr. Bell. "Those taxes were in collection and the state tax commission cannot order a reassessment when the taxes are in collection. Perhaps the state tax commission could order a reassessment for 1930. I am uncertain, because I am not sure whether the 1930 taxes are technically in collection. But the state tax commission has no authority to say that a property owner who has already paid his taxes on an invalid assessment must be given credit when a valid reassessment is made.

"The state Supreme court must reverse this decision or the state legislature must supply remedial legislation. Otherwise the local governments crash."

Keehn Suggests Bond Plan.

Attorney Keehn suggested another way out.

"Under the showing in this case," he said, "real estate taxes might be cut as much as two-thirds. Of course, real estate should pay and desires to pay its fair share of the taxes, and when politics and 'fixing' is taken out of the system, and the law honestly applied, confidence will be restored.

"In my opinion a sound solution will require full faith and credit bonds, not only to take up the 1930 taxes, but also the deficiencies for 1928 and 1929."

This means bond issues of probably more than $375,000,000—$260,000,000 for 1930 taxes and $125,000,000 for the 1928 and 1929 unpaid taxes.

State Representative Elmer Schnackenberg, chairman of the joint legislative committee on revenue relief, said that the decision obligates the general assembly immediately to adopt an effective program. He was referring to the plan which was sponsored by the governor's tax conference, and later modified, which its sponsors hope will restore public confidence in the tax assessments. He said he now favors funding of the 1930 taxes.

From the views expressed by the 200 tax attorneys who listened to Judge Jarecki's decision, they believe that the ruling will shake public confidence in the present tax machine and its products.

Reviews Assessments.

In Mrs. Cisar's suit she asserted that her taxes were void because the board of assessors and board of review "deliberately, systematically, and fraudulently omitted vast amounts of taxable property from the assessment rolls." Judge Jarecki found that her objection to the assessment is sustained.

"It has been shown," reads the Jarecki opinion, "that the real estate in this county, in the years 1928 and 1929, has been assessed at $9,300,000,000, and by the 37 per cent factor reduced to the assessed value in 1928 to $3,336,231,768 and in 1929 to $3,431,242,182; and that personal property has been assessed in 1928 in this county as valued at $779,066,120 and in 1929 as valued at $751,660,785. It has also been shown that the personality has not been reduced by any equalizing factor, but was placed on the books as reported at its full value.

"Further in the evidence it has been shown that there is in Cook county personal property to the extent of $16,000,000,000.

"If there is $9,300,000,000 worth of real estate in Cook county and $16,000,000,000 worth of personalty, then barely one-third of the property has been listed for taxation. But admitting that in the $16,000,000,000 worth of personalty, some of it may be exempt from taxation, some perhaps cannot be located, at any rate barely one-half of the taxable property of Cook county has found its way into the assessment roll. The other half has been wilfully and intentionally left off the roll. Can it be maintained that an assessment so flagrant, so reeking with fraud can be held to be a good roll?

Much Evidence of Fraud.

"Not until this case has fraud been shown, but the evidence as to it has poured in here like a blizzard that blocked every avenue of escape.

"Can it be said, in view of these circumstances, that this roll which barely—under the most favorable circumstances—contains perhaps one half of the property of this county on the books, is an assessment roll at all? Can it be said to these taxpayers that it makes no difference how much property is placed on the roll, whether it is one half, one third, one fourth or one tenth, a roll of that kind is good, and those who happen to be caught in its meshes must carry the burden of taxation for the entire county? I cannot agree with such a finding."

Judge Jarecki finds in his opinion that the evidence presented shows that the board of assessors and review have not attempted to give the property owners fair treatment. As some of the evidence on that point he says that 67,754 complaints were filed with the reviewers on the 1928 assessment.

"The board of review heard 18,431 of the complaints," reads the decision, "and arbitrarily, wilfully, and deliberately denied a hearing to 49,323 of the said complainants."

Of the 40,941 complaints filed on the 1929 taxes, the judge says they gave hearings to only 2,409. The opinion goes on:

"The court further finds from the evidence that the complaining taxpayers were informed that they could not get any relief from the board of review, but would be compelled to seek their relief in the County court."

Cites Trust Fund Levies.

As further evidence of "the arbitrary and fraudulent assessment," the court says that between 1898 and 1907 there was deliberately omitted from the assessment rolls all taxable personal property held in trusts in the banks. In 1907, Judge Jarecki says that the board of assessors and board of review agreed to assess these trusts at one-sixth of their value. Later at one-tenth of their value, which agreement continued through 1929.

"For many years last past the board of assessors," reads the opinion, "arbitrarily and deliberately removed hundreds of millions of dollars of taxable personal property from the assessment rolls of the county. This conduct was known to and acquiesced in by the board of review. For 1928 and 1929, and many years prior thereto, the board of review arbitrarily, fraudulently and deliberately refused to assess personal property which had been omitted by the board of assessors."

Replies to "Crisis Plea."

Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Busch in his brief made the following statement to the court:

"A decision of this court, or of any court, of the kind now asked by the objector may precipitate a crisis in the governmental affairs of this community, the results of which cannot be foretold."

Judge Jarecki made direct reply in the following language:

"It must also be borne in mind in this connection that a continuation of an unlawful, willful, and deliberate violation of the principles of the constitution in the levying of unjust taxes may precipitate a crisis in this community, the results of which cannot be foretold.

"Under the record in this case and in the light of the authorities bearing thereon, this case presents the question whether the constitution of the state of Illinois must yield to a fraudulent assessment roll or whether the fraudulent roll must give way to the constitution."

The opinion continues: "Under the doctrine in the Aldrich case [decided by the Illinois Supreme court], fraud in the assessment roll vitiates the roll, and any one injuriously affected thereby has a right to complain.

"In the case at bar there is an additional element which makes this case even stronger than the Aldrich case, and that is, that under the evidence it is shown and uncontroverted that approximately two-thirds of the taxable property of Cook county was deliberately omitted from the rolls. This conduct by the board of assessors and board of review was equivalent to an exemption of the property."

It was contended by Attorney Bell that the protesting tax payer should have proceeded by mandamus, instead of the procedure adopted.

In reply to that contention, Judge Jarecki said:

"In the case presented to this court, we have an enormous amount of personal property omitted willfully, deliberately, and systematically. If relief were sought by way of mandamus proceedings, the petitioner would have to allege the existence of the property, its location and ownership so that the court might direct the tax officials by proper order to place upon the books the specific property.

"It seems quite evident there is no human being in Cook county that knows the amount of personal property, and its location cannot be ascertained without an enormous amount of labor. To seek out this personal property, its location and ownership, in order to compel its assessment by mandamus appears to be impossible and beyond the reach of any objector, and obviously mandamus proceedings appear to be inadequate. Unless relief is granted by this court then this tax payer would be absolutely without any relief in any court against fraudulent assessments."

Made Issue in Appeal.

This point of procedure is highly important because the county tax attorney, it is said, will rely largely upon this contention in the appeal.

Judge Jarecki asserts that "attempts have been made by taxpayers in numerous suits by mandamus and injunction proceedings to compel the assessing and reviewing bodies to assess all property, and no action has been taken."

The all important question of when the local governments will get any money was asked of various attorneys and officials. No one would venture a definite guess.

The 1930 taxes, now being spread, are in default today under the existing statutes. Yesterday was the last day for paying 1930 taxes without a penalty. These taxes have not been extended, the bills have not been sent out. The property owner cannot ascertain exactly how much tax he owes, and consequently the time in which they are payable must be extended.

It is believed by officials that these taxes will be attacked in the courts.

Upsets Tax Levies

Mrs. Lilian Cisar, Oak Park widow, in whose name suit objecting to 1928 and 1929 assessments as fraudulent was filed. Her objections were upheld by decision by Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, which adds to financial embarrassments of taxing bodies.

DECISION IS HELD BLOW TO MARKET FOR CITY PAPER

Apprehension that the Jarecki decision rendering invalid the 1928 and 1929 tax levies would demoralize the already uncertain market in Chicago tax anticipation warrants was expressed yesterday by dealers in unlisted securities specializing in these issues.

A canvass of La Salle street dealers showed that bids for the various warrants have been scarce, while offerings are being made in moderate volume at prices varying from 91 to 97. The offerings, however, have not been large, it was stated, coming only from distress sellers who are in immediate need of cash. The view expressed in financial circles was that after the first of the year it would be even more difficult to sell the warrants and that the Jarecki decision would probably make it necessary for distress sellers to take lower prices.

No immediate reflection of the decision was seen in the quotations reported yesterday by the various dealers. Sickle Nast & Co. reported 1930 board of education warrants at 91½ to 92½, while city corporates were around 95½ to 96½.

LACK OF FUNDS THREATENS NEW TRIER SCHOOL

Warning that lack of funds may close the New Trier Township High school, which serves Kenilworth, Glencoe, Winnetka, and Wilmette, was given yesterday by J. R. Gathercoal, president of the high school board. The enrollment is nearly 2,000.

A meeting of citizens of the communities affected has been called for Monday. They will discuss the refusal of finance houses to purchase tax anticipation warrants. At the same time individuals may be asked to assist.

According to President Gathercoal, the New Trier High school will open Monday, as scheduled, but there are no funds to meet the pay roll.

LEADERS DEMAND SPECIAL SESSION ACT IN TAX CRISIS

Cermak Pleads for Speed at Springfield.

By PARKE BROWN.

In comment on Judge Jarecki's decision invalidating the tax levies of 1928 and 1929 and endangering the 1930 assessment, Mayor Cermak and leading legislators agreed yesterday that the duty of the special session of the general assembly is plain.

They said that three things are imperative. As of first importance they classified the pending reorganization of the taxing machinery of Cook county. They said this should be followed immediately by a reassessment of personal property to validate the 1930 rolls. The third and perhaps the most difficult step, they agreed, will be to find a method of producing funds which will permit the local governments of the county to function until the new tax money comes in.

Push Relief Program.

Intensive effort is to be put behind this program immediately. Tomorrow morning Mayor Cermak will have all the Democratic Chicago legislators in his office. That meeting will be followed by the second caucus of all Cook county assemblymen, Republicans as well as Democrats, in the assembly room of the county board.

And on Monday Mayor Cermak will go to Springfield once more to urge that political considerations be thrust aside, that the Kelly plan for a new taxing system be adopted speedily and that everything possible be done to provide funds for local governmental operations on a basis of the strictest sort of economy.

Action on Reassessment.

The question of a reassessment of personal property is already before Gov. Louis L. Emmerson. Three weeks ago, following the appearance of Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank of Chicago, before the assembly, the house of representatives, upon motion of Minority Leader Michael . Igoe, passed a resolution requesting the governor to direct the state tax commission to order the reassessment. That resolution was sent to the governor's office a few days later.

Identical action was taken the same day in the senate on the motion of Minority Leader Thomas J. Courtney. The resolution was passed, but the following day, while Courtney was absent, Senator Richard J. Barr and his downstate followers effected a reconsideration of the vote for adoption and action on the resolution was postponed. Senator Courtney was seriously ill for two weeks and the matter has been dormant.

Cermak Pleads for Speed.

Mayor Cermak put his appeal for speed in a letter he sent to Gov. Emmerson and every member of the general assembly, an appeal for "immediate support" of the Kelly plan.

"Restoration of confidence and reestablishment of public credit," he wrote, "is imperative if relief is to be obtained for the taxpayers and municipalities in Cook county.

"One fundamental of the local tax relief program now pending before the special session is the constructive reorganization of the tax assessing machinery. Assurance that assessments and taxes will be spread with justice, uniformity and certainty of collection upon agreed schedule is a prerequisite for the continued operation of the essential public services."

Points to General Support.

He described the history and nature of the Kelly plan and then continued: "The state, city, and county officials and citizens who worked out this feasible compromise believe that it meets the fundamentals and necessities of the situation. It has been supported without dissent in the editorials of the local press and has received the indorsement of the city council.

"In the absence of any better plan, I urge and commend favorable consideration by the general assembly for immediate action on this plan. Such action will help restore public confidence and credit. I am convinced it will make bonds and tax warrants more marketable, will permit the payment of long overdue salaries to the teachers, policemen, firemen, and other public employés and will prevent the entire breakdown of local government in Cook county.

Asks All to Attend.

"I respectfully urge that every member of the general assembly make every effort to be present on the reconvening of the special session, so that this fundamental division of the tax relief program may be passed as an emergency measure at the earliest date possible."

Joseph K. Brittain, chairman of the executive committee of the governor's conference, said that while he had not reached a decision, he might call a meeting of that committee before Tuesday to consider whether the Jarecki decision had affected the attitude of the conference toward its legislative program.

Mark Levy, former president of the Real Estate board, said he and his associates felt that the decision had brightened the prospects for legislation embodying their plan to fund 1930 taxes by means of 20 year bonds.

ILLINOIS TAX BILLS ARE SENT OUT MONTH EARLIER THIS TIME

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Illinois tax payers will get their tax bills promptly after the first of the year for the first time in ten years, Omer N. Custer, chairman of the state tax commission, said today.

Chairman Custer said that most of the counties have already mailed the tax bills, with the result that county tax collections will start much earlier than usual in 1932. This will enable a number of counties to collect enough money to carry on without issuing tax anticipation warrants.

"It was through the coöperation of the state tax commission" Mr. Custer said, "that the counties were able to extend the taxes in an orderly manner and still get the tax bills out by the first of the year. The state tax commission finished its duties on Dec. 3, more than a month earlier than usual. Then, on the following Tuesday, Dec. 8, the state tax levy board fixed the state rate, permitting the counties to finish making out tax bills."

COUNTY SCHOOLS SEE SMALL HOPE FOR SALARIES

Although more than $3,500,000 will technically become due to Cook county schools soon after the first of the year, school officials said yesterday that they have little hope of converting the cash into teachers' salaries.

The money is the payment due county schools from the state distributive school fund. The school board will get $2,891,881, and other school districts in the county, $612,582, E. J. Tobin, county superintendent of schools, said.

However, it was pointed out by Mr. Tobin and H. H. Brackett, auditor of the school board, that payment of the money, from 1930 taxes, is dependent on the collection of those taxes in Cook county, and that such collection will not start for at least another month.

DIES AS HE PLAYS SOLITAIRE.

Henry Koeling, 55 years old, died of a heart attack yesterday as he played solitaire in his room at 615 North Wells street.

3 GOVERNMENTS DEFAULT BONDS TO START YEAR

Sanitary District Gives Up Hope for Aid.

The new year brought fresh woes to Chicago governments, for Jan. 1 is the maturity date of bonds and interest payments on which three bodies, the sanitary district, forest preserve district, and the west park districts, defaulted. The city, school board and south park board met their obligations and preserved their credit. Bond defaults bar all securities of the defaulting body from a large portion of the investment field for periods from five to twenty-five years.

The forest preserves and west parks have previous defaults against their records. The sanitary trustees have until midnight tomorrow to deposit with the First National bank $1,519,965 to cover bonds and interest due Jan. 1, but when no aid was forthcoming at their meeting yesterday they abandoned all hope of preventing the default.

Called Menace to City.

"If the sanitary district has to shut down," said President T. J. Bowler of the trustees, "the city will be in far worse condition than it would be from closing of the schools. The moment the district stops functioning, disease will begin increasing by leaps and bounds.

"I am going to Washington next week to see if I can get help from the war department. I will try to see President Hoover and anyone else I can find who will help us.

"Up to now, we have kept to the schedule of work for completion of the sewage treatment system which the Supreme court ordered finished by 1938, but all of that work has come to a standstill. We are in the position of not only being broke, but also in danger of citation for contempt of the United States Supreme court."

District May Close Down.

Employés of the district have had no pay since Nov. 15, and material and supply bills have run longer than that. President Bowler said that complete shutdown of activities by the district, for lack of cash, would not be surprising at any time in the near future.

The west park board, which defaulted Nov. 1 on $268,750 in bonds and interest and saw its bonds blacklisted as investments by eastern savings banks, trust companies and insurance companies, defaults on $300,000 more in bonds and interest due today.

The forest preserve had a default on $100,000 in bonds and $31,500 in interest Dec. 15, and it has no funds to meet $600,000 in bonds and $53,000 in interest due today. The county had no maturities today, but must redeem $1,000,000 in bonds Feb. 1. It suffered a technical default June 1. Banks came to the rescue at that time and advanced money until the legislature authorized the same amount of refunding bonds, but the treasury department has ruled that although payment was deferred only a few hours, it was a default nevertheless, and has barred county securities for postal savings investments.

South Parks to Pay.

The South Parks district has approximately $375,000 in bonds and interest due today, and these payments will be met, Milton E. Connelly, secretary of the district said. The south park bond and interest payments are arranged to fall at monthly intervals. They have been met on time to date, and funds are available to meet them for some time in the future, Mr. Connelly said.

The Lincoln Park board had no maturities today, but it must find funds for a payment due Jan. 11, totaling $94,075 in matured bonds and interest.

City Able to Pay.

The city drained its treasury of practically every penny of available cash recently in order that it may prevent a default on its obligations due today. These are $8,998,000 in city bonds and $2,830,318 in interest payments. In addition, Controller Szymczak said, funds have been set aside for the payment of $1,800,000 in principal and $428,168 in interest due on water certificates, and special assessment warrants with principal and interest totaling $2,650,000.

The school board delivered to the controller several weeks ago $708,375 to meet interest due today on its bonds.

PARROT CRIES 'FIRE!' IN TIME TO SAVE ITS HOME FROM FLAMES

Seymour, Ind., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Poll, a parrot, yesterday saved the home of Mr. and Mrs. Zerah Purdy, Vallonia, from being destroyed by fire. Her owners had taught Poll to scream "Fire" when stoves in the house were lighted. Yesterday Poll and four canaries were alone in the house. Screams of "Fire" in a high pitched, squeaky voice brought Mrs. Purdy hurrying to the house, where she found a blaze in the rear part of the home and the rooms filled with dense smoke. Poll was hopping about on its perch, screaming at the top of its voice. Neighbors extinguished the fire. The four canaries were suffocated.

FLAG PRESENTED TO DR. BUNDESEN BY LEGION POST

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen whose title of health commissioner was changed this week to that of president of the board of health, was given a large American flag yesterday by members of the James C. Russell-Blackhawk post of the American Legion.

In making the presentation City Auditor Thomas P. German, commander of the post, praised Dr. Bundesen's efforts in behalf of ex-service men. While he held the office of coroner Dr. Bundesen started the practice of recruiting coroner's juries from unemployed veterans.

Mayor Cermak, Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court, Commissioner of Public Works Sprague, Commissioner of Electricity Jackson and Police Commissioner Allman witnessed the presentation.

CITY WILL CLOSE FOUR MORE FIRE STATIONS TODAY

Economy, Reorganizing Plans Dictate Move.

Four fire stations with a force of fifty-five men and officers will be abandoned today by order of Acting Fire Commissioner Carmody as a step in reorganizing the department in conformity with the motorizing of the apparatus and also with the economy program of Mayor Cermak.

The department was motorized a number of years ago, but never had sufficient funds with which to relocate stations which were more closely placed than necessary. Last September four stations were closed, and now with four more stations closed, Commissioner Carmody said, the department will give as good fire protection as formerly because of the ability of motor equipment to cover ground more quickly than horse-drawn apparatus.

The Stations to Be Closed.

The stations to be abandoned are those of Engine 15 at 1156 West 22d street, Engine 86 at 2414 Cuyler avenue, Engine 90 at 1016 Division street, and Engine 105 at 2337 Erie street.

The man personnel of the closed stations, according to fire department officials, will be spread out among other stations. The officers will take the places of men of equal rank who have gone into retirement during the year. Companies near the abandoned stations will be built up from twelve men to sixteen which fire department officials deem adequate to protect the districts.

Says More Men Are Needed.

All the companies in the city should have more men, according to the officials. Many of the extra alarms sent out during the year, they say, are due to the need for more men at fires rather than the need of more fire fighting apparatus. In the Carmody order a number of other firemen will be shifted, on their own request, to stations nearer their homes.

Seven members of Mayor Cermak's cabinet, whose offices were abolished by the city council, effective last night, have been deputized by the mayor to continue their duties until the 1932 budget is passed. The positions abolished by the council are the commissioners of compensation, public service, public welfare, and building, and chief boiler inspector, city physician and superintendent of the license bureau.

A Shaver and a Barber Decide to Be Partners

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Here's one to sing before the mirror some morning. Leslie L. Shaver applied today for a license to marry Iola M. Barber. He said it wasn't merely a "scraping acquaintance"—he has known her a long time.

Daugherty Says Fall Faked Wire to Get Cabinet Post

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, now in prison as an upshot of the Teapot Dome oil scandal, was appointed to the cabinet of President Harding as a result of a forged telegram sent to Mr. Harding by Fall but signed with the name of former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, Mr. Daugherty charges in his book, "The Inside Story of the Harding Tragedy," according to a story carried by the World-Telegram here today.

Mr. Daugherty, collaborating with Thomas Dixon, the author, gives his version of virtually every scandal, and answers each accusation that has followed President Harding's death, the newspaper says.

The former attorney general brands the rumors of Negro blood in the Harding family as entirely false, and traces the origin of the story to a name calling spat between school children 75 years ago, which wound up with children of the Appleman family referring to the Harding ancestors, then youngsters, as coming from Negro parents.

Blames Labor Antagonism.

The American Federation of Labor, Mr. Daugherty declares, was in a plot to "get" him for breaking the railroad strike of 1922 by injunction.

Charles Evans Hughes, the book reveals, once almost slipped into one of President Harding's congressional messages a paragraph advocating American entrance to the league of nations. Mrs. Harding spotted it, and in frantic haste called Mr. Daugherty away from a meeting of the Ohio society. Mr. Daugherty pencilled in a substitute paragraph. Mr. Harding said he would not make the change.

With Senator Weeks, Mr. Daugherty went to the capitol, expecting President Harding to end the supremacy of the Republicans by a league endorsement. They were surprised and overjoyed when the President read Mr. Daugherty's paragraph, and they felt the party was saved.

About Fall Telegram.

Speaking of the telegram he says Fall sent to President Harding, Mr. Daugherty in his book, which will be published in a few weeks, will state:

"A. B. Fall and I could never have been chums in any political enterprise. I think at the last moment Harding began to feel the unspoken antagonism between us and hesitated to make the appointment.

"And Fall met the crisis in his usual bull-headed fashion. He sent Harding an urgent telegram asking his immediate appointment, signed my name to it without phoning me, wiring, or in any way hinting his purpose.

"This message he boldly charged to A. B. Fall.

"The appointment was made and the mine laid for an explosion about to shake the nation."

Explains Burned Records.

Mr. Daugherty describes how he took action to prevent revelation of names of important firms, headed by Democrats, who had contributed to the Republican war chest, Mr. Dixon said. Contributions of these Democrats, Mr. Dixon said, were recorded in the "Jess Smith extra" account in the Midland bank in Washington. It was to protect campaign contributors and not to conceal transactions of Mr. Daugherty that Col. Thomas W. Miller, as alien property custodian, destroyed the records, the book indicates.

FORMER WEALTHY BROKER HELD AS FAKE DRY AGENT

Leslie Loh, 35 years old, said to have been at one time a wealthy insurance broker, was held to the federal grand jury by Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday in bonds of $5,000 on charges of impersonating a government officer. A hearing will be held on Jan. 7.

The charges against Loh resulted from an alleged attempt to force Tom Anderson, proprietor of the Cozy Inn in Waukegan road at Northbrook, to hand over $300 to prevent a government raid. Anderson accuses Loh of being one of a trio of men who came to his roadhouse two weeks ago, bearing a fake search warrant.

Anderson paid the men $225, and said that he would give them the other $75 they demanded when he obtained the funds in a few days. According to Assistant United States District Attorney Edward A. Fisher, Loh was arrested by Deputy Marshal Harold Goodwin several days later. Loh was seized when he entered Anderson's place and asked for a package that had been left for him. The package was supposed to have contained the $75.

CITY GREETS 1932 AMID REVELRY; DRY ACT IGNORED

Hotels, Cafes Crowded with Merrymakers.

celebrations were held in the Stevens and Congress hotels. In Exhibition hall of the former an "Ali Oop Cellar" party was staged, with some 2,000 men and women celebrating. At midnight young 1932 slid through the room in a miniature airplane. At the Congress there were five parties, one each in the Balloon, Pompeian, Gold, Florentine, and Grill rooms, attended by 2,400. One feature there was a baby doll leaping out of a large pie at the stroke of midnight. At 5 a. m. revelers still present were served free with orange juice, toast, coffee and scrambled eggs.

More than 2,000 guests saw the new year enter at the Hotel Sherman. There were 700 in the College inn, where Ben Bernie, the "Old Maestro" was master of ceremonies. There was 900 in the Grand ball room, and 700 in the Bal Tabarin. This was a formal affair, but was virtually as tumultuous as the others.

The Planet Mars was opened as announced, despite the raid. One hundred new tables and 400 new chairs replaced the furniture removed in the early morning raid, and Miss Guinan was on hand to welcome the guests.

Other Hotels Crowded.

The Hotel La Salle, Morrison hotel and Palmer House also entertained. At the Drake 700 men and women in formal dress observed the new year. On the near north side the various night clubs blared forth a welcome. Among them were the Club Alabam, the Ambassador, the Mack, the Café de Alex, and the Rubaiyat clubs. Farther north the Edgewater Beach hotel was crowded to overflowing.

On the near south side the principal fun centers were Colosimo's, the Frolics, and the Louisianne. Farther south parties were held in the Chicago Beach, Windermere, Shoreland, and Flamingo hotels.

Few accidents marked the night of revelry. At one time four young rowdies rushed through State street crowds and knocked Mrs. Gertrude Connell, 32 years old, of 915 Crescent place to the sidewalk at Madison street. She was taken to the county hospital suffering from a possible skull fracture.

A woman and a boy, both colored, were wounded by stray bullets. Mrs. Gussie Elkins, 40 years old, of 12 West 53d street was hit in the right eye while near her home. Theodore Esty, 14, of 4837 St. Lawrence avenue received a head wound, also near his home. Mrs. Elkins' condition is serious.

Mark Ivasich, 29 years old, 3037 East 97th street, shot himself accidentally in the right hand in his home at midnight while welcoming the new year. He was treated at the South Chicago hospital.

RICH CHICAGO WIDOW NAMED IN $600,000 LOVE SUIT

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 31.—(AP)—A suit charging alienation of affections and asking $600,000 damages was filed in Superior court here today against Mrs. Nellie S. Elliott of Chicago.

The plaintiff is Mrs. Gertrude McIntyre, wife of William G. McIntyre, oil man and broker.

The suit charged Mrs. Elliott with failing to keep an agreement made five years ago in New York, where she settled a $350,000 suit by promising to have nothing more to do with McIntyre, Hiram W. Johnson Jr., attorney for Mrs. McIntyre, said.

Hotels in New York, Toronto, and New Orleans were listed in the suit as places McIntyre and Mrs. Elliott were alleged to have stayed at the same time.

McIntyre was the founder of the unlisted stock exchange of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Elliott is the widow of Percy Elliott, millionaire manufacturer of railroad supplies.

Watch Parties and Religious Services Mark Close of Year

Long before the din of New Year revelry roared over Chicago at midnight last night welcoming the year 1932, thousands had gathered in churches, homes, neighborhood halls and community theaters to make the most of the last hours of the old year. And even in institutions and hospitals inmates took note of the great occasion, because for many the greeting of "Happy New Year" carried a deeper significance than ever before.

There were others who looked to the New Year with more than the usual interest. These were the women who, although they would never think of such a thing in ordinary years, are all ready to pop the question. The ladies insist they still believe in that old fashioned idea of leap year, and at the first opportunity in 1932 plan to put shy young boy friends out of their misery.

Salvation Army Holds Services.

Watch parties were held by all the officers of the Salvation Army following a proclamation issued by Commissioner W. A. McIntyre, territorial commander. In this proclamation he bade them "pause sufficiently long from their administration of service to distressed humanity to invoke the blessings of deity upon the work of the army and pray for renewed vigor for the work of the coming year."

Watch parties and New Yeark services were held in many churches. Today will be a special feast day in the Roman Catholic church with special services in the churches of the archdiocese. At St. James church, East 29th street and South Wabash avenue, services being held especially for the returning parishioners started at 3:30 this morning. The Rev. Father James P. O'Donoghue is the pastor.

An ancient custom will be revived today when sixteen departments of the Y. M. C. A. in the neighborhoods outside the loop will be open to visitors. Programs will be given.

Hospital Patients Cheerful.

At Cook county hospital yesterday were many patients who looked toward 1932 as a really happy new year. Among these was little Joan Audrey Nelson, 5 years old, 5707 South Seeley avenue, who was almost fatally burned a year ago when her dress caught fire. By a series of operations performed by Dr. Sumner L. Koch of the hospital, the child will recover.

Joseph Dengler, 18 years old, of 9119 Houston avenue, one of the most seriously injured patients of the year, peered from behind the bandages, weights and appliances that held him together and grinned a hearty "and how." Dangler, a worker in the steel mills, was struck down and left lying on a highway near Hammond by a hit and run motorist. Dr. James Callahan took charge of him and patched up his injuries which included two broken ankles, broken left femur, both bones in the right forearm and right elbow broken, four teeth gone and bruises too numerous to mention.

For most people New Year's day will be a day of rest. Among these will be the mailmen whom Uncle Sam has given the day off. Postmaster Arthur Lueder announced yesterday that there will be no delivery by mail carriers and that the postoffice and all its stations will be closed today.

However, those who wish to start out the new year getting acquainted with natural history of the past several thousand years, will find the Field museum open all day today.

RADIO MUSICAL STRIKE AVERTED; CONTRACT SIGNED

Compromise Plan Accepted by Both Sides.

The threatened strike of radio musicians in all studios affiliated with the Chicago Broadcasters' association, called for midnight last night, was averted late yesterday and a new contract was signed to run to Feb. 1, 1933. James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, and William S. Hedges, chairman of the broadcasters' executive committee, announced the settlement of all disputed questions. Both said they were pleased with the terms of the new contract.

The major provisions of the new contract are that the minimum studio band will be increased from 10 members to 15 members, that the musicians will work six days a week instead of seven, but will continue to work 35 hours a week, and that no change will be made in the wage scale, the minimum wage remaining at $90 a week. The contract was the first written agreement ever signed by the union and broadcasters' representatives.

Ratified by the Union.

The negotiations leading up to the settlement of the strike covered a period from 10 o'clock yesterday morning to 5 o'clock last evening. Before conferring with the union executive board the broadcasters' representative held a series of meetings Wednesday night and Thursday morning at which a compromise program was reached. The program was ratified last night by the union.

The joint statement issued by Hedges and Petrillo follows:

"The strike in the broadcasting stations is off. The settlement between the Chicago Broadcasters' association and the Chicago Federation of Musicians was made upon the basis of six days per week with the same number of hours per week being consumed in six days as were formerly used in seven days. No change is made in the wages. The minimum number of men in class A stations will be increased from ten to fifteen. Everybody is happy that a strike has been averted."

Original Demands Modified.

The original demands made by the union included the increase in orchestras to 15 members, a six day, thirty hour week with no reduction in pay, and union control of monitor boards. Early in the negotiations Petrillo ceded control of the monitors to the stations. Creation of an arbitration board, as demanded by the stations, was not considered in the final contract.

YEAR BY YEAR DOBBIN SLIPS INTO OBLIVION

The passing of the horse from city streets was reflected in the annual statement of vehicle tax collections issued yesterday by City Collector Kaindl. Although every classification of automobiles except heavy trucks showed an increase over 1930, the license receipts showed a sharp drop in all three classes of horse drawn vehicles. The list for the two years follows:

	1931.	1930.
One horse vehicle	6,800	7,089
Two horse vehicle	1,066	1,644
Three horse vehicle	8	18
Motorcycles	749	988
Pass. auto., under 35 h. p.	409,878	295,301
Pass. auto., over 35 h. p.	13,908	11,615
Trucks, 1 ton or less	36,245	36,129
Trucks, over 1 ton	20,384	20,622
Demonstrators	1,508	1,817
Transfers	2,648	2,525

Collections, spurred by a drive against wheel tax evaders during the summer, rose from $5,249,744 in 1930 to $5,304,134 during the last year.

Secy. Adams Is Criticized as "Egotistical Whiffet"

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy Adams was called a "misguided and egotistical whiffet" tonight by Director of Public Safety Schofield in elevating a policeman who had been discharged from the naval reserves for wearing a naval uniform in obtaining liquor arrests.

Charles P. Lang, the officer, took his oath as sergeant shortly before midnight. He was dropped from the naval reserves several weeks ago.

"Lang was elevated to show him good police work is rewarded," Schofield said. "He was made a martyr in the navy by a misguided and egotistic whiffet."

Alpinists Fall 1,100 Feet; Rope Catches; They Hang

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Severino Veronelli and Claudio Cattaneo, two young Alpinists, met a strange death on Gringa mountain when they slipped and fell 1,100 feet. At this point their rope caught on a protruding rock and jerked them to death. The bodies were found hanging against the side of the mountain wall. It will be days before they can be recovered.

Sues Helen Twelvetrees for $11,113 Auto Injuries

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Helen Twelvetrees, motion picture star, was sued for $11,113 today by Peter C. Fowler, a painter, who demands that sum for alleged injuries received when his automobile was struck by Miss Twelvetrees' machine.

JAPANESE SHIP BATTLES 80 MILE GALE IN PACIFIC

Seattle, Dec. 31.—(AP)—A message that the Tamaho Maru, disabled Japanese freighter, with 45 men aboard, had arranged a temporary rig and was proceeding slowly through heavy seas off Aleutian islands in Alaska was received by the coast guard radio here tonight.

The Tamaho Maru, which had not been heard from for more than 30 hours, reported when sending distress calls early yesterday that its steering gear was disabled. An 80 mile gale was blowing, the vessel said, and seas were felt during its long silence whether it remained afloat.

The message telling of the ship's probable safety came from the liner Empress of Russia, and said:

"One of the Japanese ships just said Tamaha has temporary rig and making two or three knots towards Japan convoyed by Reiyo Maru."

The Empress of Russia, 300 miles away from the disabled ship, yesterday messaged that because of rough weather it was unable to steer in its direction.

JAPANESE REACH CHINCHOW GATES; ATTACK IS NEAR

Chinese Flee in Disorder as Enemy Advances.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 1.—(Friday.)—The Japanese army under Gen. Jiro Tamon advanced to within seven miles of Chinchow at 8:30 a. m. today. It is believed the attack on Chinchow will begin at once.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHINCHOW, Manchuria, Dec. 31.—The Japanese army is approaching Chinchow and is within 15 miles of the city. The stocky fur clad troops of Japan took Kowpangtze without a struggle today and began their march on the walled city without delay.

The Chinese army of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang was in full flight toward the Great Wall. One troop train after another left the city throughout the day. The Chinese, in mortal fear of the oncoming Japanese army of Gen. Jiro Tamon, forgot all military discipline and sped for China proper in disorder.

From a school building, located adjacent to the Peiping-Mukden railway tracks, I saw long trains with two locomotives in front and one in the rear, passing westward at 30 minute intervals.

Japanese Planes Overhead.

I visited the railway station and yards at dawn today and observed thousands of soldiers entraining amid scenes of indescribable confusion. The disorder grew when a number of Japanese scouting planes circled overhead.

Fearing this was a prelude to an air raid such as occurred at Kowpangtze and Tahushan yesterday, the Chinchow soldiers and civilian railway staff dashed for hastily constructed bombproof shelters.

At one time a number of laborers carying picks and shovels tried to enter the dugout simultaneously, creating a small riot. As a result nobody got inside. However, the Japanese planes did not drop bombs and the job of loading trains proceeded. Most of the trains are composed of box cars and are crowded with soldiers, civilians, and even household furniture.

A Deserted City.

Aside from the military officers who are supervising the evacuation, the only person of authority at the Chinchow railway station is the chief telegrapher, who sadly viewed his silent instruments from a vantage point at the mouth of a dugout which he constructed beneath the floor of his office.

Speaking a smattering of English, the telegrapher asked whether the Japanese are likely to kill the railway employés when they arrive. Chinese shopkeepers near the station, who fear their stores will be looted by the departing soldiers, nailed boards over their windows and doors last night.

Except for the soldiers in the street, all of whom are moving toward the railway yards, Chinchow looks like a deserted city.

Gen. Yung Chen, commander of the Chinchow forces, returned here late today from Peiping and immediately conferred with staff officers. He refused to see visitors.

Bomb Troop Trains.

The commander's return has caused considerable speculation pertaining to the future Chinese policy. Reports here are that the new Nanking régime counseled evacuation of Chinchow against the wishes of Marshal Chang, the deposed Manchurian governor, who, it is stated, desires to hang on despite the fact that the small Chinese force here obviously is not equipped to withstand the Japanese army.

The Chinese railway staff, including British technicians, are sticking on the job and operating trains despite bombing of troop trains by Japanese airplanes along the route to the Great Wall. The Chinese authorities here are convinced that the Japanese army intends to proceed south and invade Tientsin, and Peiping after the occupation of Chinchow.

Foreign military observers here are beginning to show anxiety. Japanese planes today swooped over the Chinese university buildings, where the observers are staying. The skeleton Fengtien provincial government, which has been maintained here since th Japanese occupation of Mukden last September, is still carrying on in its headquarters in one of the university buildings adjacent to the building housing the observers.

WILLIAM C. FORBES, U. S. AMBASSADOR TO JAPAN, MAY RETIRE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—William Cameron Forbes, American ambassador to Japan since June, 1930, is expected to retire shortly and return to private life. While the White House and state department denied knowledge of rumors that the diplomat already has submitted his resignation, it was said in official quarters that it had been known for some time that Ambassador Forbes probably would ask to retire when matters quieted down in Manchuria.

It is well known that when Mr. Forbes accepted the appointment as ambassador to Japan he intended to serve only for a limited time, as his desire was to retire to private life and resume his residence in Boston. He returned to this country in September to report on Japanese conditions to Secretary Stimson, the Manchurian crisis breaking shortly after he had sailed from Tokio. It was reported that he had mentioned at that time his wish to lay down his office before long, but the turn of events in the far east led to his departing after a week in conference here and sailing for Tokio. It would come as no surprise if he returned to this country in March.

Forbes Is Noncommittal.

TOKIO, Jan. 1 (Friday).—Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes, questioned in his office at the embassy this morning regarding rumors that he wishes to retire, said: "I never expected to make this a very long tour of service, but I have no desire to relinquish my post until conditions are more settled."

PRISON GUARD IS STABBED; FELONS SAVE HIS LIFE

Joseph Hessler, 50 years old, a guard in the old state penitentiary at Joliet, was in the prison hospital last night with severe stab wounds in the head and side which he suffered earlier in the day when a convict ran amuck. Hessler owes his life to other convicts who pulled off the frenzied prisoner, Tony Marino, 25 years old, a Chicago gunman serving a life sentence for murder.

While guarding the inmates at work in the chair factory, Hessler asked one of the men to close a window. When the prisoner started to carry out the order Marino halted him. Then Hessler started to the window.

Marino whipped out a knife and lunged at Hessler, the blade sinking into his side. Hessler raised his loaded cane and struck at Marino, who dodged the blow. As he struck again and broke his cane on Marino's back, the convict slashed Hessler in the head. The convicts in the factory rushed up and held Marino until other guards arrived. Marino had made the knife out of a piece of steel.

Marino started a life term in the penitentiary in 1925 for the slaying of C. W. Patterson of South Beloit, Ill., during a holdup. Steps will be taken to send him to the insane asylum at Chester.

New York Gambler Shot to Death as He Sits at Table

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Louis Levine, a small time east side gambler, was shot and killed by one of three gunmen early today. They trailed him to the Pups' Kennel yard, the headquarters of Lodge No. 1 of the Fraternal Kennel of Pups, and shot him dead as he sat at a green felt covered table with four other men and a woman. The club is situated on the ground floor of the new annex to the Hotel Victoria.

SCRATCH ON HAND FATAL.

Carlo D'Abaldo, 49 years old, 3318 West Harrison street, died in the county hospital yesterday of an infection which developed from a scratch on his left hand.

A Change Has Come

A great many people succumbed in 1931 to a disease we call "cut prices." They practiced penury past a point of intelligent economy — and suffered dearly as a result. Take printing, for instance: Some buyers of printing began sacrificing quality to get a lower price. They obtained a lower price but it meant cheaper inks, cheaper paper, poorer printing. The result was a cheaper printed product with less reader interest.

Because results are the only determinant in printing, a change has come. Buyers of printing are again demanding quality with no substitution. For thirty years we have been building our business and employing creative craftsmen — this to make our work the best that can be done. And as results beget results, today we are favored with a great and exacting clientele.

We believe it is the business of every business man to obtain the maximum results from his printed literature and that the duty of his printer is to assist him.

We will welcome an invitation to discuss your printing requirements for 1932

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

POLLYANNA TO YOU.

Some economists, noting the pathology of hard times, say that one of the signs of recovery is to be found in the utter despondency and hopelessness of the final period. Just as boom times inspire the cocksure confidence that what has happened before never can happen again, the continuance of the slump gets finally to such a mental ebb that the victims know they'll never get out of it. Then, say the economic pathologists, the thing really is bouncing on the bottom to bounce up.

Mr. Smiley Glad, Mr. McCutcheon's one time friend, and Mrs. Glad, Mrs. Pollyanna Glad, have been among the casualties of 1931. The new year will begin without them. In the general resentment of their philosophy of sweetness and light there may be evidence, however, that after all they are right. We have turned against them and insist upon sackcloth and ashes, lemon juice and quinine, which may be proof that the cold, hard substance which presses against the face is not the future but the bottom of the well.

Of late THE TRIBUNE has been publishing on this page excerpts from its columns of other years, some within your recollection and of still other years when the forefathers thought they had at last heard the crack of doom. It appears that they hadn't. It is even noted that when the panic of '73 had persuaded its victims that they were prone and expiring they were in fact about to balloon again. You have probably decided that you cannot raise anything on analogies either at the bank or the grocery store, but nevertheless the wiseacres observe that this slump is about where the one of '73 was, as to gloom and duration, when civilization decided to survive.

It is true that the new era is full of mockery now for the prophets who thought it permanent, invincible and eternal, but it is also true that there have been other depressions and that they were not permanent. You may not care to know that civil war families were in despair of the nation, but they got on with the job, although they had a panic before it and another one after it.

This is leap year. It has 366 days. Happy omen. It's up a point. Happy New Year.

THE ART OF CAPTION WRITING.

Working newspaper men have frequently had occasion to criticize schools of journalism for trying to teach the unteachable and for wasting time on subjects which any bright boy can master in two weeks of practical experience in a newspaper office. Perhaps caption writing is among the unteachable subjects and should therefore be omitted from the curriculum; but if it can be taught, the prospective newspaper workers would be greatly benefited by instruction in the art. Certainly it cannot be acquired in a couple of weeks of practice.

Caption writing is probably not as exacting as headline writing, but with that exception it is by all odds the most difficult kind of writing commonly found in newspapers. Of recent years the increased use of pictures in newspapers has led to a corresponding increase in the need for men who can look at a picture and in something between half a dozen and thirty words answer the questions which will arise in the reader's mind when he sees the picture in the paper. Anybody who thinks that is easy is invited to try. The task calls for insight into the mental processes of the reader as well as the ability to compress a lot of material into few words. Often the task is complicated by the inadequacy of the information supplied by the photographer.

Just how the caption writing art is to be taught is another matter. Certainly the essence of good caption writing is the analysis of what there is in the picture that needs explaining. The picture will tell a good deal by itself, but not enough. The picture shows John D. Rockefeller with a golf club in his left hand and a coin in his right. He is talking to a Negro boy, aged 12, who is carrying a golf bag. Two or three people standing around are laughing. Was it a dime and did the boy get it? How old is John D. and is he in good health? Where is he spending the winter? What did the old gentleman tell the boy that made every one laugh, or what did the boy tell John D.? The really skillful caption writer will manage to answer most of these questions and he will not require more than fifteen or twenty words for the job.

Caption writing is an art which on its mechanical side at least is as difficult as versifying. It has fewer competent practitioners. The incompetent will betray themselves in numerous ways, but generally by making inadequate puns. Perhaps the schools of journalism can discover a way to train caption writers. If so, they will have no difficulty finding employment.

ONCE UNCLE, NOW PAPA, SAM.

Citizens who saw that their budget would be eased if they put the thought of Christmas turkey out of their minds were advised by the federal bureau of home economics to substitute a pork shoulder for the holiday bird. The pork shoulder, sufficient for five people, could be had for fifty-three cents. With sweet potatoes and a five minute cabbage, or hominy and boiled onions, a salad of jellied tomato juice on lettuce and a suet pudding the entire cost could be kept within a dollar. For decoration the bureau suggested pine or cedar sprigs and two candles, red or white. There you are, or were. A bureaucratic Christmas dinner, hot from the source of paternal authority and benevolence, recommended as "well balanced with minerals and vitamins, proteins, fats, starch and sugar," and all within the dollar which the taxes maintaining the bureaucracy may have left you.

It might be said, by way of a sour note in this federated Christmas cheer, with sprigs of cedar or pine, that a people who require a federal government service to tell them that they can make a meal of pork shoulder and sweet potatoes, if they can get the pork shoulder and sweet potatoes, need a great deal more and probably will get it. If their individual competence is at such an ebb that they cannot select the elements of their meals without the aid as yet, advice of the federal government, they are plainly unfit to be on the loose at all and to the advice should, and in time will, be added "and consent."

Three good reasons can be found why the consent of the government should be obtained for the citizen's dinner—first, to keep him within such private expenditures as will enable him to pay his taxes; second, to provide the intelligence of which his form of government has gradually deprived him, and, third, to give him the balance of mineral and vitamins, proteins, fats, starch, and sugar to enable him to hustle for the money the government needs.

Readers of Mr. Henning's articles on the astounding penetration of the federal government into the private life and business of American citizens with whom it was never intended to have such relations have observed that he quoted Merle Thorpe, editor of the Nation's Business, who has been making a study of this strange government machine. Mr. Thorpe said of the federal "servicing," such as this of the home economics bureau: "By oral and ocular advice, citizens are told what crops to raise, how to raise them and how, with the helping hand of government, to market them. The federal government in Washington will tell you how to build a henhouse and how to train grocery clerks, how to hang curtains in the home, how to pack a schoolboy's lunch, how to predict the price of hogs by logarithms and how to prescribe castor oil for the baby."

Mr. Thorpe himself quoted Macaulay: "Nothing is so galling to a people, not broken in from birth, as a paternal or, in other words, a meddlesome government, a government which tells them what to read and say and eat and drink and wear."

That's the American government. It's going broke. Its citizens are going nutty.

NOT SINISTER; JUST SAPS.

International bankers have a substantial reputation for villainy, but they are having difficulties maintaining it. A few in the audience still hiss when these sinister figures appear on the scene, but latterly the hisses have been almost drowned out by the snickers. There seems to be a growing realization that the black mustaches grew on a horse's tail.

Our great financiers talk about foreclosing the mortgage on the old homestead, they smoke cigarets and say bah, but that is just play acting. Strip your financier of his whiskers and you will find a fellow who has a feeling for chocolate nut sundaes. His wife calls him "Baby."

Follow your villain to his hearth, follow your international banker to Europe and see him in all the gentleness of his true character. He will not foreclose. Nothing is farther from his thoughts. He pleads for the privilege of granting at least a moratorium. He insists on increasing the loan. If the debtor will only permit him to do so, he will cancel all past obligations. He can hardly be restrained from tossing the telltale papers into the fire.

A villain he is? A sap he is.

WHAT'S THE NEWS!

[Peoria Transcript.]

It is not a common practice for one newspaper to pay a compliment to another. Nevertheless, the Transcript feels impelled today to praise the editors of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for their "final" edition of Christmas day. Their choice of matter to fill the front page of that edition was not only interesting but it revealed what may be done when news editors have vision and imagination. The result was inspiring.

In one column on the front page was Washington Irving's famous description of Christmas dinner at Bracebridge hall, taken from his Sketch Book. Every lover of American literature knows the piece, and there is nothing new in either its wording or its idea. It is a beautifully written and robustly conceived piece of delicious Americana. In another column was an article, written in the vein of a special correspondent, under the name of the Rev. John Evans, religious editor of the Tribune, and purporting to come from Jerusalem, dated Dec. 24, A. D. 26, which told—to quote its headline—of "Tax Burdened Judea Saved by John Baptist." The delicacy of the subject was splendidly matched by the superb conception of the analogy in the sermon it was. In yet another column was an article written by Prof. James Henry Breasted, director of the Oriental institution of the University of Chicago, on the physical and spiritual aspects of the nativity country. These three "top heads," as they are technically called, were balanced by a story on Christmas charity in Chicago and several smaller items of Christmas news. The McCutcheon cartoon, of course, was on a Christmas subject.

It has been said that news is accelerated literature and that the newspaper is the shuttle weaving the tapestry of history on the loom of time. The news is more, however, if the implication of THE TRIBUNE'S front page may be accepted as indicative of a definition. It is what the people are thinking about. Yesterday they were thinking of Christmas. THE TRIBUNE'S front page chimed with their thoughts and—with typical courage—the editors of THE TRIBUNE ignored all the usual standards of news judgment and did not hesitate to turn their paper over to a column long quotation from a familiar author, to a professor who could write with authority upon the physical sources from which the Christmas mood sprang, and to a divine who is also a real newspaper man and could write a nonsectarian sermon in a fictitious story that burned with understanding and inspirational suggestions.

Our hats are off to THE TRIBUNE.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

BABY ON THE FLOOR.

KEEP the baby off the floor. I ask you to heed this advice. Surely, your first reaction will be: "It's just one thing after another." But before rejecting the proposal listen to the story.

A few decades ago most babies suffered from attacks of bowel trouble and many of them were carried off by these disorders. Along came the medicos with a lot of unwelcome advice: "Breast feed your babies"; "Do not feed cow's milk unless it is fresh, clean, and pasteurized"; "Be careful of the baby's food"; "Keep him from putting things in his mouth"; "Swat the fly." Each bit of advice ran contrary to what seemed the natural thing to do, or to something that was a custom or a habit that was convenient. Each bad practice had its friends. Even the fly had its advocates—a devil's advocate we might say.

However, the doctors insisted on being a nuisance and, finally, the public took heed. We adapted new customs and habits—a new way of looking at things. In consequence, the baby summer death rate is low, and summer diarrheas are now matters of secondary importance. The great dangers in a young child's life now are pneumonia, bronchitis, and common cold. We will do something to lessen this danger if we will keep babies and other young children off the floor.

The floor is always cold. Even in the most comfortable house the floor is a cold place in winter. The strong, cold drafts flow along the floor. Futhermore, the cleanest floors are dirty. Anything the child picks up from the floor is dirty. Of course, whatever is picked up by a young child goes straightway to the mouth. Adults don't sleep on the floor or sit there, because they know that doing so would be uncomfortable and not healthful. Adults do not pick things from the floor and put them in their mouths. We express our opinions on the unattainable in household cleanliness by saying: "The floors were so clean you could eat off them." Why should parents permit tender children to do what they know adults could not stand?

How are babies to be kept off the floor and still allowed to play? Here are some suggestions:

Put a protecting cloth on the bed and let the baby play there.

Devise a frame for settees and sofas that the baby may play on these without falling off.

Devise playing pens with guards and with floors four to six inches above the room floor, the principle being that used when men fashioned footstools for adult comfort.

CATS AND BABIES.

C. S. O. writes: In your column recently a man asks if a cat will suck the breath from a baby. You say it will not. But, in effect, it does.

Your inquirer had it right that the animal may smother the baby. There isn't much difference between smothering and sucking the breath, so-called. He is wrong, however, about the action of the cat being accidental. While a baby is "mewling and puking in its mother's arms" and drooling [sans teeth] its lips are likely to be sour or sweet with milk or vomit, or other garbage not wiped off. A cat that is permitted near the baby, and is not watched, is likely to jump upon the baby's frame and lick the baby's face for the stuff that is on it. The baby may start to cry, opening its mouth, and the cat will sometimes insert its tongue in the baby's mouth and even draw the baby's lips into its own mouth. This does not have to continue long to seriously injure or kill the baby. I have seen babies rescued from cats in the nick of time.

Now, I am not against cats, but I am in favor of babies and birds, and I think all cats ought to be watched.

PAMPHLETS ON DISEASE.

H. F. writes: Where can one obtain booklets or information on venereal diseases and cures?

REPLY.

From the United States public health service, Washington, D. C. Most of the state and the better organized local health departments have such booklets.

HAVE DECREE MODIFIED.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I was divorced three years ago and was compelled to pay $10 a week for the education of a boy. Said boy finished his high school education in 1930 and is now working. I was told by a lawyer that I didn't have to pay any more now, but I voluntarily agreed to pay until the boy is 18. 1. Is this right? 2. Can I be compelled to pay with an income of less than $20 a week? K. R.

1. We see no objection to your voluntary agreement if that is what you mean to ask.

2. Your obligation depends upon the wording of the decree. If you feel that your circumstances warrant a change in decree you should present those facts in court in support of an application to have the decree modified.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CERTIFIED CHECKS.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—When and why did Gov. Emmerson veto that law which made certified and cashier checks preferred claims? Was he afraid the poor people would get too much of their own savings out of closed banks? S. R.

Presumably he did it because there is no good reason for preferring the ordinary holder of a cashier's check ahead of other ordinary creditors of the bank. The money that you would like to see paid to the holders of certified checks and cashiers' checks would be taken away from other creditors. If you wish to see the matter through further, try writing to the secretary of state for a copy of the governor's message.

REPATRIATING ALIENS.

Chicago, Dec. 19.—[Friend of the People.]—I would like to know if the United States government is giving free transportation to unemployed aliens who wish to go to their own country [England and Irish Free State]. When and where do you apply? K. M.

In reply to this inquiry as to whether the United States government is repatriating aliens to their native country, you are informed that aliens who have entered the United States and have resided therein for a period of less than three years and who are without funds and employment are being repatriated to their native countries.

S. D. SMITH,
District Director of Immigration.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

JANUARY FIRST, HAPPY NEW YEAR! You must be home from the New Year's eve party by this time and prepared to sit down and look 1932 right square in the face. Bring the pitcher of ice water in and put it on the table right by you so that you won't have to be getting up and running out to the icebox every few minutes. It must have been a nice party; you look as though you had been pulled through a knot hole. Well, anyhow, here is 1932. What are you going to do about it? To tell the truth, there isn't much that anybody can do about it. A commission might be appointed down in Washington to take charge of 1932 and make him behave himself, but, then, the commission wouldn't report until 1942 or '52, if then, and naturally that would be a little late to have any real, lasting value. What are you going to do about 1932? Listen, dearie, or lissen (in the American language), you don't need to do anything. Not a thing. Frolicsome 1932 will attend to all the details. All we mortals have to do is to crowd up as near to the ringside as possible and watch the show. We hope it's going to be good and keep us laughing. If it's a washout we've got to stay and watch the thing anyhow. This is a show in which you can't walk out or get your money back. Gosh! let's hope it's going to be good!

LINES ANENT THE NEW YEAR.

Let's carry on.
The heavens may fall anon,
But, if the universe should crash
And all things go to smash,
Money in gilt-edged stocks
And gold hid in old socks
Alike will prove but dross—
A total loss—
Let foolish fantasies be gone:
Let's carry on.

Let's carry on,
Nor wait the coming dawn.
Shall men who dare defy
The terrors of the sky,
Who, in their infancy,
Conquered the raging sea,
Shrink, now, from shadows, cowering before
A sheep in wolf skin bleating at the door?
Let's still be men of brains and brawn—
Let's carry on.

Let's carry on:
Let's build anew upon
The solid rock of faith.
There's but one death,
And life a thousandfold invites
With glorious days and glamorous nights,
With years on years that still unfold
All the fair promises of old;
Still beckons ancient Avalon—
Let's carry on.

EOLUS.

OWING TO CIRCUMSTANCES over which we had not the least control we were forced to call off the annual trip of the water wagon as the happy new year began this morning. Pursuant to our usual custom, the wagon was all ready and backed up to the curb at the dock at the Water Tower on the Boul Mich. The band was playing "Little Drops of Water," as scheduled, and we looked forward to a most prosperous and memorable voyage. Just before midnight the crowd began to arrive, most of them, we fear, from speakeasies. A riot ensued to get seats on the wagon and we soon found that we didn't need a water wagon at all; what we wanted was a patrol wagon. And not merely one but twenty. The water wagon was completely destroyed by the maddened rush of the customers, and so the trip had to be given up. We shall not run the water wagon again until something is done in this country to rope, throw, and hog tie the Demon Rum. Write to your congressman today.

MERCY! what little Finland did to its noble experiment after thirteen years' tryout is simply nobody's business. But the funny part as far as we're concerned over here in the U. S. A. is yet to come. It will be the explanations by the dear old drys of how it happened. Be sure and wait for this; it's going to be good.

CONTRACT BRIDGE, as demonstrated in the great Culbertson-Lenz match in New York, reveals that the game develops exactness, directness, and decisiveness and other sterling qualities. For instance, when Mr. Culbertson objected to the presence of Sir Derrick Werhner as an onlooker he said to him, "Leave the room with your contemptible English accent." Now, a person without the discipline and culture which bridge whist gives might have simply said to Sir Derrick, "Leave the room," and Sir Derrick would have gone away and left his English accent behind, and the English accent was what Mr. Culbertson especially objected to. But having a bridge whist mind, he did not forget even in the excitement of the moment to tell Sir Derrick to leave the room, but to be very sure and take his contemptible English accent right along with him. A contemptible English accent left lying around the room would be most annoying; somebody might fall over it and break a leg. And as for exactness and lack of ambiguity instilled in its devotees by bridge whist witness Mr. Culbertson's further remark to Sir Derrick: "You big yellow beefsteak, I'll bet $500 you haven't got $2,000." You see, Mr. Culbertson did not merely call Sir Derrick a beefsteak, he specified the kind; not brown or red or white, but yellow. And, of course, it took a great load off Sir Derrick's mind to know just exactly what kind of beefsteak he was.

GRACE BEFORE MEALS.

I wish that I could like the proper people,
With principles and lots of ready cash,
Then I might sit down to wine and filet mignon
Instead of thanking God for gin and hash!

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

This nation has had other serious financial depressions, as the following excerpts from The Tribune files reveal. Each of these periods of hard times has been followed by periods of great prosperity.

1873.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 2.—There was a run here on the First National bank which lasted several hours. The bank, in accordance with an agreement made between the banks, declined to pay currency in sums over $100.

ST. LOUIS.—The banks have all received their clearing house certificates The people are all trying to get accustomed to the certified checks, but it is hard work. The certificates are of no avail except for strictly local business and even in that their value as a circulating medium is limited.

DUBUQUE.—Stockholders of the Merchants' National bank adopted resolutions to place the bank in liquidation. The action followed the resignation of Mr. Sheffield as president.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—At a meeting of unemployed in the various shops in this city, W. F. Johnson of the trades and labor assembly claimed 2,000 men are out of employment here and that the cause of the hard times throughout the country is due to the uncertainty resultant from the vacillating policy of the Democratic party.

1907.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The Rock Island railroad system laid off 2,500 men from its construction and track forces. It was rumored that the Pennsylvania and the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroads in the east were about to lay off a large number of men—the Pennsylvania, between 20,000 and 30,000—but this was denied by officials.

1913.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Army of idle in city grows. The city's problem of housing and feeding homeless men grows greater.

1921.

Jan. 17.—The Inland Steel company put a wage reduction of 17 per cent and upward into effect yesterday at its plant at Indiana Harbor.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 1, 1916.

CHICAGO.—In a $600,000 tidal wave of champagne, old 1915 passed into history and young 1916 got on the job, treading joy water in a mild recovery from the "tightwad" merry-making of a year ago. The "lid" lost hinges, lock and everything else in the cafés as the merrymaking thousands welcomed the new year until late hours this morning.

LONDON.—It is reported from German sources that Emperor William has summoned a great war council and a similar naval council to be held on his birthday, Jan. 27, in Berlin. The war council will be attended by the crown prince, Field Marshals von Hindenburg, von Mackensen and Lyman von Sanders, Count Zeppelin, Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, the duke of Württemberg, and other leading generals.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 1, 1902.

CHICAGO.—Crowds blew the lining out of their lungs helping Chicago pay its respects to the year 1902. With immense tin horns and little tin horns, and squawkers and bells and drums, enthusiastic men and women thronged the downtown streets until the early hours this morning. The restaurants, cafés and hotels were jammed. Not a seat was to be had in any of the downtown places.

CHICAGO.—First in importance in the new year's social events today is the wedding of Miss Margaret Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Woodward Potter, and John D. Black, which will be celebrated in the Potter home this afternoon. The ceremony will be performed by Dr. M. W. Stryker, assisted by Dr. Notman of the Fourth Presbyterian church. A reception will follow.

GOVERNMENT PAY.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—In your issue of Dec. 26 Mr. Arthur Sears Henning submits a very comprehensive article which suggests curtailments in many of the bureaus and activities now maintained by our government and revisions of salaries of civil services officers and employés as solutions for the problem of the national treasury deficit.

In fairness to postoffice employés and those of the civil service in all other divisions of the federal service, the impression conveyed in Mr. Henning's review of this subject should be corrected. The pay of government workers was not raised during the war period. On the contrary, there were bonus provisions for the civil service group effective for from six to ten years and which were admittedly inadequate for the existing cost of living during these periods.

In 1921 the congress passed a reclassification salary bill for the postoffice which the leaders in the house and senate stated was insufficient, but was based upon the theory that there would be a recession in the cost of necessities which failed to materialize to any extent until very recently.

The needs of the postal employés for living wages were again recognized by additional increases in 1925, while those of other departments were not readjusted until about four years later. While present day senators and congressmen are advocating general salary reductions for all federal officers and employés it should be of interest to the public to know that the average pay of government civil service employés is still maintained at a moderate figure, which in many instances is lamentably low, and we naturally and consistently maintain that to attempt to restore national prosperity by proposed wage reductions is unjust and economically unsound.

GEORGE L. MCDONALD,
Secretary, Chicago Branch, National Association of Letter Carriers.

BRIDAL WREATH.

Oakville, Ia., Dec. 27.—Today I was walking in our garden and found a bridal wreath blossom. This plant always blooms in the spring in the month of May. As we came out of the church I saw a dandelion in full bloom. Oakville, Ia., is located 22 miles north of Burlington, Ia.

DOROTHY CATHERINE HILLER.

THE ENGINEER—AND WHO ELSE!

Riverside, Ill., Dec. 29.—In your issue of Dec. 29 I read of the retirement of Engineer John Draney of the Lackawanna road, who 20 years ago made that run across New York state with the late Dr. Janeway, who was summoned to the bedside of the late President McKinley. It gives me a pain in the neck when I read of those guys getting all the credit for a fast run. What about the fireman in the cab, throwing coal by the ton, keeping up the water in the glass, and the steam? What about the train inspector, seeing that all hose couplings, air and steam, are O. K. and air brakes and wheels? What about the train dispatcher, who must see that everything is out of this engineer's way so he can slide along on the rails with his eyes closed?

There is another guy who has a little to do with fast runs. I am one of them. It is the lowly towerman that I am speaking of. He has to keep the signal boards cleared for this engineer so he can slide under them, and God help him if he doesn't. If he is 10 seconds late in clearing his boards he is reported by that engineer at his first stop for holding back the board 5 minutes. I'll leave that to any towerman. So let us give credit to all concerned in that memorable run.

FRED PALADEAU,
Burlington Towerman.

THE OCTOPUS.

Washington, Ia., Dec. 28.—It is indeed gratifying to note your campaign against the matter of federal extravagance. It is receiving widespread comment.

Every thinking citizen of the United States is more or less familiar with these facts, but is helpless in knowing how to go about it to correct them. It may be too late to save this country from ruin, but if there is any way of dislodging this octopus it is through the public press, and I hope your efforts will rapidly gain momentum and accomplish what our whole country is praying for. The matter of raising two or three billion dollars in additional taxes is not so disheartening, but when we realize that the money so raised is being squandered so recklessly it makes the situation seem hopeless.

H. B. KNIGHT.
Vice President, Washington National Bank.

BLAMES EUROPE FOR POSTPONING U. S. PROSPERITY

Lamont Thinks Worst Is Now Over.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Had it not been for the foreign financial crisis which came to a head in central Europe in the early summer, the process of economic recovery in the United States would now be nearly a year old, said Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont today in a statement summing up the events of the past twelve months.

Crediting President Hoover with having gone to Europe's rescue, and in phrases interpreted as being aimed primarily at France, Secretary Lamont blamed the lack of coöperation in Europe for having vitiated the effect of the agreements brought about through the President's initiative.

He listed the many unfavorable indices, showing the gravity of the domestic situation, but said that he believed that the bottom had at last been reached. And he closed by adding to the official record of optimistic predictions, his hope that an upturn was in sight.

Foreign Trade Decreases.

Coincident with Mr. Lamont's statement came the publication of a review of the year by Frederick M. Feiker, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, showing that during 1931 exports dropped $1,418,000,000 and imports $961,000,000, or a total of $2,379,000,000, below their 1930 values.

"Business has continued under the influence of the world-wide economic depression, which has deepened and broadened in the last year chiefly because of foreign influences," said Secretary Lamont. "Most of our domestic difficulties could have been corrected prior to this time had it not been for the destructive effect upon our own economy of a series of financial crises abroad.

"In the early months of the year we made distinct recuperative progress resulting in an upturn of more than seasonal proportions in industrial output, accompanied by increased employment and improvement in security markets. Gains in the principal industries producing consumers' goods were pronounced, and these were subsequently held to a greater extent than were those in the heavy industries.

Halted by European Crisis.

"This expansive movement, however, was stopped by the crisis which developed in central Europe in May and June. That crisis created apprehension and fear in the United States which resulted in currency withdrawals and bank failures, besides reversing the upward trend of industry and commerce."

Then came, Mr. Lamont said, President Hoover's rescue effort by way of the moratorium.

"The favorable effect of these agreements upon world business," he explained, "were vitiated by lack of coöperation in Europe which resulted in the crisis culminating in September in the suspension of gold payments by Great Britain and later by other European countries."

Mr. Lamont detailed the corrective measures undertaken by the administration, then continued:

"Commodity prices in the United States have shown encouraging steadiness during the last few months. The rapid decline of wholesale prices since 1929, which had extended to 29 per cent, was halted in June. Since then we have had a sawtooth movement, with the general index varying less than 3 per cent, which suggests that the force of the decline has been spent.

Outlook Encouraging.

"With prices practically at 1913 levels the outlook now appears more encouraging than at any time since the acute weakness developed two years ago. Current price levels for raw materials are acting positively to reduce production induced by war demands and to bring about a better balance between production and consumption."

Mr. Lamont said that recent estimates placed unemployment in the United States at about 5 per cent of the population, compared with 6 per cent in Great Britain and nearly 8 per cent in Germany.

"On the whole," he concluded, "evidences are accumulating that liquidation has largely run its course and that the natural upbuilding forces are beginning to take hold. The very extent and nature of the decline have forced drastic readjustments which are serving as correctives and are aiding in the restoration of equilibrium.

"Had it not been for the repeated shocks from abroad the United States would have already experienced substantial improvement. The establishment of the National Credit corporation and the proposal by the President of other measures for financial relief have already tended to check needless liquidation and to arrest hoarding. Prompt enactment of these latter proposals by congress will strengthen basic elements of our economic structure, will enable us to withstand any possible additional shocks from Europe, and will put us in a position to begin our own independent economic recovery.

"Present difficulties, formidable as they may be, are temporary, and the recuperative powers of our country, stimulated by this constructive program, are sufficient to contribute in large measure to the restoration of world prosperity."

The report given out by Mr. Feiker showed that, while the combined value of exports and imports was reduced by approximately 30 per cent, the combined decline in the physical value of each was only half that amount.

"Notwithstanding the general nature of the decline," he said, "it is of particular interest to note that exports of cotton, which is our most important export commodity, declined in quantity less than 2 per cent, while in the case of numerous other important items, the quantity of exports was actually larger than in 1930, and, in many cases, as large as in 1929."

As compared with the high levels of 1929, the quantity of exports was 35 per cent lower and that of imports 25 per cent lower in 1931.

BE FRIENDS AND NOT SWEETHEARTS, WORD TO MARRIED COUPLES

Married couples should try to be the best of friends and not sweethearts. This was the New Year's resolution suggested for husbands and wives by Judge Joseph A. Graber in the court of domestic relations yesterday.

"Married people should not try to remain sweethearts," said Judge Graber. "The romance and ardor of a love affair should not be expected to continue through a married life.

"Husbands should have the same loyalty for their wives as for their friends. The wife should be the best and truest friend and companion of all. She should overlook her husband's faults and try to please him at all times. Always remember it takes two to make a quarrel."

Judge Graber has presided in the domestic relations court since July.

MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY

PATERNAL FARM 'AID' BIG DRAIN ON UNCLE SAM

Annual Cost Now Over Third of Billion.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The oldest and largest paternalistic establishment in the federal government is the department of agriculture, with nearly 28,000 employes, which is costing the taxpayers this year upward of 333 millions of dollars.

Upon the bewildering multitude of services purporting to benefit farmers which constitutes this department, the government expends more money than upon any administrative agency, except the army and navy. And the department of agriculture expenditures are in addition to the 500 million dollar revolving fund of the two million dollar federal farm board for aiding and controlling the marketing of farm products.

Favored Private Financing.

George Washington made the first suggestion of a board to promote agriculture, though he contemplated private financing of such agency, for he was disposed to agree with Alexander Hamilton that a pecuniary grant by the central government for this purpose would be unconstitutional.

The history of the department since its modest beginning in 1862 has been one of constantly accelerating expansion of paternalistic, subventive and regulatory activities, ostensibly for the aid and protection of the interests of farmers.

Some of the services and subsidies were sought by the farmers, particularly those in backward states who had found how easy it was to get generous Uncle Sam to dispense favaros at the expense of the more prosperous states. Others, like the political army of county agents to promote scientific agriculture, were created through the influence of politicians, with an eye on the farm vote.

Congress Is Bamboozled.

The theory advanced in attempted justification of the vast expenditures on aids to farmers is that agriculture is the basic industry of the country and that anything which benefits agriculture rebounds to the benefit of the country. It is notorious, however, that under cover of this theory congress has been bamboozled into squandering millions of dollars annually on farm racketeering in the department of agriculture.

The hearings of the appropriations committees of congress record the numerous raids on the treasury in the name of scientific experimentation in aid of agriculture, the only tangible result of which was more and bigger jobs for scientists and other "experts."

Where the Money Goes.

Where the department's third of a billion dollars goes is shown in the following table, comparing actual expenditures for the fiscal year 1931 with the estimated expenditures for 1932.

The director of information reports that during the last fiscal year the department distributed nearly 32,000,000 copies of government publications for farmers, of which 12,446,528 were farmers' bulletins, 2,058,528 were leaflets and 6,000,000 were lists of publications.

Largest Publicity Bureau.

The department maintains the largest publicity establishment in the world. The office of information, which costs $420,961 this year, is manned by 200 employes engaged in the dissemination of publicity by means of publications, press, radio and mimeographed leaflets. The printing and binding of the departmental publications cost one million dollars a year. These items are exclusive of the cost of preparation of the publications and other literature by the thousands of scientists and other specialists who have built up an agricultural laboratory without a rival in any land.

Upon this institution, so lavishly supported by American taxpayers, other countries lean heavily for free advice on their own agricultural problems. More than 300,000 publications were mailed at our expense to other countries last year.

Millions of Letters Sent.

In addition to its own publications, th department "made its information available," says the director of information, "by giving to the press of the country more than 3,000 news and interpretative articles, by furnishing speakers or manuscripts daily to over 300 radio stations in all parts of the country, by cooperating with special writers, correspondents, and others, by having representatives make personal addresses, by answering several million letters, supplying lectures to colleges and universities, and reaching farmers direct through the extension service."

And bigger and better publicity operations are promised for the future—that is, of course, if the appropriations are forthcoming. It turns out, incidentally, that the department now conceives itself to be a great institution for adult education, which accounts for its correspondence school instruction on a bewildering range of subjects from "the extinct toothed birds of North America" to the artistic arrangement of furniture.

They're Educating Adults.

"The department," says the information director, "is, fundamentally, a great educational institution, and the knowledge it develops must be widely and quickly disseminated if it is to make its full contribution to the social and economic progress of the country. Adult education was all but neglected until recent years. Today no other institutions or group of institutions anywhere play so vital and effective a rôle in adult education as do the state agricultural colleges and the United States department of agriculture.

"From the very beginning, congress has placed the dissemination of knowledge on a par with the acquisition of knowledge as functions of the department. Only to the extent that the useful information developed by agricultural scientists is given to those who can apply it, is the institution justified. In agriculture there was never a time when need for adult education was so imperative as it is now. We may suffer some slight delay in teaching better breeding practices or improved fertilizer practices, but if economic information is to be of any value at all it must have an almost instantaneous and widespread distribution. Consequently, with the very willing coöperation of most of the newspaper editors in the country, the department plans to increase its agricultural information efforts."

U. S. FARM INCOME IS NEARLY 7 BILLIONS, DECREASE FOR YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The total farm income in the United States during 1931 was estimated today at $6,920,000,000 by the department of agriculture. This figure, the department said, represented a decrease of 26 per cent from the $9,300,000,000 income of a year ago and a decrease of 42 per cent from the income of 1929.

The department's estimate included the value of farm products sold and farm products consumed in the farm home.

The total value of all crops produced during the past year was estimated by the department at $4,123,000,000, a decrease of nearly two billions from the value of 1930 crops.

The department also estimated the farm mortgage debt in the United States as of Jan. 1, 1930, at $9,241,000,000, a decline of 2.4 per cent from the peak of $9,468,000,000 reached in 1928.

"The substantial amounts of the decrease in debt," the department said, "have been due to foreclosure of mortgaged farms and to scaling down of loans as a condition of renewals."

DOCTOR, 60, GETS LICENSE HERE TO WED SECRETARY

Dr. H. C. Hill, an oculist of Streator, father of Harry Hill who fofir years ago was charged with the murder of his mother, obtained a license in Chicago yesterday to wed Mrs. Angela Lewis, also of Streator. It was learned in Streator that the couple were to be married immediately after getting the license.

Dr. Hill gave his age as 60 and Mrs. Lewis as 30. Mrs. Lewis, who is employed by Dr. Hill as his office secretary, won a divorce six months ago from William J. Lewis.

The body of Dr. Hill's former wife, Mrs. Eliza A. Hill, was found buried in the basement of her Streator home in 1927 and her son, Harry, was charged with slaying her. At the trial in Ottawa in the spring of 1928 the jury disagreed and the case was never reopened. Dr. Hill, who had previously divorced Mrs. Hill, went to the defense of his son.

LAKE COUNTY NEARLY HITS WEDDING RECORD

The 1931 marriage depression failed to include Lake county, the annual report of County Clerk Lew A. Hendee revealed last night.

During the last twelve month period, 5,206 marriage licenses were issued, as against 4,912 for 1930, an increase of 294. The 1931 figure was only 114 less than the all time Lake county record established in 1929, the last boom year. As usual, June was the banner month, with 624 licenses being issued. Residents of every state in the Union were married in Lake county, Clerk Hendee pointed out.

Even the birth rate failed to depreciate with the economic trend, records showed. There were 1,704 births, as against 1,069 deaths, a gainful margin of 635.

DEFENSE ASKS JUDGE TO STOP NELSON TRIAL

Lawyers Declare Court Has No Jurisdiction.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Attorneys for State Auditor Oscar Nelson moved yesterday to bring an end to the auditor's trial on a charge of misfeasance in office. They advanced legal arguments which they asserted should prove the court without jurisdiction to try Mr. Nelson and would bar the presentation of any further evidence.

R. K. WALSH.
[Tribune Photo.]

Judge Edward Shurtleff, presiding over the trial in the courthouse at Woodstock, announced he would hear arguments Monday morning on the questions raised. The jurors were permitted to go to their homes over the New Year holiday.

Farce, Defense Lawyer Says.

Defense Attorney R. K. Welsh declared the defense sought to put an end to the trial "because it has developed into a farce." He said the state has been given two weeks to present its evidence; that not a scintilla of proof against Mr. Nelson has been shown, and that on the contrary the state's own witnesses have proved "Mr. Nelson's hands are clean."

"The financial welfare of the whole state of Illinois is being imperiled by the dragging on of this case," said Defense Attorney David R. Joslyn, in addressing the court.

"The insidious withdrawals of money from banks all over the state, inspired by this foolish prosecution, is too serious a problem for us to sit by idle and let this go on."

Prosecutor Makes Reply.

State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county, chief prosecutor in the case, charged the defense with making a desperate effort to halt the trial before the real proof against the state auditor is produced.

"It is ridiculous and false for the defense to state that we have not produced proof of Mr. Nelson's guilt, and to say that his hands are clean," Col. Smith said.

"We have been laying a groundwork for our case against the auditor, and because of the obstructive tactics of the defense in objecting to every word and item of proof we have offered we have been compelled to spend four or five times as much time in laying that groundwork as we would if the defense were not raising legal bars at every turn and taking every advantage of all the tricks of the law."

Brings Trial to a Pause.

Defense Attorney Joslyn brought the trial to a sudden pause when he objected to the testimony of Miss Marie De Long, secretary-treasurer of the Gold Medal Products company of Waukegan, one of a long string of witnesses called to prove that assets of the Waukegan State bank were bad to such a degree in September, 1930, that the bank was insolvent and should have been closed by Mr. Nelson.

The state charges that Mr. Nelson's failure to close the bank until June, 1931, and the alleged dissipation of assets during the intervening nine months, constitute misfeasance in office. Mr. Joslyn said he wanted to be heard as to the propriety of the state introducing further testimony, and made his satement about financial conditions in the state being jeopardized.

Sets Arguments for Monday.

Judge Shurtleff said he would hear the arguments, but finally allowed the hearing to go over until Monday.

Meanwhile Mr. Joslyn had stated that his intention is to ask that the evidence be stopped on several grounds. The first and major point, he said, is based on a claim that the statute under which Mr. Nelson is being tried providing for a fine of $10,000 and possible removal from office for public officials found guilty of misfeasance or malfeasance, cannot be raised against an officer of the state because under the Illinois constitution only the legislature may remove state officers, and that by impeachment proceedings.

Another point which the defense expects to raise is that even if the statute were valid against a state officer, the jurisdiction could lie only in Sangamon county where the principal office of the state auditor, in Springfield, is situated. The defense asserts that if venue for the offense charged lay in Lake county, then any state's attorney or grand jury in any of the 101 counties of the state might proceed against the state auditor any time a bank closed.

Smith Fights Defense Move.

State's Attorney Smith sought to convince the judge that all the points now raised by the defense had been raised before in a motion to quash the indictment, and that the court had overruled that motion.

"O, no," Judge Shurtleff replied, adding: "I have no recollection of ever passing on the question of impeachment being the proper action in this case."

State's Attorney Smith later produced a brief filed by the defense in which the impeachment question was raised on the motion to quash, as well as all the other points raised in the new move yesterday.

There were reports that the several lawyers on the defense staff were not unanimous in approving the step taken by Mr. Joslyn yesterday, and that the move may be abandoned before court reconvenes Monday morning. These reports were denied by the defense lawyers.

$125,000,000 U.S. LAND BANK BILL O. K.'D BY SENATE COMMITTEE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The federal land bank system will be provided with $125,000,000 additional capital and farmers in arrears in meeting the payments on their loans will be granted a five year period of grace under the bill which today received the approval of a senate banking subcommittee.

In its original form, in which it provided for $100,000,000 in additional capital, the measure was recommended to congress in President Hoover's annual message.

It was passed by the house with the addition of the farmers' "moratorium" provision, which authorizes land banks to extend the payment of installments on loans to farmers during a maximum period of five years.

Coming before the senate subcommittee, the projected additional capitalization was increased $25,000,000.

The subcommittee's action in allowing the "moratoroum" clause to remain in the bill was taken despite the objections of four heads of western federal land banks, who appeared before the committee today. The witnesses were John Fields, Wichita, Kas.; D. P. Hogan, Omaha, Neb.; Wood Netherland, St. Louis, Mo., and M. H. Gossett, Houston, Tex.

All four argued that the retention of the clause would have an unfortunate psychological effect on farmer borrowers. Already, they explained, the land banks were granting extensions in deserving cases, and they produced letters to show that passage of the bill was being anticipated by borrowers, some of whom were not in such a state of distress as to require leniency, but who would expect it if the measure passed.

DIRECTOR HELD SEVERAL HOURS IN BANK PROBE

Freed on Pledge to Give Answer on Debt.

William A. Burnette, former director of the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, was held in the custody of a bailiff for several hours yesterday after alleged evasive replies to questions put by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg.

Burnette, according to testimony, was worth $3,000,000 a year and a half ago. He told the judge he was unable to pay anything on a $92,000 debt he owes the bank, which closed last June. Judge Feinberg is attempting to disclose hidden assets to the bank receiver for the benefit of the depositors. Deposits totaled $5,500,000 when the bank closed.

Weeps After Conference.

Burnette was finally released and told to return next Monday with his wife. The witness was weeping when he emerged from the judge's chambers after a lengthy talk with the judge. Judge Feinberg advised him, he said, that he and his wife should "strip themselves of all their assets to aid the starving bank depositors." Burnette declared he would have an answer for the judge next Monday.

Burnette lives at 2749 Euclid Park place, Evanston, and is president of the Cookware Corporation of America, 1105 Lawrence avenue. When questioned concerning his ability to pay his $92,000 debt, Burnette declared that his wife now holds all his property. He has given her title to their home, title to a 600 acre farm near Hartford, Mich., and title to all his stock in the Cookware corporation, he said.

"Are you going to hide behind your wife's skirts?" the judge inquired.

Wants to Stage Comeback.

"I did what I could in order that I might stage a comeback," the witness replied. This statement was followed by the judge's order to the bailiff to take Burnette into custody.

Two bank debtors, who previously asserted an inability to pay anything, agreed to turn over certain assets. Samuel Keller, indebted for $3,822, assigned the $125 a month rental to a $30,000 building to the receiver. George J. McCabe, indebted for $29,000, turned over to the receiver a half interest in property at Fullerton and Long avenues, title to a 31 apartment building, and $40,000 in life insurance on which he has already borrowed.

State's Attorney Swanson yesterday announced that as a result of the activities of his office debtors to the closed Citizens Trust and Savings bank have promised to pay between $30,000 and $95,000 on amounts they owe the bank. Thirty-eight debtors to the bank have been examined by Mr. Swanson and his assistant, Henry Ayers.

PARENTS KEEP SON IN DUNGEON FOR TEN YEARS

Imprisoned in Cage on Minnesota Farm.

Holdingford, Minn., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Nearly blind after being locked in a dark basement cage by his parents for 10 years, Alex Litchy, 34 years old, was under medical care late today while County Attorney James J. Quigley at St. Cloud considered the possibility of bringing charges against the parents.

Mrs. Emma Moynihan, secretary of the Stearns county welfare board, discovered Litchy and freed him.

Committed to Asylum.

Litchy was ordered committed to the state insane hospital at Fergus Falls after a hearing before Judge J. B. Himsl. The cage in which Litchy was kept prisoner is in the farm home of his parents, near here. It is constructed of boards running from the basement floor to the ceiling and has no windows. The only time light trickled into the place was when the family brought meals to the prisoner.

Litchy's parents have been thrusting his food to him through a crack in the door. He had not left the cage once in 10 years or spoken for four.

Girl Reveals Imprisonment.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Litchey, said their son had been confined in the state hospital for the insane three years. They objected to paying $10 a month to keep him in the asylum, they told Judge Himsl. For that reason, they took him from the asylum and kept him in the cage at their home.

Mrs. Moynihan learned of the imprisoned man from a girl who formerly worked at the Litchy home. The Litchys caused the girl to be placed in the school for girls at Sauk Center, according to Mrs. Moynihan, and the girl told the welfare worker about the Litchys' son while Mrs. Moynihan was taking her to the school.

WAR DECLARED BY CERMAK ON TICKET SCALPERS

Threatens Theaters with Loss of Licenses.

War upon ticket scalpers was declared yesterday by Mayor Cermak. He ordered the police to enforce strictly the city ordinance prohibiting the sale of theater tickets for more more than box office prices. Amusement place licenses for 1932 will not be issued to theaters which do business with ticket brokers who sell tickets at greatly advanced prices, the mayor asserted.

Moreover, the mayor announced, a policeman will be stationed in each ticket agency to see that the ordinance is not violated. A person entering a ticket 'scalper's office may purchase tickets, but the policeman will see that he does not pay more than the price of the tickets as printed upon the pasteboards.

Warns Theater Owners.

"I have received many complaints of ticket scalping in the last few months," declared the mayor. "I am issuing a warning to theater owners and managers that they will not be issued licenses in 1932 if they transact business with the scalpers. The present ordinance is powerful enough to curb ticket scalping, but no attempt has been made to enforce it."

The mayor's order does not extend to agencies operating in hotel lobbies. These agencies, controlled mainly by the Couthoui firm, usually charge 50 cents per ticket in excess of the face value of the ticket. This extra charge is based upon the extra service afforded hotel guests in providing the tickets. The mayor said that this service would not be interfered with because visitors to Chicago find it a convenience in obtaining admission to theaters here.

Cites High Prices Paid.

"The 'hole in the wall' agencies have been exceeding their privileges," the mayor said. "It has been common in the past for them to charge as much as $30 a pair for tickets to current shows. Such a practice must be stopped."

The present ordinance prohibits the sale of tickets for more than the prices printed upon them and provides a $50 fine for each offense.

Slays Five in His Family, Burns Home, Ends Life

OVIEDO, Spain, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Ramon De La Fuente today shot and killed his father, his sister, his brother-in-law and two nieces, 18 and 16, burned the home over their bodies and committed suicide. Two small children escaped in a hail of bullets. Authorities said Fuente recently left Cuba after killing his father-in-law and committed today's crime because of the unsympathetic attitude of his relatives.

6,030 TO SHARE IN $10,005,000 CRANE ESTATE

Bequest Notices Sent All Over World.

Notices of heirship were mailed yesterday by Probate Court Clerk Mitchell C. Robin to 6,030 persons in the four quarters of the globe, who are legatees of the $10,005,000 estate of the late Richard T. Crane Jr., president of the Crane company. The number is the largest to share in one estate in the history of the court.

Under the state law which provides that notices shall be sent by the court clerk on payment of a 75 cent fee, executors of the Crane estate might have forced Clerk Robin to meet the expense of sending the notices, estimated at $1,000. Stamps alone cost $350. Because of the number of legatees, the executors elected to meet the cost.

Will Is Filed in Court.

Most of the legatees are employés of the Crane company and its subsidiaries in various parts of the world. In his will Mr. Crane, who died on Nov. 7, provided gifts of Crane company stock to veteran employés. The will was filed yesterday before Oscar Kaplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. The terms of the will were made public shortly after Mr. Crane's death, but the size of the estate—$10,005,000—was not revealed until after the filing.

Each employé of ten or more years standing is to receive one share of stock for each year. Those who have been employed for more than 25 years will receive, in addition, two shares of stock for each year beyond 25. The will provides that employés who disposed of any of three previous stock gifts shall share in proportion to the disposition—one half for selling one lot, one quarter for selling two, and nothing if all three were sold.

Average Gift Sixteen Shares.

It is estimated that the average gift to employés will be sixteen shares of stock. This stock is now quoted at $14. On the basis of approximately 96,000 shares the gifts will total $1,334,000.

To his personal servants Mr. Crane left bequests which shall be the total of wages paid them since they entered his employ. Of fourteen servants seven are connected with the Chicago home at 1550 Lake Shore drive and the others with the Crane home in Essex county, Massachusetts. The Chicago servants are Richard Sweningson, Susan Doyle, Kate Sime, Edith D. Carr, Albin Johnson, George W. Pickett, and Henry Baismore. An estimate of the bequests to them has not been compiled.

Directors Get Stock.

Sixteen directors of the Crane company were each left 1,000 shares of stock; two nephews, Charles R. Crane II. and Adolph F. Gartz Jr., were each left 100,000 shares of stock, and John K. Prentice, secretary to Mr. Crane, was left $100,000.

The balance of the estate, including real estate, was left in trust for Mr. Crane's widow, Mrs. Florence Crane, and two children, Cornelius and Florence. Executors and trustees under the will, executed last June 12, are Cornelius Crane, Mr. Prentice, Walter Everson, treasurer of the Crane company, and the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company.

SEE ME OR I'LL CALL WAR! GANDHI WARNS VICEROY

Withholds Revolt Against Great Britain.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

BOMBAY, Jan. 1.—[Friday.]—Mahatma Gandhi, India's Nationalist leader, informed Viceroy Lord Willingdon today that he would withhold renewing the civil disobedience campaign of warfare against the British government if the viceroy would grant him an interview for the discussion of recent restrictive ordinances.

"If you think it worthwhile to see me," Gandhi said in reply to a telegram in which the viceroy warned him the government would ruthlessly crush agitators, "the working committee of the All-India congress will suspend operation of a resolution renewing civil disobedience which, at my suggestion, the committee tentatively outlined."

This resolution said that in the absence of any satisfactory response from the government to the contrary, the committee will consider that the government has reduced the Delhi truce to a nullity.

In that event, the resolution summoned the nation to resume not only civil disobedience but also nonpayment of taxes, boycott on foreign clothes and picketing of liquor shops, and to begin again the unlicensed manufacture and collection of salt.

The resolution also contained a grim command to the followers of the congress that "if processions and demonstrations are organized, only those should join who will stand lathi (stave) charges and bullets without moving from their places."

The resolution rejected Prime Minister MacDonald's final declaration at the recent round-table conference as wholly unsatisfactory and inadequate.

"Nothing short of complete independence, carrying full control over defense, external affairs and finance, with such safeguards as may be demonstrably necessary in the interest of India, can be regarded by the congress as satisfactory," the resolution said.

Asks Impartial Inquiry.

It demanded that the government institute an impartial public inquiry into the events leading up to repressive ordinances in various provinces.

"You demand coöperation from the congress without returning any on behalf of the government," Gandhi said in his message to the viceroy. "I can read in no other way your peremptory refusal to discuss the ordinances. The congress is as one with the government in condemning assassinations and should heartily coöperate with the government in exterminating such crimes.

"On your own narration of the events on the northwest frontier, there is no warrant for the arrest of popular leaders like Abdul Gaffar Khan for passing extra legal ordinances making life and property utterly insecure, and for shooting unarmed and peaceful crowds for daring to demonstrate against the arrest of their trusted leaders.

Upholes No Tax Campaign.

"The congress must resist with its prescribed creed of non-violence such measures of legalized terrorism as have been imposed in various provinces.

"I regard withholding the payment of taxes as an inalienable, ancient and natural right of a people who have exhausted all other means of seeking freedom from an unbearable economic burden."

FIVE ARE DEAD AFTER BOX CAR DRINKING PARTY

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Five men were dead today as the result of a drinking party in an empty box car here Tuesday night. A sixth man was seriously ill in a hospital.

The fifth victim of poison liquor was Mike Linch of East St. Louis. One of the men died earlier today, and the other three were found dead along the railroad track yesterday.

About twelve men participated in the drinking, survivors said. Coroner Dye said the men who died had been drinking wood alcohol.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

ART INSTITUTE GETS ESTATE OF MRS. CARPENTER

Trust Benefits Daughter During Her Life.

Mrs. Rue Winterbotham Carpenter, art leader and society woman, provided in her will that her $250,000 estate shall pass eventually to the Art institute. This was disclosed yesterday when the document was admitted to probate by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner.

Mrs. Carpenter, the wife of John Alden Carpenter, composer and business man, died on Dec. 7. Her residual estate is left in trust for her daughter, Genevieve, who was married on Dec. 26 to Patrick C. Hill of Fort Worth, Tex. At Mrs. Hill's death, the will provides, the trust fund shall be added to the fund established for the Art institute by Mrs. Carpenter's father, the late John R. Winterbotham. The will also provides an immediate gift of $5,000 to the Winterbotham fund.

Leaves $1,000 to Maid.

To her maid, Mary McNulty, Mrs. Carpenter bequeathed $1,000, and to Louis Leland of Springfield, an old friend, $5,000. Her home on Lake Champlain in Vermont she left to Mr. Carpenter, with the provision that upon his death or remarriage title shall pass to their daughter.

Mrs. Carpenter also bequeathed to her husband a painting by Henri Rousseau of a tiger and a buffalo in the jungle. The Carpenter home is at 700 Rush street.

File David Forgan Will.

The will of David R. Forgan, veteran Chicago banker who died on Dec. 26, was also filed yesterday with Mr. Caplan. It was only one page long and left his entire estate to the widow, Mrs. Agnes Kerr Forgan, 1112 Greenwood boulevard, Evanston. No estimate of the amount of the estate was given out. The Central Republic Bank and Trust company, of which Mr. Forgan was co-chairman of the board, was named executor.

Crowe, then state's attorney, led a defection from the Lundin-city hall organization, Mr. Barrett joined with him in forming the Crowe-Barrett wing of the Republican party, which for a period was the dominant factor in the local Republican organization. It was so powerful that four or five years ago Mr. Barrett was rated among the possibilities for governor.

Blocks Lundin-SmallMachine.

Mr. Barrett was regarded as the man who threw the first real monkey wrench into the city-state machine formed by Lundin-Small-city hall, blocking it at a time when it was going full speed. As a reviewer he started the anti-Lundin movement in 1921, when Lundin sought to pass his famous state tax commission bill, which would have given the machine control over every tax paying property owner in the state.

Without any gestures Mr. Barrett went to Springfield and lobbied day and night against the measure. It was agreed during the session that his efforts killed the measure. Lundin and his associates sought to pull him off, but he refused to shift. At the end Lundin was no longer boss of Chicago.

After a period the Crowe-Barrett entente was disrupted, and for some years the two former political associates were sometimes politically friendly and sometimes not. In the last few years Republican politics in Cook county has been mixed and unstable, with factions splitting up among themselves at every election and new alignments formed.

Noted for Keeping His Word.

In the kaleidoscope Mr. Barrett had a reputation among politicians of always keeping his word when he had pledged his aid to a specified political campaign. As to future alignments after the campaign was over Mr. Barrett's attitude was one of noncommitance, and his group was known for an independence of action factionally.

The Barrett organization included committeemen from six wards last year when Mr. Barrett announced his entrance as a candidate for mayor to "clean up the reign of lawlessness." He withdrew to give Judge Lyle greater opportunity in the primary campaign against the former mayor.

In the turmoil over measures for reconstruction of the machinery of taxation in Cook county it had been generally understood that if the special session of the legislature enacted an agreed remodeling under which one reviewer would be appointed by the governor and one by the president of the county board, Mr. Barrett would be the member chosen by Gov. Emmerson.

Interested in Sports.

Mr. Barrett, a man of husky physique, vigorous and energetic, was interested in sports as a hunter and fisherman. He was active in the work of the Boy Scouts, and the city council gave his name to a playground situated within 400 feet of his birthplace. Two of his athletic protegés, O'Neil Farrell and Edward Murphy, ice skating champions, were sent to the Olympic games in Europe.

The funeral has been tentatively set for Monday, but a definite announcement will be made later, members of the family said. The Barrett home is at 1934 West 22d street.

AUTO THIEVES ESCAPE POLICE.

Three automobile thieves escaped from a Marquette police squad early yesterday when they drove the stolen car into a two story residence in 23d street near Albany avenue and fled on foot.

PADDED ROLLS NOW $1,362,555 SAYS NORTHUP

First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup yesterday released a tabulation of the amount of pay roll padding as shown by the evidence so far introduced in the graft conspiracy trial of Timothy J. Crowe, president of the sanitary district board, during the whoopee era of 1927-1928, and seven other trustees, former trustees and officials of the district. The prosecutor says that his witnesses testified to $1,362,555.30, not including special voucher payments made to some of the members of the legislature and other politicians.

Prosecutor Northup says that his assistants have made a diligent search for the so-called "statesmen's record" a book containing the records of politicians too proud or too cautious to have their names placed on a pay roll.

DON'T STAND IN GERMANY'S WAY! HINDENBURG ASKS

Demands Equal Security in New Year's Message.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 31.—All inns and restaurants where Germans are making merry to welcome the New Year paused a moment tonight to hear President von Hindenburg send his New Year's message over the radio to the German people and the world at large.

In quiet homes and noisy public halls the voice of President von Hindenburg echoed. He spoke from his desk in his study.

PAUL VON HINDENBURG. [A. P. Photo.]

"As president, and as an aged man who has witnessed a relatively big part of German history," the warrior urged his countrymen to bear with fortitude the hardships of the present times.

Asks Right of Security.

"Germans deserve thanks and praise for the sacrifices they have made and the patience with which they have borne their sufferings and burdens," he said. "The greatness of their sacrifice justifies Germany's demand that foreign countries should not seek to oppose Germany's restoration through imposition of impossible conditions.

"Likewise, the question of disarmament is one where Germany must not be refused what is coming to her. Our claim to a security equal to that of other nations is so obviously justified that it cannot be denied."

As the president was relating how, in the days of the battle of Tannenberg, dangers threatening Germany were surmounted, "thanks to the mutual faith, comradeship, glowing patriotism, and faith of the Germans in themselves," his speech blurred for a minute. An unknown station interfered and a Red agitator called, "Attention, Germany! The Red fighters are here."

Intruder Drowned Out.

The powerful Berlin station drowned out the intruder and the president continued:

"Again I am calling today in an hour which is equally earnest, upon the whole of the German people to stand together in faithful unity, no matter what destiny may have in store for us.

"Let us face the coming days and all their trials and sorrows hand-in-hand, and let us not waver. May none of us give up hope and each and every one have unshakable faith in the fatherland's destiny. The Lord has often before saved Germany from deep distress. Nor will He forsake us now.

"And now from the bottom of my heart, I wish the entire German people and each and every one of them a Happy and Blessed New Year."

The 84 year old president will spend his last New Year's day in office tomorrow. His seven year term expires next May.

SAEMANN WINS DIVORCE; END FIGHT OVER BABY

Granted Decree on Desertion Charge.

The Saemann-Fahrney family dispute over the custody of Myrtle Fahrney Saemann, 2 years old, who will eventually inherit some of the millions of the late Peter Fahrney, patent medicine manufacturer, was settled yesterday when Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude granted a divorce to Franklin I. Saemann Jr., father of the young heiress.

MRS. MYRTLE SAEMANN. [Kohne Photo.]

The mother, Mrs. Myrtle Fahrney Saemann of Detroit, was given custody of the child, but the decree provided that Saemann may see his daughter at any time, that the mother shall give him at least 30 days' notice if she wishes to take the child more than 300 miles from the jurisdiction of the court, and that the child shall spend several week-ends each summer with her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin I. Saemann Sr., 429 Forest avenue, Oak Park.

Charge Is Desertion.

The decree was granted on grounds of desertion. Saemann's sister, Charlotte; a friend, Colin Miller, 1215 Stone street, and Mrs. Saemann's mother, Mrs. Mary H. Fahrney, 400 North Euclid avenue, testified that Mrs. Fahrney left her husband in October, 1929.

Mrs. Saemann was given permission by the court to resume her maiden name. Her attorney, John G. Campbell, waived alimony on her behalf. She and the child were not in court, having returned to Detroit Wednesday night.

Frank Cantwell, Saemann's attorney, asked Mrs. Fahrney if her daughter was able to care for the baby.

Prepares Food Herself.

"So much so," Mrs. Fahrney replied, "that in September she dismissed the child's nurse and since has prepared Myrtle's food herself."

Mrs. Fahrney also disclosed that although her daughter inherited several million dollars from her grandfather, Peter Fahrney, and more recently received another large inheritance from her uncle, Ezra Fahrney, the money is held in trust and will not be available to her until the death of her father, E. H. Fahrney.

REVEAL BATTLE OF KINGS TO WIN TWO PRINCESSES

HYDERABAD, India, Dec. 31.—(AP)—A battle of oriental kings for two Moslem princesses was revealed today as the sons of the nizam of Hyderabad, "Crœsus of the East," brought their brides home to a cloistered existence.

Prince Azam Jah, heir to the nizam's vast fortune; Prince Moazzam Jah, his younger brother, and their wives, Durai Shehvar and Princess Nilufar, daughter and niece of the exiled caliph of Islam, came from Nice, where they were married last month.

King Fuad of Egypt, King Feisal of Iraq, and Shah Riza of Persia, it was learned, waged a losing struggle for months to obtain the hands of the girls in marriage to their sons or relatives, believing that an alliance with the spiritual head of the Moslem world would strengthen their thrones.

In vain they offered handsome sums to Prince Abdul Medjid, vice regent of Allah, and fabulous dowries to the princesses. The fact that the nizam had supported the former caliph since his exile from Turkey swung the balance in favor of his sons.

Bandits Menace Twelve at Gas Store; Get $550

Ten patrons and two employés were menaced by three bandits in the branch office of the People Gas Light and Coke company at 4839 Irving Park boulevard Wednesday. The employés, Alfred S. Cook, 5323 Berteau avenue, the manager, and Miss Alyce Lach, 2622 Newcastle avenue, the cashier, were forced to surrender $550. The patrons were not robbed.

Yesterday, Chicago was a marshy river bank. The years between, a relentless, indomitable surge of human effort, overcoming massacre, fire, plague. Striving, building, achieving, to emerge finally as—CHICAGO.

Covered wagons nobly served the pioneer but Progress has devised a swift, time-saving and economical mode of travel.

Yellow Cab is proud of the important part it plays in the Chicago of today. Every advantage of improved equipment is utilized by Yellow Cab to maintain its high standard of service. Financial stability goes hand in hand with efficient management. Safe, clean, comfortable, luxurious cabs provide a taxi service worthy of a great city.

Yellow Cab drivers are trained chauffeurs. Courteous, skillful, thoroughly obedient to traffic laws, safety-minded and responsible.

There is a Yellow Cab station in your neighborhood. A telephone call brings one to you immediately.

Always use Yellow Cab service—the modern way to accomplish errands—business or social, in safety and comfort.

C. P. SCOTT, HEAD OF MANCHESTER GUARDIAN, DIES

One of Great British Journalists.

MANCHESTER, England, Jan. 1.—[Friday.]—(AP)—C. P. Scott, managing director of the Manchester Guardian, died at 1:30 a. m. today.

Mr. Scott, regarded as one of the greatest journalists in British history, contracted a chill shortly before Christmas. Fears were felt about the outcome of his illness, as his heart was in bad condition. He was 85 years old.

EDITOR FOR 57 YEARS.

Charles Prestwich Scott joined the staff of the Manchester Guardian in 1871 and the next year became editor, advancing to the post of governor director and chief proprietor upon the death of James Edward Taylor in 1905.

Mr. Scott continued as editor-in-chief of the newspaper until July 1, 1929, when he retired from editorial activity, turning over those responsibilities to his son, E. T. Scott. The elder Mr. Scott continued as managing director.

Under the direction of the senior Mr. Scott the Manchester Guardian developed from Whiggism to advanced Liberalism, and under his guidance the newspaper came to be recognized as one of the foremost journals of the day.

Mr. Scott was born at Bath, Somersetshire, England, Oct. 26, 1846. He graduated from Corpus Christi college, Oxford, in 1869. His wife, the daughter of a clergyman, died in 1905. Two sons and a daughter survive.

The decedent was elected member of parliament from the Leigh district of Lancashire in 1895 and continued to represent that district until 1906.

Besides his journalistic work, Mr. Scott was actively interested in social, philanthropic and educational work as well as politics. He and his wife were credited with having done more than any other individuals to better the conditions of those who live in the crowded and poverty ridden districts of Manchester.

C., B. & Q. TAKES UP PLAN TO AID ITS UNEMPLOYED

Effective at midnight last night a mileage curtailment plan was put into effect for train and yard service employés of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, thereby insuring employment for many men who have been laid off. This system is in effect on most of the major railroads of the nation. Exceptions were the Burlington and North Western operating out of Chicago. North Western officials are now studying the plan.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen at its annual meeting last spring adopted a resolution urging a division of work to keep down unemployment among its members and submitted a mileage curtailment plan. Most of the major roads agreed to cooperate. Some of the smaller roads have not done so, nor have the roads of the far west.

Burlington brakemen, switchmen and switchtenders are affected by the plan. Curtailment of the maximum miles or hours that the various rail and yard employés will work, is the basis of the plan. When the regular workers have reached the maximum, they will lay off and give men from the extra list a chance to work.

Passenger trainmen have been restricted to 5,500 miles maximum a month, extra passenger trainmen to 4,500 miles, regular freight trainmen to 3,500, and regular yardmen and switchtenders to 208 hours.

ASKS DRY LAW FUND SLASH AS ECONOMY MOVE

Michigan Congressman Demands U. S. Act.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—A demand that curtailment of expenditures for prohibition enforcement be included in the campaign to cut down government costs was made today by Representative Robert H. Clancy [Rep., Mich.].

Many citizens, he asserted, felt a rightful indignation over the fact that the budget proposals did not contain cuts in the bureau of prohibition commensurate with those recommended in the "beneficial branches of the government."

The sincerity of congressmen who have preached economy will be tested, he said, when they faced the enforcement item.

Swollen Border Patrol.

"The executive branch," he continued, "cut down practically all appropriations such as those for general defense, agriculture, business, commerce, postal service, etc., but they could not muster enough strength to cut the heavy appropriations for the swollen border patrol, made unnecessary on the Canadian frontier by Canada's strict embargo on the importation of liquor.

"The coast guard is using many torpedo boat destroyers which cost over $2,000,000 to build, and which cost over $300,000 a year in operating expenses, when the coast guard could be using maritime aircraft at a fraction of the expense and with an increase of efficiency, especially for life saving, and with better results for national defense in time of war."

Seek Agreement on Beer Bill.

Representative Clancy made his suggestion while house wet leaders sought a bipartisan agreement on a beer bill and a resolution providing for repeal of the 18th amendment. Only by uniting forces, it was admitted, could the wets hope to get past the warning of Majority Leader Rainey [Dem., Ill.], who recently said that but one anti-prohibition vote would be taken during the session.

Representative John J. Cochran [Dem., Mo.], argued that a repeal resolution and a beer bill were distinct measures under any fair interpretation of the house rules.

5 RAIL VETERANS RETIRE; SERVICE TOTALS 260 YEARS

Five veteran conductors of the Chicago and North Western railway, who have a combined service record of 260 years, met yesterday in the conductors' room at the North Western station to say good-by to each other and to their runs before retiring on pensions. The men had traveled between 9,000,000 and 10,000,000 miles in line of duty.

T. J. Crowley, dean of all conductors on the railroad, with 57 years of service, was one of the men who made his last trip yesterday.

F. D. Sughran, during the last of his 50 years with the railroad, has been a conductor on trains running from Winnetka to Chicago on the Milwaukee division. He made his final run last night. Another of the five men is Edward Carey, who has spent 54 years on the Galena division of the railroad between West Chicago and Chicago in suburban runs.

James W. York has been conductor on trains between Chicago and Janesville, Wis., for the last 15 years of his 51 years of service with the North Western. The last of the group is Emery B. Holmes, who wound up 48 years of service with the railroad on his run from Chicago to West Chicago yesterday.

MRS. SABIN SEES 1931 AS TURNING POINT IN FIGHT ON PROHIBITION

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The year 1931 marked the turning point of the tide against national prohibition, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform declared today in a New Year's letter to the state chairmen of the organization.

She called upon the chairmen to enroll women voters in an "army of organized impatience" to invade the polls in the 1932 elections, and asserted that prohibitionists were asking for a moratorium on prohibition law reforms in an attempt to stem the tide of repeal.

She urged members to work within their political parties for inclusion of a repeal plank in each of the party platforms, but advised them to forget party affiliations if either party failed to come out formally against prohibition.

"Public sentiment, however, to be effective must be organized and articulate," she stated, "and there is no doubt that the work of the several prohibition reform organizations has contributed largely to the progress made in 1931. Nineteen hundred and thirty-two will be a crucial year. The United States as well as the rest of the world is passing through one of the most critical periods in history. The organized prohibitionists who claimed our late prosperity as their own are now trying to make capital of the economic crisis.

"If either the Republican or Democratic party fails us," the letter says, "then I firmly believe we should put patriotism ahead of any political loyalty, declare a moratorium on party affiliations and give our support to the party which represents the aims and purposes of the women's organization for national prohibition reform."

ROOSEVELT BLOC EXPECTS TO RULE NAT. COMMITTEE

Canvass Members for Pledges.

New York, Dec 31.—[Special.]—Democratic leaders who favor the nomination of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for President next year have made a complete and thorough canvass of the national committee, as a result of which they are convinced they will control the meeting of that body in Washington on Jan. 8.

Based on the pledges they have obtained, the Roosevelt supporters believe they will not only block any move of the Raskob-Smith wet wing to commit the national committee to a definite policy on prohibition or any other question likely to be an important issue in the 1932 campaign, but also will dictate the choice of the convention city next June.

The disposition of the Raskob-Smith leaders, including their allies in the Atlantic coast states, has been to favor Chicago as the convention city. The Roosevelt men are understood to be unfavorable to Chicago and to prefer Kansas City or other more neutral ground.

If there is a showdown in the national committee meeting between the Roosevelt adherents and his opponents, it may come on the question of the selection of the place for holding the convention rather than prohibition, as has been anticipated for months. The western and southern leaders count Illinois as too wet.

Slain in Swimming Pool; Leaves Paper Scrap as Clew

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Dispatches from Guadalajara today reported the slaying in a swimming pool there of Col. Jose M. Covarrubias, retired, who was a leading figure in the fight against the Cristero revolutionists three years ago. He had been stabbed to death. A scrap of paper near the body indicated that when dying he had tried to write the names of his assailants.

The Bride's Boat

By Coralie Stanton and Heath Hosken

SYNOPSIS.

Kit Lenoure, receptionist in a London family hotel, accepts the offer of a post in the Grand Africa hotel, Soydoret, Kenya. Theo Sable had gone there two years before, when Kit had broken her engagement to him. But Kit still wanted him more than anything in the world. She sails on the "Bride's Boat." Jess North, her cabin mate, is going out to be married. Lal Crowhurst, the biggest landowner about Soydoret and a most attractive bachelor, is on the boat. He is attentive to Kit. Soydoret proves to be a paradise with many serpents and terrible powers of demoralization to weak natures. Jess is married to Noel Graham, who manages Crowhurst's coffee plantations. Kit adapts herself to her new surroundings. Theo Sable, who has taken up big game hunting, arrives in Soydoret. Kit and Theo are overjoyed to have found each other again. But there are unexplainable changes in Theo that Kit can't understand. Ariel Grieve, the widow, who, scandal has it, owns Lal Crowhurst, also has her tentacles around Theo. A dance and entertainment, to wind up the season, is given at the hotel. Next morning Ariel Grieve is found dead from an overdose of a sleeping drug. She left a letter, obviously written to a man she was in love with and who had let her down. Every one suspects Crowhurst. Theo is accused of cheating in a card game. He declares his innocence, but Kit alone believes him. He leaves next day on a hunting trip. Jess Graham calls on Crowhurst, and tells him that she overheard Ariel Grieve threaten to kill herself when Theo Sable told her of his engagement to Kit. Jess gains a promotion for her husband by promising not to reveal what she had heard.

INSTALLMENT XLI.

THEO ADMITS HIS GUILT.

Theo just wrote that he was coming down for a few days. The camp was established and the work going on splendidly. It was an amazing place. Among other things, he had to collect some stores. No more news. No mention of the burning matter of defending his honor. Not much, even, of his longing and impatience to see her. He must have written in a great hurry. He said his horses were very fit, and he expected to do the trip in record time, in spite of the bad going in some parts.

But he did not come.

"He is very late," said Kit to Capt. Blair, day after day.

"Yes, he certainly is very late. I expect he has been forced out of the direct path by the rains. I will ring up the railway works at this end of the new line. They are not far from his track, I understand. They may have seen something of him."

The result was that he learned of Theo Sable passing the nearest camp to his track more than a week ago. He had stayed and shared their mess. He had been quite fit, but one of his horses was a little lame. He was alone. Since then the weather had been terrific. The rain had never stopped and there were floods everywhere. If he had not reached Soydoret he must have got into difficulties.

A search party went out at once. Capt. Blair went over to the club, and Crowhurst happened to be there. He immediately organized it, and led it himself.

It was he who found Theo in the bush, miles out of his track, lying with his face on the neck of his immobile horse, both man and animal in a state of coma, owing to exhaustion. The second horse was not far off, dead.

Theo had no injuries, and it took him only a few days to recover almost completely from the effects of the starvation and fatigue. The floods had deceived him, he explained. He had wandered farther and farther from his course, and as he grew weaker his mind became a blank.

To Kit he seemed to have changed, though there was no doubt about his joy at seeing her again.

"I never knew how beautiful you were before, London Angel," he said to her over and over again.

Then came the fatal hour. He asked her if he might come up to her sitting room after dinner. He was staying in the hotel. They had put him in his old room, and to her astonishment, as soon as he was able, he had asked to have it changed.

The curtains were drawn in her room, and a shaded light was burning on a table behind the comfortable, shabby, chintz covered couch. There was a small fire. Bowls full of brilliant many colored zinnias made patches of color here and there.

It was Crowhurst who found Theo in the bush.

"I'm glad it's dark in the room, London Angel," Theo said. "I've got something to tell you."

She was curiously conscious of every detail tonight. He did not attempt to embrace her.

"Sit down on the couch," he went on. "I'll stand here. I don't want you to look at me, Kit. I don't suppose you'll ever want to again—after you've heard."

It was characteristic of her that she had not the slightest idea of what was coming.

"I did cheat that night, Kit." His voice was like a schoolboy's.

"O!" For a moment her face was twisted in an agony of horror, of distaste. "Theo! Theo—it can't be true!" she cried, jumping up and rushing to his side. "I can't believe it. You are ill—you are not yourself!"

"I'm perfectly all right," he said. "Sit down again, dear, dear Kit. It is like you to say that. But I mustn't lie to you any more. How could I ever have lied to you at all? I spent a lot of sleepless nights in camp. I don't care a pin about the others, but how could I ever have lied to you?"

"O, Theo—why? Why did you do it?"

"Because, like all cads who cheat, I suppose, I thought I'd get away with it!" The ardent, gay voice was bitter with self-contempt. "London Angel, you can't understand! I'm a gambler. I've never had any luck, but I could never stop. I gambled away all my mother left me. I played cards, backed horses, dogs, football matches—every mortal thing you can back! I got more and more into debt."

"But," she broke in, "you must have given it up when you lived with the natives in the jungle and began to take people on safari!"

"Yes; that's right. I believe I would have made good, only—I had that awful accident. You wouldn't understand the details—but I was responsible for the death of one of the members of my party on safari—young Lord Alaric Chaplet, one of the finest fellows who ever lived. At dinner the night before I drank too much fizz, London Angel. In the morning I felt rotten, and it was our biggest day. We were after elephant. I miscalculated the distances and let young Chaplet get too near to a charging bull elephant—a monstrous specimen. He was the weakest shot of the party. He fired and missed, and the brute got him in his trunk and shook him and banged him to death. And—I—I was so muddled and nervy that I couldn't fire to save him. I might have been able to."

Kit could not speak. There seemed to be no words.

"No one blamed me," he added brokenly. "On the face of it, it was a pure accident. And, of course, I hadn't meant it—I would rather have died. I went off my head for a time, I think. I lost myself. I wandered about the Congo for weeks and weeks. I don't know how I got back to Kenya."

"Poor Theo!" she whispered. "And there was nobody to look after you!"

"A friend was very kind to me when I came back," he said in a queer, tight voice. "I was nearly done for, but I pulled through. But I couldn't bear the thought of safari again. And it got about—nothing definite, rumors that I had been careless. The other men never blamed me; it must have leaked out through the gunbearers and the boys."

"Was it long ago?"

"Yes—a long time—about eighteen months. I came to my senses about this time last year. But I couldn't face safari until I came across the Nightlands. And—Kit—I was no good with them, I know I wasn't. Although they were very decent about it, real sports. That's why I felt this trip would be my salvation."

She held out her hand to him.

"Theo, I will help you!"

"Kit, you can't mean it! You can't care for me any more! You couldn't stick to me—after this!"

"I will stick to you, Theo. Of course, I will. I will help you. You and I will start a new life."

He reeled a little from his recent weakness, as he came forward and fell on his knees by her side.

. . . . . .

The next morning, before the lunch hour, Theo found an opportunity to speak to Kit alone.

"I did it," he said. "I found Col. Mervyn at the club. The other two weren't there, but Crowhurst was. I told them the truth. They were awfully decent. You couldn't believe how decent."

Kit's face grew red with humiliation. Crowhurst! She had urged Theo to confess. It had seemed the only thing to do. But she had not thought of Crowhurst. She could not understand why it hurt her so that he should know.

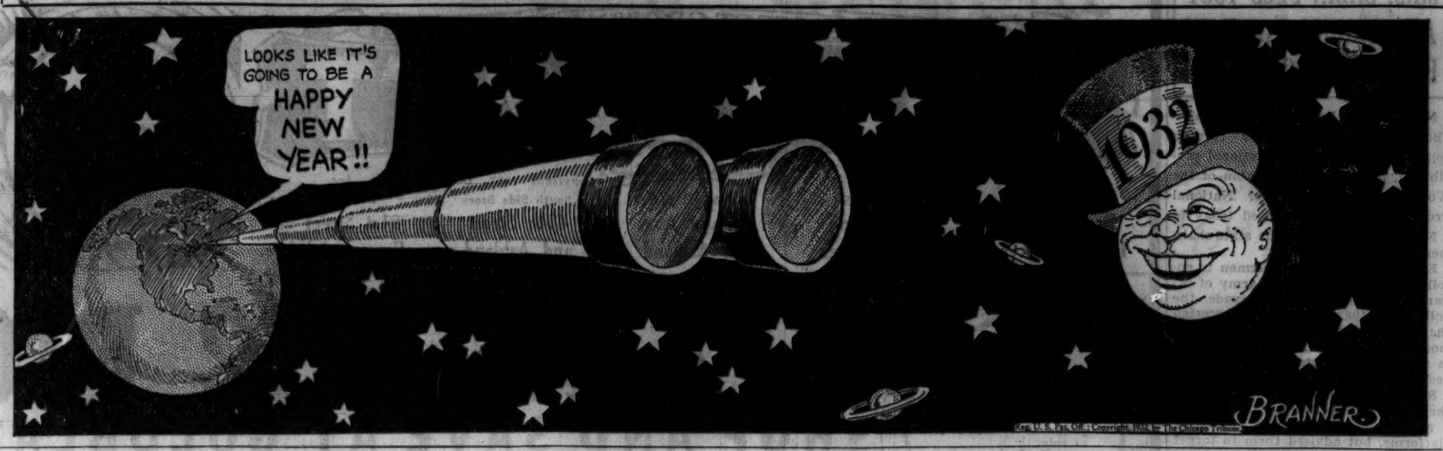
WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Happy New Year!



LONDON PAPER CALLS PRAYER OF BISHOPS "FULL OF JARGON"

LONDON, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Morning papers today criticized the form of prayer authorized by the archbishops of Canterbury and York for use Sunday, when the Church of England will hold united intercessional services.

In an editorial headed "A Liturgical Lapse," the Morning Post says the style of the prayer "suggests that the author must have studied the resolution of the trade union congress rather than the collects of the prayer-books—so much is he impressed with the current jargon of the platform and so entirely insensible to the dignity of English liturgy.

"Nothing could be better calculated to induce a spirit of national humility than the thought that such prayers could be authorized for use in public worship by the archbishops of Canterbury and York."

Two Musical Boys Make Their Debut Here on Sunday

Two youthful musicians, a pianist and a violinist, will make their debuts before the Chicago musical world at Sunday afternoon concerts this month playing compositions that more mature artists find difficult.

Morris Wolf, 12 years old, will appear Sunday afternoon at the Playhouse in a piano recital under the direction of Bertha Ott. Morris, a pupil of Isadore L. Buchhalter, has played since he was six years old, or as members of his family put it, "ever since he was old enough to sit at a piano." Morris is a son of Mrs. Joseph Wolf, 3328 Lexington street.

GRISHA GOLUBOFF.

MORRIS WOLF.

The young musician will open his recital with Chopin's Sonata in B flat minor—opus 35, and will include numbers by Scarlatti, Scriabine, Ravel, Pick-Mangiagalli and Liszt.

The other young star is Grisha Goluboff, 9 years old, who recently was acclaimed by New York critics when he appeared with 100 pieces of the National Orchestra association in Carnegie hall and again at Madison Square Garden. He will make his first appearance as soloist with full symphony orchestra here on Jan. 24 at the Chicago Civic opera house.

Grisha will perform during a program for the Hebrew Theological college of Chicago, opera and concert stars donating their services. Grisha will play concertos by Beethoven, Brahms, Mendelssohn, Mozart, Tchaikowsky, Viotti and others. He is a student of Mishel Piastro, concert master of the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra.

Shutting Off City Water if Pay Lags Is Forbidden

Monessen, Pa., Dec. 31.—(AP)—The shutting off of water supply to a family because of non-payment of the bill will not be permitted in Monessen. The ultimatum was delivered last night to the Tri-State Water company by City Solicitor Vincent Smith on advice of City Health Officer Francis E. Gibson. They said the supply had been cut off at 18 homes, and, unless the houses were vacant, the supply must be restored by Monday.

Kemper Hall Dance.

Chicago members of the senior class of Kemper hall in Kenosha, Wis., will hold a dance this evening at the Cordon club. Miss Mary Call of Riverside, secretary of the class, is in charge of arrangements.

Chicago alumnæ of Trinity college at Washington, D. C., will hold a supper-dance tonight at the Drake hotel.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

Every now and then I run into a bridge hand which is interesting and which I would like to give you except for the fact that it would put wrong notions into your minds. Yet after the bridge circus put on in New York by Ringmaster Culbertson almost any bidding will seem conservative. So I am giving a few of these hands now and then to show how real masters of the game occasionally play in duplicate matches. Yesterday's play-a-problem was one of these. Here is the hand:

NORTH
♠—J,9,7,4,3
♥—6
♦—8,7,6,2
♣—8,7,3

WEST (Dealer) — EAST
♠—A,K — ♠—6,2
♥—A,8,5 — ♥—Q,J,10,4,3
♦—K,9 — ♦—Q,4,3
♣—A,J,9,6,5,4 — ♣—K,Q,10

SOUTH
♠—Q,10,8,5
♥—K,9,7,2
♦—A,J,10,5

West dealt and opened the bidding with two clubs. North passed. Now here East is in a peculiar position. Ordinarily holding adequate support for partner's minor bid and at the same time holding a major take-out, the major take-out is made. Here, however, East has had such strong support for partner's minor and his major suit is so short in top strength that he preferred to give a minor raise—in other words, to support his partner's bid before showing his own major suit. He, therefore, bid three clubs. South passed and West bid three no-trumps. North now passed and East showed his heart suit by bidding four hearts. South again passed.

West did not entirely see the subtleties of East's bid. But he did realize that East must have strong club support and therefore placed East with the ♣ K and Q. He also figured that East had poor top hearts. In other words, he pictured East as holding a Q-J high heart suit. He was, however, a little enthusiastic about East's holding and decided that East probably had a little more on the side than West had a right to imply. West, now figuring that he had no losing tricks in spades and at most one loser in hearts and one loser in diamonds, with no losing clubs, decided that a slam was possible if East had a little more strength and that five was reasonably sure. He, therefore, bid five hearts to give East an opportunity to show any strength beyond the 1½ high card tricks guaranteed by his original raise. North passed and East, having no further strength except the ♦ Q, also passed. South doubled.

At this point West became really enthusiastic. He decided that if South doubled South must hold the ♥ K, and if his placing of the ♥ Q-J in his partner's hand was accurate the ♥ K could be picked up by a finesse. He also figured the ♦ A in South's hand, which would mean that a lead of diamonds from dummy to West's own hand would assure the making of West's ♦ K. He, therefore, bid six no-trumps. North and East passed and South again doubled.

North opened the ♠ 4, dummy played the 2, South the Q, and West took with the K in his own hand. West then returned the ♣ 4, which he took in dummy with the ♣ Q. Dummy next led the ♥ Q and followed by leading the ♥ J. On neither of these plays did South put up his K, since West was definitely placed with the A. Dummy now led the ♦ 3, which West took with the K. West then returned the ♣ 5, which dummy took with the K. Dummy now led the ♣ 10, which West took with the ♣ J. West then proceeded to lead out the good ♣ A-9-6 and followed by leading out the ♥ A and the ♠ A. His final card, the ♦ 9, was captured by South with the A.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Send your bridge problems to Charles True Adams, The Chicago Tribune; inclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Brooklyn Church Razed by Fire; Loss Is $100,000

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The Catholic church of Our Lady of Guadalupe, Brooklyn, was destroyed by a spectacular fire which broke out early this evening and gutted the structure despite the efforts of firemen summoned by five alarms. The property loss was estimated by the police at $100,000. Between 25 and 30 persons who were in the church reached the street without difficulty.

Graceful Posture Is Vital to Silhouette of Real Distinction

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Authors used to do more right by their little Nells than they have been doing of late. 'Member way back when they used to endow their heroines with the body of a willow, or with the undulating movements of a born vamp, or with a carriage of great and regal majesty? Anyway, they used to set the gal up, if not with the strides of a goddess, then with something just as good.

So, what think you, too, of a fiction writer who does this to his heroine? Remember he expects the lady to do a large bit by way of getting him into the best seller class. And this is how the hero beholds here. He turned in his chair and beheld the lady standing in the doorway "resting on one raised hip like a . . . tired cow!"

So, now if you have an ungainly gesture that you'd just as soon keep out of literature, you'd better be turning the fifty-watt on yersel', or is it a hundred-watt that tells everything? Anyway, if you're of a mind to go after the old girl [any age implied] and map out a reform course for her, beginning the first of the year, begin with the gestures and the posture habits that may be standing between you and beauty fame.

Dame Etiquette and her side kick, Maw Grundy, have let us down on many of the rigid old rules of conduct. But neither of the named guides urge us to look like a tired cow, f'rinstance. They permit us to go ahead and have a good time, but urge us not to spoil the looks with took much informality of posture. That is, they'd like us to hold to the line, since line of body is coming to take the big place in silhouette distinction.

I wonder if most of us haven't one gesture or posture habit that could be reformed? Some of us have more than one. The point is that there isn't so much you can do to a figure, once you've got it whittled down—but make it graceful. The truth is that the trouble with many of the reduced figures is that they are not graceful. They fall into rigid, graceless postures. And there's no question in my mind that our next great big beauty movement will be along these very lines, making gesture and posture habit as concentrated a study and as flattering to the woman as her current interest in silhouette remodelling and make-up aids.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

R. C.: ANOTHER RED NOSE VICTIM! A number of you are reporting. Stir up our circulation, and be sure that you haven't any digestive trouble. The quantities of black coffee you consume had better be abandoned for a while.

P. S.: A RED NOSE IN THE WINTER time is no sign that a bootlegger comes knocking at the door. Not always, anyway, with the girls, I hope. It's indigestion, or poor circulation that usually causes it.

Food Talk

There were more than seven billion cans of food packed in the United States last year! That is 50 cans for every man, woman, and child in the country. It's a staggering figure, especially so considering the fact that canning as we know it today was not practiced until 1809.

In 1809 a Parisian chef named Francois Appert discovered that food put in glass jars, sealed and boiled in water, did not spoil. He went to England and published a monograph on his findings, entitled "A Monograph Upon the Art of Preserving Animal and Vegetable Substances." The idea was welcomed in England and soon several canning companies were thriving.

Ten years afterward a canning company was started in Boston. In two years it numbered among its products, sealed in glass jars, plums, quinces, currants, barberries, and cranberries. Canned milk was added a little later.

Sea foods in cans first came from Baltimore—oysters and lobsters.

Glass was expensive and not easy to ship. About 1839 tinkers made canisters, and the food was put up in these. A skillful tinker could make sixty tins a day, while our present day machinery turns out 200,000 cans per unit.

By the time of the civil war canning was quite an industry in the United States. The war gave it a great impetus, machinery was improved, and production speeded up. Today, there are even such simple devices for putting up food in tins that one may do it at home.

Evening Necklines Rise to New Levels

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — What goes down must come up. This is true in styles as elsewhere. The startling descent of evening décolletés during the last few years proves this by rising in the new midwinter Paris fashions. Bare backs and brief front bodices, held up by only the most fragile and inconspicuous of shoulder straps, are becoming less and less common in the smart world. Frocks that rise to the shoulders and even higher on occasion, are the last word in chic.

Trick arrangements allow glimpses of perfect backs and shoulders, however, for the new high bodiced gowns for evening have slashes and draperies that serve to partially reveal a dazzling skin beneath. The old time peek-a-boo system is again in style.

This phase of Paris fashions recalls the high necked frocks affected by vampires of stage and screen in the Theda Bara epoch. It is seductive, because it follows the system of suggestion instead of frank revelation of charms. The Lenief evening gown, shown in our sketch, shows how seductive the high necked evening frock may be. This dress is made of white and gold brocade, a material that the smartest women in Paris are wearing, this late winter, for formal occasions.

The silhouette is that of a sheath which fits from the throat to the knees. This severe line is broken by diagonal circular ruffles on the skirt, and by a small pointed train in back. The bodice is softened by the sash ends that hang from the high collar and serve to partially conceal the waist-deep slit at the center back. Long black suede gloves are worn with this dress.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Failed to Impress Relatives.

I had been invited to Sunday night supper by the boy friend's mother. Wishing to make a good impression, I volunteered to dry the dishes. The boy friend's sister protested, and when I took a towel from the rack she tried to take it from me. I tugged, and the linen towel ripped!

Then I picked up a glass with the determination to make it shine as it had never shone before. I had hardly begun when the glass broke in two in my hands!

Embarrassed? Even now, several years later, I still blush whenever I see the man [no longer the boy friend], or his mother, or sister.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Father had taken daughter, aged 4, to see Santa, who was quite tall. On a return trip to the store she saw another toy which she insisted on telling Santa about. Santa this day was a much shorter man. Daughter scanned the new Santa and said, "I told your big brother all I wanted."

Three year old Barbara had been crying for about ten minutes and the tears were streaming down her face. Her daddy said, "Come here, dear, and let me wipe your face." Quick as a flash she answered, "Wait a minute, daddy, I'm not through crying yet."

Two Westerns Offer Story of Open Spaces

With Noble Ranchers and Proper Villains.

"Laughing Water" by B. M. Bower [Little Brown].

"Arizona Ames" by Zane Grey [Harpers]. Both published tomorrow.

THESE two western stories are examples of very different technical as well as psychological approaches and it is interesting to discover wherein one is more successful than the other.

ZANE GREY.

Old Babe Allison, a cowboy of the old type, has a ranch by the name of "Laughing Water." On this ranch he lives with his wastrel and vicious son and his neglected daughter-in-law. The ranch itself is no longer pays and Old Babe is faced with ruin. Rugged, soft hearted Old Babe never reveals his feelings to any one about anything, but when his partner's son comes to save him, and when he finds a long lost son in this sturdy man, he gives up the affectation of a stern exterior and replaces it with his true but hitherto denied gentleness and tenderness.

Ann, the lovely deserted wife, is a fiery lass with a will and a brain of her own, who is consumed with the same inner tenderness and softness. The wicked son gets his due, Old Babe's problems are solved and Ann, after many and tortuous experiences, at last discovers that a will after all need not exclude the function of the emotions.

This western story is not written so far as the plot is concerned in the conventional pattern. There are not the usual thrilling chases and shootings and horse thievings. When these events do occur the reader sees them not dramatically but in retrospect. The characters either speak of such experiences after they are over or the author writes expository passages about them. In a western story where characterization is necessarily subjected to plot the author's evasion of the dramatic presentation of action detracts from the interest of the story.

Another delectable flaw in this author's technique is in her own interference in the story. Several times, to avoid the necessity of immediate dramatic writing or to make sure of a clear explanation of the action to the reader, the author rather clumsily retraces her steps in chapters that present an analysis of the motives of the characters and an explanation and clarification of the preceding events.

In a story of this sort it is a mistake for the author to take off the lid of the various characters and show the reader the wheels in their minds. An even more incongruous detail is her introduction of the stream of consciousness method in a story that should be, primarily, a direct and rapidly moving narrative. The material itself in "Laughing Water" is not characteristically western. Though the background, it is true, is the west and the superficial accoutrements of the story are western, actually the subject matter is concerned with character under stress of circumstance as such, and not of circumstance identified with the west. This method might be successful if the story did not make pretentions of being a pure western novel and if it were a real study in character. As it is, however, the characters are conventionalized to an extreme, and the conventionalization, without dramatic action and swift narrative, merely makes a dull book. This brief outline of what a "western" should not be will make clear to the reader why Zane Grey's "Arizona Ames" is, for its type, an excellent performance.

"Arizona Ames" deals with the adventures, always dramatically presented, of a brave, square shooting cowboy; and it is picturesque in method. Ames rights every wrong he sees in his travels over the west; he wanders from one ranch to another, and through his acts of kindness and daring he becomes an almost legendary figure. Finally he meets the right girl and the rest of the story tells of her attempt to hold him to one place. The narrative moves along swiftly, never lagging even temporarily, and the exciting shootings and rides are direct appeals to the reader's instinctive desire for adventure.

Zane Grey is a practiced technician and he rarely falls into the errors of the less sure western writers. Each character is conventionalized; the good, brave cowboy, the villainous horse thief, the helpless, poverty stricken rancher, the honest, good-looking, healthy cowgirls, but the reader never has time to complain of unreality or even of stereotyped sentimentality because the people are constantly in action, having exciting adventures, loving, riding, living in an irresistible rush of vitality. In Zane Grey's book there seems to be a west that is definitely distinguished from any other part of the country. The descriptions of scenery, the drawing of background details, the conception of character, no matter how patternized, all give the impression of an authentic geographical section. In the last analysis the west described in western stories is gone [if it ever existed], nevertheless it is not uninteresting to observe the romantic formalized perpetuation of the tradition.

Happy New Year!!

—And here's a New Year's package for you that you really should like! "Strictly Dishonorable," reads the label, and the contents consist of one delightful, sophisticated movie gemmed with gay lines, spicy situations and the best of acting.

The successful farce comedy by Preston Sturges comes to screen from stage, practically intact. Swiftly, drolly, the action transpires, as a sweet young southern maid and her highly proper and didactic fiancé from West Orange, New Jersey, encounter a miscellany of thrills and adventures in a New York speakeasy and the apartments just above, which last are occupied respectively by a one-time judge and a famous Italian opera singer, Count Gus.

We'll go into no details as to said miscellany, but Everywoman, learning that Lewis Stone is the judge and Paul Lukas the singer, will sign in envy of Miss Isabelle—who yearned for thrills—and got 'em.

I am wondering this morning, if, after all, Paul Lukas is not THE Great Lover of Moviedom! Why, my goodness, the man has everything, including a devastating accent guaranteed to make any feminine heart flop from Gee to Haw!

Mr. Stone is splendid as the shrewd, genial, human ex-judge who loves his old-fashioned cocktails a bit too well. George Meeker makes the deadly Henry a thoroughly irritating and impossible holier-than-thou. William Ricciardi contributes an excellent characterization as owner of the speakeasy and one-time devoted servant of Count Gus, while Sidney Toler as an Irish policeman is natural and funny. Other members of the cast lend convincing color and dialogue. Sidney Fox as Isabelle, is a lamb.

The story is highly romantic and has a finale that rejoices the heart. As for the title:

"What are your intentions, sir?" queries the damsel from the south, as she prepares to spend a night in Count Gus' apartment.

"Strictly Dishonorable!" is the fervent answer. And so—but you'd never guess . . . !

See you tomorrow!

Strauss Copyright Lapses for Noted Viennese Waltz Tunes

VIENNA, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The music of Johann Strauss, famous Austrian waltz composer, will be anybody's property after Jan. 1, because the Austrian cabinet failed to extend the copyright law from thirty to fifty years.

In 1929 the Strauss copyright was extended for two years. Then it was expected that Austria would join other nations in adopting the fifty year copyright proposed at an international conference in Rome.

At that time the widow of the man who composed the "Blue Danube" still was living and dependent on her husband's royalties. She has since died and the government saw no reason for prolonging the protection.

THE STAGE

BILLY BRYANT'S company of show boat actors, now giving "Ten Nights in a Barroom" at the Cort theater, will change their bill next Sunday evening to "East Lynne," the sentimental melodrama founded on Mrs. Henry Wood's novel, first published in 1863. This is a typical show boat play.

A special matinée performance of "East Lynne" will be offered next Thursday, beginning at 2:30, as a benefit. The proceeds will be donated to THE TRIBUNE'S Hungry School Children's fund. The regular box office scale of prices will prevail.

Next week will probably be the last of the show boat troupe's successful run in Chicago. Jan. 9 has been announced for a closing date; and if public demand should extend the engagement at the Cort, the river-front thespians will certainly not remain here after Jan. 16. The Erlanger estate has offered Billy Bryant a playhouse for a New York engagement, to begin at any convenient date after Jan. 16.

"Three's A Crowd" will end its engagement at the Erlanger theater Jan. 23. Maurice Chevalier [in person] will follow Jan. 24, to stay a week. The famous French entertainer will offer a program of characteristic songs and sketches, and will give afternoon and night performances.

Walter Hampden, the actor-manager who recently appeared here as co-star with Fay Bainter in George C. Tyler's revival of "The Admirable Crichton," announces a transcontinental tour in "Cyrano de Bergerac," to start Jan. 30. Mr. Hampden had a great success in this famous drama by Edmond Rostand when he staged it in New York eight years ago. He plans to visit almost every major city in the United States. His Chicago engagement will take place late in the spring.

New Year's matinée performances will be given today by "Grand Hotel," at the Grand Opera house; by "Marching By," at the Great Northern, and by "Rhapsody in Black," at the Garrick. The latter show contributed to the New Year's eve celebration with a midnight performance.

A benefit matinée performance of "The House Beautiful" will be given at the Harris theater next Tuesday. The Actors' Fund of America, official charity of the theatrical profession, will receive the gross proceeds.

Arch Selwyn, the impresario who has a way of coaxing Hollywood stars back to the "legitimate" stage, is planning to stage a new revue on Broadway within a few weeks under the tile, "The Jazz City." He has hopes of securing Ina Claire as one of his leading entertainers. C. C.

Brain Absorbs Sugar as Food for Its Thought

Uses More Than Do the Human Muscles.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 31.—(AP)—A man's brain, busy thinking, uses more sugar than one of his arms or legs, the American Association for the Advancement of Science was told today.

Blood, on its trips through the head, drops much of its sugar in the brain along the way. So reported Dr. Abraham Myerson of Boston, Mass. Brains of people who are conscious absorb twice as much sugar as when the same people are unconscious under ether, he said. His discovery is a new aid to study of mental and nervous troubles.

Dr. Myerson found the brain absorbed much sugar from the blood in almost every one of the 300 persons whom he tested. Just how the brain uses the sugar, whether the sugar is an actual "food for thought," is not yet certain. He tested the blood as it moved into the brain through an artery, and again as it left the brain through the jugular vein, before it could mix with blood from the rest of the body. He also tested blood entering the arm, and leaving the arm through the basilic vein.

"The jugular vein in every instance, except four, contained less sugar than did the basilic vein," Dr. Myerson said. "Thus the brain uses or withdraws more sugar per 100 cubic centimeters of blood than does the arm or the leg.

"We carried on a series of ether experiments," he continued, "to study the pressure conditions within the brain, in which samples of blood were taken before ether and at the height of etherization. There was less than one-half of the sugar used or stored in the brain during anesthetization than was so used before anesthetization."

Some of the excess of sugar in the body in cases of diabetes seems to be stored in the brain, Dr. Myerson discovered. Describing blood tests of a patient with diabetes, he said:

"The amount of sugar stored in the brain in this case was far in excess of that of any case that we had, indicating that in a diabetic, sugar is stored in the brain or at least disappears from the blood in excessive amounts. During ether the amount stored or disappearing in the brain was greatly reduced."

Using tests of blood entering and leaving the brain "as a basis of approach to the chemical and physical activities of the brain," said Dr. Myerson, "offers a safe and fruitful approach to the clinical and scientific problems of neurology and psychiatry."

TO FEED HUNGRY

JOAN MEYER.

Miss Meyer of the Billy Bryant Show Boat company will play the maid in "East Lynne," to be given as a benefit for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Hungry School Children's fund on Thursday afternoon at the Cort theater.

Fort Sheridan Trees Providing Fuel for Needy

Wood fuel continued to go into the homes of the needy and unemployed in Shields township of Lake county yesterday as twenty-six men, hitherto unemployed, cut down trees in the Fort Sheridan reservation. Brig. Gen. Frank Bolles of Foft Sheridan and Daniel A. Hentges, township supervisor, who arranged the plan, said that besides providing fire wood for the poor, the 160 acre timber tract would be cleaned out of old and diseased trees and made ready for visitors who inspect Fort Sheridan during the 1933 Century of Progress in Chicago.

Doctor Warns: Hunger Perils Mind of Child

Praises Fund for School Lunches.

The growth and mental development of school children may be seriously impaired by a starvation diet. This was the warning issued yesterday by Dr. Gilbert Fitz-Patrick, well known obstetrician and public health authority, in stating his approval of THE TRIBUNE'S Hungry School Children's fund.

Dr. Fitz-Patrick is a member of the medical committee of the state board of registration and education and chairman of the Illinois branch of the American Society for Control of Cancer. He was appointed by former President Coolidge in 1928 as one of four American delegates to the international congress of tropical medicine and hygiene at Cairo, Egypt. In the previous year he was a delegate to the Royal Institute of Public Health in Ghent, Belgium, acting as an official representative of the United States army.

"One of the most serious effects of an inadequate diet for children," said Dr. Fitz-Patrick, "is often disregarded—the depletion which affects the ductless glands, which have much to do with growth and development.

"Every one is not affected in the same way by a starvation diet. But it tends to so disturb the ductless glands that they in turn destroy the mental balance or poise of a child. A child may easily become decidedly unbalanced mentally in this way.

"For children who have been on a starvation diet for even a short time to attempt to study is impossible. They become laggards in their classes because they cannot help it. When they begin getting nourishing food in sufficient quantities they undergo a complete change.

"THE TRIBUNE is undertaking a splendid thing by feeding these malnourished children right in the schools. If the child is deprived of a decent diet it naturally affects him physically—but what is far worse is this effect on him mentally. Science now traces a direct connection between the ductless glands and the mental condition, and for a healthy mental state we must have normally functioning ductless glands. This is impossible on a starvation diet."

The Hungry School Children's fund is distributed by Miss Frances Swain of the board of education to the schools which need it most. These in turn feed the hungry children free of cost in the school cafeterias. Other children in the school do not know which children are recipients of the free lunches. The latest contributions are:

BY EDWARD MOORE.

NEW YEAR'S EVE and "Mignon" made a combination that defied all unkindness of weather and filled the Civic Opera house in all its magnificent distances to the back row. Seldom has a newcoming year been more happily ushered into the world.

Whereupon the opera company met its responsibilities in its finest and most urbane manner. It gave a performance of this greatly melodious work with style and finish, incidentally presenting two artists who deserve to rate as stars high in the operatic sky. They were Miss Glade and Mr. Schipa.

Miss Glade began with the company only a few seasons ago as a girl of great talent and promise. Now the promise is being fulfilled. She is arriving. In fact, last night she arrived.

Those who attended heard some glorious singing from her, especially in the second act, toward the end of the first scene and in the beginning of the second. It was rejoiceful singing, perhaps better than the music written for her to sing. But as long as there is a voice like this in the company there is the best possible reason for giving "Mignon." Besides her singing she thoroughly knows her way around the stage. She has an instinctive talent for doing the right thing.

Further luminosity was shed by Mr. Schipa, he of the golden velvet voice. Wise in the lore of the lyric stage, he is especially able in the portrayal of dignified romance, of good manners expressed in persuasive, graceful melody. Of this there is much in "Mignon," in fact the rôle of Wilhelm Meister is mostly that. His "Adieu, Mignon," was a model of what romantic singing should be. Incidentally it was his first time of singing the rôle in French.

Miss Salvi, by sheer skill, added to the lyric joys of the evening. She is an uncommonly good looking person and a clever comedian, and, though her voice was not entirely up to its full power, the adept art with which she sang the Polonaise won her a triumph along with the rest.

Mr. Vanni-Marcoux followed his custom when he sang the rôle of the mad harper, which is to give a performance that excels in finish, poise, the polish of high art. The piece was staged to make a whole series of attractive pictures. Even the fire in the second act looked more like a fire than most stage conflagrations are in the habit of doing. It even included an amateur bucket brigade. And Mr. Cooper got more out of the score than at least one person had previously imagined was in it.

BRITON DEPICTS 1950 CITIZENS AS RACE OF OF BUTTON PUSHERS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—A peep into a Britisher's life in 1950 was given today by Sir Hugh Allen, director of the Royal College of Music. Addressing a conference of the Incorporated Society of Musicians, he predicted the ages of the human race would be roughly divided into three parts—the old age known as B. C., the more modern age known as A. D., and a future age to be known as B. B. C.

"I want you to realize what will be the life of a person in 1950, lying in bed in the morning in his room, surrounded by an enormous apparatus covered with switches, buttons, and various other things."

"At 8 o'clock a signal will say, 'This is the British Bath company. We are taking you over to the company for a midregional program.'

"After that we will have our breakfast by the British Breakfasting company, then touch another button and go by the British Bus company. We will live in lodgings provided by the British Boarding company. We will be born by British birth control, named by the British Baptism company, married under the bride and bridegroom convention, buried by the British Burial company, and that is the end of life. You will see that the age in which we live is that of B. B. C."

Sir Hugh declared the trouble with modern life was that there was no time to sort anything or let anything soak in.

Thrice in Jail as Slacker, Now Briton Is Baron

Holds Political Trenches for M'Donald.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Dec. 31.—A big surprise in the New Year's honors list, issued tonight, was contained in the elevation to the peerage of Richard Clifford Allen, Independent Labor party leader and one of the foremost conscientious objectors to the world war. Allen, formerly chairman and treasurer of the Independent Labor party, was imprisoned three times as a "conchy" during the war.

He was a Socialist delegate to Russia in 1920 and an executive member of the Labor and Socialist International from 1924 to 1926. During the political crisis last autumn he became a staunch supporter of Prime Minister MacDonald and his national government.

The "prime minister's list" of honors includes one viscountcy conferred on Lord Sankey, who has been lord chancellor since 1929, five barons, three privy councillors, three baronets and 51 knights bachelor. The peerage conferments reflect the fact that the present administration has the support of three parties for the honors affecting the Conservatives, two Labor politicians and one Liberal.

Two by-elections will be caused by the elevation to the peerage of Lieut. Col. Wilfred Ashley and Sir William Mitchell-Thomson, both former ministers. Lord Sankey's new honor is regarded in some quarters as a prelude to his retirement from the lord chancellorship.

The remaining honors were chiefly for political and public services.

It was also announced that King George bestowed the title of Princess Royal on his daughter, Princess Mary, countess of Harewood. The title of Princess Royal has been in abeyance since the death of Princess Louise, the king's eldest sister, in last January.

More About Reasons for the British Honor List.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—On the New Year's honors list Baron Sankey, lord chancellor, is made a viscount in recognition of his patience in handling the federal structure committee of the round table conference; three of five new peers were members of Stanley Baldwin's Conservative ministry before 1929. They are Walter Guinness, a member of the famous brewery family and former minister of agriculture; Sir William Mitchell-Thomson, former postmaster general; and Lieut. Col. Wilfrid Ashley, former minister of transport.

To show the government is truly national there also is a peerage for Leif Jones, Liberal member of parliament, well known for his temperance views.

Among the knights are Major John Evelyn Wrench, editor of the Spectator and founder of the English speaking union; Ernest D. Simon, former member of parliament and widely known as a housing expert; John A. Hammerton, editor of the Universal Encyclopaedia; Harry H. Dale, director of the national institute for medical research; Thomas W. Cara, secretary of the Newspaper Proprietors association, and Joseph R. C. Hill, who has had a brilliant record as commercial counsellor of the British embassy in Paris.

Knighthood is also awarded to George Buckstone Brown, who purchased Charles Darwin's house at Downe, Kent, and presented it to the British association for the advancement of science "in custody for the nation."

Three new baronets who will have the hereditary title "Sir" are Arthur M. Samuel, former financial secretary of the treasury; Percy A. Harris, Liberal member of parliament, and Sir Harry Hope, former member of parliament for Scottish constituencies.

Literature, music and the arts are almost ignored in the new honors list, although, as usual, there are hundreds of awards to civil servants and army and navy officers. John Buchan, Scottish historian, essayist and politician joins the order of companions of honor, and Sir Walford Davies, composer of choral works, becomes a commander of the Royal Victorian order.

In the air force list Squadron Leader Augustus H. Orlebar, commander of Britain's Schneider cup team, is promoted to the rank of wing commander. The Kaiser I. Hind medal for public services to India is awarded to J. H. Whitley, former speaker of the house of commons, who became chairman of the royal commission on labor in India. A few years ago, on his retirement, Whitley violated the almost unbroken tradition by declining a peerage, which always is offered to a former speaker.

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago states:

Movie Gossip as It's Heard in Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 31.—Cozy home parties, instead of the big café gatherings of former years, marked the screen colony's welcome to the year 1932.

Miriam Hopkins gave a dinner dance for 20 at her Santa Monica home. Carole Lombard and Bill Powell entertained a circle of close friends which included the Richard Barthelmesses and the Ernest Torrences.

Marion Davies threw a big masked party. One person attending was Joan Bennett, who wore the Russian doll costume that Janet Gaynor wore in her last picture, "Delicious."

Joan was squired by Gene Markey, dressed as a Russian boy.

Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks had Doug Junior and his wife, Joan Crawford, together with her friends in at Pickfair to call quits with 1931.

Clara Beranger [Mrs. William DeMille] has resumed a career as movie writer. She is adapting Samuel Hopkins Adams' "The Flagrant Years" into a movie version.

Jim Thorpe, the one time world champion athlete, is training down to something near his old weight in order to play himself in "Red Son of Carlisle."

Tulane university football players, who meet Southern California here Friday, came to California with good resolutions to stay away from movie studios and movie actresses. But the curiosity to see both proved too universal to be stayed, and one of the Tulane boys attended a movie première early this week with Dorothy Jordan, who has been chosen as the New Orleans team's local mascot.

Paramount studio has adopted a color scheme for its scenarios, having them typed on yellow, white, blue and pink paper. Yellow paper conveys the information at a glance that the version is a rough draft of a story, made up for set designers, wardrobe and other similar departments and subject to changes. The white script is furnished the players to learn their lines. Revisions in dialogue are done on blue paper and inserted in the white scripts. After a film is finished any added scenes or retakes are written on pink sheets.

Jack Oakie will go to great lengths for a gag. For a party during the Christmas holidays he had his home torn up and so altered as to resemble the "crazy houses" of amusement parks. There were stairways that folded up, chairs with rubber legs, electric connections in unsuspected places, and some more of the guaranteed laugh getters of the late lamented Heinegabubeler's noted practical joke place on South State street, Chicago.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Some of the entertainments given today and tonight as part of New Year's celebration were:

Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken gave a party for fifty young persons at Scott Paton's New Year's eve supper dance in the Essex house ballroom. The party was for her niece, Miss Gernda von Briesen, and her nephew, Hans von Briesen II. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hitchcock gave a dinner last evening at their residence, 400 East Fifty-eighth street, in honor of Miss Kathleen H. Curtis and Alfred Wagstaff III., who will be married on Jan. 7 in St. Bartholomew's church.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Ogden Kilbourne gave a tea dance in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Sarah Kilbourne, at the Colonial Dames house.

Mr. and Mrs. Garret A. Hobart sponsored a dance at their country home, Ailsa Farms, in Haledon, N. J., to introduce their daughter, Miss Elizabeth F. Hobart.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Tuck French from Tuxedo Park are at the Westbury.

Miss Doris Duke had a party for dinner in the new dancing club in the Ciro room this evening.

Mrs. John J. Watson had a party for luncheon in the Plaza terraced restaurant. Others who gave luncheons there were Mrs. Sethenes Behn and Mrs. Edward S. J. McVickar.

Showdown Advisable When Engagements Drag on Three Years

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am a young lady of 23. I make a steady salary of $30 a week. I'm going with a young man, 30, who makes $45 a week. But, somehow or other, there is always an excuse for putting off our intended marriage. He's either helping some member of his family, who really could get along without the help or there's not enough money to marry on, or there is fear that he will lose his job. What do you think of a situation like this?—YOURS TRULY."

Situations of the sort need one long evening in which there is much and very serious conversation about the future. The aim of this particular evening's talk should be to arrive at a definite objective. The romance as it stands now is suffering the well known old malady of procrastination. There's nothing concrete, definite, decisive, about it to buck it up. It's just drifting, that's all.

If fears for this and fears for that enter, it is natural enough. It's too wobbly on its feet. It needs a definite wedding day. It needs a definite sum of money decided upon for that day. You may not arrive at the sum decided upon—but, at least, you're giving the romance stiffening. It needs form, shape, something concrete for plans to be built upon.

There is need of a head for managing. If the man is the weaker one, then the woman should take the wheel. Better, though, if the responsibility of seeing it through to marriage is left to the man. There's nothing like a good, responsible wedding day to take the shilly shallying out of a proscastinator.

Three years of expressed intentions to marry earn a girl the right to ask when the Big Day is to be pulled off. It's her lookout to see that she's not going to be dragged along into a fourth, fifth, and sixth year no closer to the marriage rail.

The third year is a dangerous year for courtships, it is claimed. The lagging spirit overcomes them. They need some new impetus to stir them up. And I can suggest no better impetus than a showdown on when the marriage is to take place. If the man's idea is never—at least, the girl isn't carried along aimlessly into another and another year.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

An enrollment of 40,000 women in the Illinois division of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform was announced yesterday from the headquarters at 700 North Michigan avenue. The Illinois division reported members in 85 of the 102 counties and announced that plans will soon start an intensive rural as well as urban campaign for members during 1932.

Annie Mason to Make Debut in Winnetka

TWO debutantes, both Winnetka girls, will make their formal bows to society on this, the first day of the new year, and there will be any number of informal at homes in town and in the suburbs. The debutantes are Miss Annie Warren Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roswell B. Mason, who will be introduced at a tea dance from 4 to 7 o'clock at the Indian Hill club.

Receiving with the debutante and her parents will be her maternal grandfather, James A. Warren, and assisting will be a group of sister debs, including the Misses Phyllis Ferry, Dorothy Gerhard, Peggy Glidden, Welythan Harmon, Louise Ruffner, Mary Ellen Prindiville, Marion Calkins, Chloe Watson, Helen Walcott, Adelaide Atkin, Margaret Hamill, and Mary Cushman.

The other of the first two debutantes of 1932 is Miss Virginia Miller, who will be presented by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Miller, at a tea at their residence, 670 Walden road, Winnetka, from 4 to 7 o'clock. Assisting will be Miss Ferry, Miss Harmon, Miss Lucy Stone, Miss Barbara Bell, Miss Evelyn Bouscaren and Miss Dorothy Lewis of Philadelphia, Mrs. Jane Power of Madison, Wis.; Mrs. Joseph Laird, Mrs. Sanger Hinchman, Mrs. Frederick Thomas, Mrs. C. Ives Waldo, Mrs. Spencer S. Beman Jr., and Mrs. Walter F. Wallace. Both the debs are Smith college sophomores.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wolfe and a party of friends motored up to Ephriam, Wis., yesterday to greet the new year at the country place of Mrs. Wolfe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock. In the gay house party, which will return Sunday night, are the Frederick Blossoms, the Boyd Hills, the Edward Georges, and the John G. Curtises.

Miss Frances Archbold arrives today from New York to visit Mrs. Howard Shaw and Miss Theodora Shaw. Miss Shaw returns to Sarah Lawrence college Sunday but Miss Archbold will remain with Mrs. Shaw for a time. Both Miss Archbold and Miss Shaw are debuantes of this season.

Members of the Chicago club will be guests of the club itself at luncheon today. It is an annual event; has been so every New Year's day since the club was founded sixty-two years ago. The attendance promises to be, as usual, large.

John R. Leonard, Son and Daughter Give Party Today.

One of the largest at homes will also be in Winnetka, that of the family of John Robert Leonard. Mr. Leonard, his son, Daniel, and his daughter, Harriet, will receive from 4 to 7 at Wildacre. Mr. and Mrs. Hibbard Casselberry [Mary Elizabeth Leonard], whose names were on the invitations, were unable to come up from Winter Park, Fla., where they are living now, so they will be missed at this annual affair.

Assisting will be a large group of friends, including Mrs. E. Ashley Gerhard, Mrs. Robert McDevitt, Mrs. William E. Casselberry, Mrs. John Reilly, Miss Margaret, Emily Lynde, the Misses Louise and Antoinette Lackner, Miss Jane McKinney, Miss Marcella Venema, Miss Judith Walsh, Mrs. Wallace Flower, Mrs. Hallett Thorne, Mrs. Leonard Bridges, Miss Margot Atkin, Mrs. Franklin Agnew and her sister, Mrs. Edward Harkness, Mrs. Lawrence Norem, Miss Theresa Rew, Miss Helen Chapman, Miss Mary Barry, Miss Betty Hunt, and Mrs. William Magie. The sub-deb daughter of the family, Deborah, will be present with a few of her friends but it will be several years before her name is included with the other members of the family on the engraved invitations to the annual new year's reception.

The William S. Monroes and Miss Harriet Monroe are not having their usual large party today, for Mrs. Monroe only returned from China the day after Christmas, but they have invited a few friends to tea at their residence.

In line with the current vogue for Swedish art and all things Swedish, the Junior Friends of Art are starting off the new year with a meeting on Tuesday afternoon in the Swedish room of the Art institute. The feature of the [illegible] will be a lecture by Miss Helen Parker on "Peasant Life and Art in Sweden" and, for good measure, a discussion of Russian ikons. Tea will be served after the program.

Kellogg Fairbanks Cancel Usual New Year Reception.

The Kellogg Fairbanks gave up their customary buffet luncheon on the first day of the new year on account of the recent death of their dear friend, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter. Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett have asked some of their friends in for refreshments at noon today at their residence, 43 East Burton place.

Miss Mary Pomeroy Green of 1149 North La Salle street will receive with her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Treat of Ojai, Cal., from 2 until 9 o'clock. Calvin Fentress and those of his family who are here will be at home after 5 o'clock at the Fentress residence, Fenbrook, in Hubbard Woods. Among those receiving with Mr. Fentress will the junior Calvin Fentresses, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Fentress, Harriet, Paul and James Fentress. Mrs. Fentress is in New York visiting another daughter, Mary, now Mrs. Burwell Dodd.

The Ford R. Carters are having a tea today from 5 to 7 o'clock at their residence, 1315 Ritchie court, for their guest, Mrs. Carleton Holdrege of Paris, formerly of Chicago. The junior Henry K. Chapins are asking some of their friends to call this evening at their residence, 401 Fullerton parkway, after 8:30 o'clock.

Among others who will keep open house today are Mr. and Mrs. Orville W. Thompson of 179 Lake Shore drive who will receive from 5 to 7 o'clock; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lindley Redheffer of 1430 Lake Shore drive, whose hours are from 5 to 9 o'clock, and Miss Mary Maud Bermingham and Miss Carol Knapp, who will receive at the latter's residence, 1714 Hinman avenue, Evanston, from 4 to 7 o'clock. The Cordon will hold its annual New Year's day reception from 4 to 7 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. John Borden to Celebrate in Mississippi.

Mr. and Mrs. John Borden are having a New Year's house party at their plantation in Mississippi. Mr. Borden and their six guests, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Walker, left on Wednesday, and will return to Chicago on Monday.

Mrs. Melvin Brorby and her sister, Mrs. Carter Morgan, who departed on Christmas night for a holiday stay in Clarksville, Tenn., will return on Monday.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover had guests dining informally with them this evening at the White House; otherwise the day was quietly spent.

The chief of the division of international conferences and Mrs. James Clement Dunn gave a dance this evening in their home at Observatory Circle.

The Vice President, Charles Curtis, and his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, will not receive tomorrow, but will make calls.

Mlle. Reine Claudel, daughter of the French ambassador and Mme. Claudel, was hostess at dinner before the dance, and Mrs. Ingalls Sard gave a dinner party for her debutante daughter, Miss Abigail Sard.

The members of the cabinet and their wives are holding open house tomorrow afternoon, with the exception of the secretary of state and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, who will give their annual New Year day breakfast tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock at the Pan-American union, in place of an afternoon at home, and the secretary of the treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, who will not receive.

Diplomats and members of the army and navy, justices of the Supreme court and cabinet members will attend the official New Year's reception at the White House tomorrow. There will be many other guests for last year President and Mrs. Hoover shook hands with more than 5,000 persons on New Year's day. This year they will begin at 11 o'clock by receiving members of the diplomatic corps, then members of the cabinet, the judiciary, the army and navy, and finally the citizenry.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison S. Kendall of Fort Wayne, Ind., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Ellen Nichols, to Wilson Hamilton De Camp, son of Mr. and Mrs. David De Camp of Kenilworth. Miss Nichols studied for 3 years at the Margaret Morrison Carnegie College for Women and will graduate from Purdue next February. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. A Wise Parent Never Refuses to Listen to Child's Explanations

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"Did you say it, James? Answer yes or no."

"But Daddy—"

"Did you or didn't you? Say yes or no!"

"Yes Daddy, but—."

"Then you lied. I don't want to hear a word. You're just making excuses. Don't let me hear another word about it."

In this way a father, the other day, blocked his little boy's attempt to explain, when he was accused of lying. Upset, a little frightened, the child was quite dumbfounded when he found that what to him was a perfectly innocent speech was suddenly taking on the color of a lie. Bewildered, he tried to explain but wasn't given half a chance.

How can people be so harsh and unjust with children? Even a prisoner at the bar, accused of a heinous crime, is given a chance to defend himself. Why not a child?

People have a way of thinking children are overly ready with excuses, and try to get out of things. I have not found it so; not nearly as much so as with grownups.

We want our children to be straightforward. If we are so with them, if we believe them when they tell us things, our children will be frank and honest. As to explanations, we should always listen to them. I have never yet found myself jumping at conclusions and not giving a child credit, without soon finding myself in the wrong. Children don't always see our values, even what we call moral issues with the eyes of an adult. What may seem even dishonest or like an untruth to us may appear in an entirely different light to them.

It Can Be Done!

1932 is here! What it will bring forth no one knows and we do not intend to "Wait and Find Out"

We did not sit idly by in 1931 and wait for the breaks to come—or for things to happen.

We presented every important motion picture produced and combed the country for the biggest stage attractions. And we topped off our 1931 achievements with the greatest innovation in the history of the theater, by presenting for the first time in a motion picture theater a $4.40 musical comedy, "GIRL CRAZY," intact, direct from its loop theater engagement—at our regular popular prices.

Is it any wonder our business was good in 1931? Is it any wonder that discriminating shoppers who want their dollar to buy the utmost in entertainment, attended our theaters in such tremendous numbers?

We have already looked seriously into 1932 and we find that the motion picture producers realize with us that the great picture of yesterday is but the ordinary picture of today and that they are producing pictures that are BETTER THAN GOOD.

Some of these pictures are: MARIE DRESSLER in "EMMA"; MAURICE CHEVALIER and Jeannette MacDonald in "ONE HOUR WITH YOU"; MARLENE DIETRICH and Clive Brook in "THE SHANGHAI EXPRESS"; GRETA GARBO, Ramon Novarro, Lionel Barrymore in "MATA HARI"; WALLACE BEERY and CLARK GABLE in "HELL DIVERS"; "THE MAN I KILLED" with Nancy Carroll, Phillips Holmes, Lionel Barrymore; RONALD COLMAN in "ARROWSMITH"; RUTH CHATTERTON in "TOMORROW AND TOMORROW" with Paul Lukas.

—And our stages will continue to bring the outstanding stars of the screen and stage.

January 15th we will make new motion picture theater history—the Chicago Theater will present EDDIE CANTOR and GEORGE JESSEL on the stage in their own show!

Today we introduce WALTER O'KEEFE, comedy star of "The Third Little Show," at the ORIENTAL THEATER. DENNIS KING, star of "The Vagabond King," comes soon. Then CAB CALLOWAY and his Cotton Club Orchestra.

Our faith in Chicago will never dim. At these times, when normal business activity has been retarded by unusual economic conditions, we built and opened the SOUTHTOWN, as fine a theater as there is in America.

We promise to continue to bring to Chicago more and finer entertainment in 1932 than we have ever done before.

This is our pledge, sincerely given!

TO ALL CHICAGO
A Happy New Year

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 31.—Steady rainfall which for the last eleven days has drenched the turf of Rose Bowl today interfered with last minute practice sessions of the Tulane and Southern California football teams which meet here tomorrow to decide the national championship.

Today's rain, which soaked down in spite of the federal weather man's assurance of dry weather, slowed up seat sales, but only after they had passed the 74,000 mark, assuring the biggest crowd ever to pay admission to the annual New Year's day intersectional battle.

Both Teams Cry the Blues.

The Trojans, with their heavier backs and meatier line, might be expected to profit by the change from secure to mushy footing if it were not for the fact the Southern California attack stresses the quick massing of interference with ball carrier cutting back over the opposition left tackle on many plays. These plays and the Trojan spinners and reverses, which also require quick starts and agile footwork in the back field, were in Coach Howard Jones' mind when he expressed concern this afternoon over the downpour.

The change also affected Tulane's offensive strength. The southerners rely on speed and the chance of shooting the two ends far down field to take long forward passes for their scoring opportunities.

Both coaches visited the Rose Bowl to test the field and derived some slight satisfaction from assurances that the field is the fastest draining football grounds in America. It is located over an all rock foundation and surface water ordinarily drips through it in the manner of water draining through a stone filter.

Coaches Mum on Outcome.

Neither Coach Bennie Bierman of Tulane nor Howard Jones of the Trojans indulged in predictions about the outcome. Bierman maintained the glum look which he brought to California two weeks ago and said he expected to see his team outscored. This was more optimistic than his earlier statements in which he conceded Southern California a victory by 28 to 7. Jones said he thought his men were in shape for a hard game.

Whether his conversations with other coaches, reports from his own scouts, or the reputed strength of the Trojan line had caused him to revise his playing system, Bierman did not say, but he did state that his team would be prepared to play either a six man defense line or a seven man line against the Trojans, as seemed necessary. In all former games this season the New Orleans boys have relied on a six man line, using a roving forward to back up the defense wall against running plays. Southern California adheres to a six man defense line.

EAST IS FAVORITE

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 31.—(AP)—With the tentative starting lineups announced, football players who clash in the annual East-West charity game tomorrow had only brief workouts today.

The east team continued the favorite because of the strength of its line. There are more small schools represented on the west squad than on most of the previous west teams. Two of the best teams of the section, Southern California and California, are not represented because of other post-season engagements.

For the west Toscani and Mason offer the outstanding pass combination. Mason will be at the quarter back post, and Toscani will pair with Kleckner at the half back positions. Davis rounds out the quartet at full back.

The power house ball carriers of the east, Russell and Hinkle, are expected to start with Bill Morton in the combination as a passing threat. Purvis of Purdue completes the group.

Weather forecasts indicated the game would be played under clear skies.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Notre Dame by one point, 22 to 21. That was the New Year eve celebration the Irish basketball quintet staged last night at Patten gymnasium against Northwestern.

Honors were even in goals from the field. Notre Dame's victory, its second this season over the Wildcats, was scored from the penalty line.

The scoring, however, did not tell the story of last night's battle. The play was furious, body contact basketball, more worthy perhaps of the gridiron. Had it been possible to call all violations of rules, neither team could have mustered a quintet in the final five minutes.

N. U. Rallies, Then Irish.

Neither team ever boasted of more than a five point lead. Four thousand saw the struggle. They cheered Northwestern's great rally, which overtook Notre Dame early in the second half. And then they roared once again when the Irish, losing 21 to 16, with only five minutes left, rallied to score six points.

It was a particularly disappointing defeat for Northwestern. The Wildcats, since their defeat at South Bend, 32 to 25, more than a week ago, had concentrated on this contest almost to the exclusion of the Big Ten race which opens Monday night.

And it was doubly disappointing, for Northwestern seemed to have conquered Notre Dame. But they had not counted on Dick Davis and Big Ed Krause. It was Davis who rallied a tired Notre Dame team to win the first game. And last night it was the same, speedy forward who whipped through Northwestern's defenders for two field goals. Ed Krause, former De La Salle prep star, was high scorer for Notre Dame. Starting at center, he made three field goals and two free throws in the first half.

Krause's Goal Decisive.

Krause returned in the second half at guard and added one more goal and two free throws. Krause's one hand shot sent Notre Dame to the front, 22 to 21. His free throwing, four points in five attempts, was equally important, for Notre Dame's players could make good only eight out of 14 such attempts.

Northwestern started fast and had a 5 to 1 lead in the early play. There their scoring efforts ended until Krause had led his mates to the front, 10 to 5. Then Don Brewer, replacing Capt. Bob McCarnes of Northwestern, scored from ten feet out and Reiff concluded the half with a free throw on Tommy Burns' foul. It was Burns' fourth of the game and he retired in favor of Clay Johnson. Burns, during his tenure, had guarded Reiff.

Continuing their attack in the second period, Northwestern tied the count at 11 all on Johnson's penalty shot and Reiff's basket from under the loop.

Crowe Ties Score.

Farber fouled Bill Newbold and Notre Dame led by a point. An out-of-bounds play let Reiff count for a 13 to 12 lead for the Wildcats. Elmer Johnson's free throw added a point, but Norb Crowe's field goal deadlocked the score at 14.

Northwestern rallied for five points, a field goal by Brewer, another by Johnson on a pass from Saul Farber, and a one pointer by Bus Smith when Decook held him.

Here Davis came in and his basket from close up cut the lead to three points. Reiff's long shot reëstablished the Wildcat advantage. Krause toed the free throw line and dropped in two shots, the result of Elmer Johnson's vigorous shove under the basket. Davis streaked across the court and sunk a shot. One point behind, Notre Dame took possession and worked the ball down to Krause, who pivoted and threw with one hand directly through the hoop.

Less than two minutes remained and during that time the Irish stalled. Northwestern, however, had several shots, but these bounced from the rim, or rolled across the back of the iron support.

Advice to Young Athletes from One Who Has Watched

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 31.—Sometimes the football coaches are lumped together for critical purposes and made to seem a rather officious and overimportant lot, but they are, on the whole, about the best people in the sport business, and it is no pleasure to note that their business is now going the way of the street car business.

The United States has been play-crazy for about ten years, but the children's hour is about over now and there is coming a period when play will be only a relief from work and not one of the principal industries of the land.

Still Come the Coaches.

Still, the colleges are turning out masses of coaches and play directors on the old scale of production, a scale which, if it is maintained a few years more, will provide such a plethora of these that for every individual in the country with an hour of play-time there will be half a dozen college-taught specialists available to tell him how to play and how much sugar to put on his breakfast food so as to be able to play more like Thorpe or Bobby Jones or Tilden, the ideals.

I do not now what the heads of the colleges could have been thinking of, aside from the immediate necessity of scaling down the scholastic requirements to the mental capacities of varsity football players obsessed with play, when they went in for the mass production of male nursemaids to direct the youth of the country in advanced versions of ring-around-the-rosy and London bridge is falling down and dab their little hurts with iodine and salve.

They Overlooked This.

They must have thought, if they thought, that play would one day become the sole activity of the entire population, overlooking the important fact that when all the wood was burned up everybody would have to turn to and chop some more.

The coaches of the present list, the men with reputations and jobs, need not worry too much, because college football will not be suspended abruptly. The theory that play in colleges is impossible without the assistance of professional teachers and whippers-up is too firmly held to be abolished within their lifetime.

But even their influence will be diminished and their pay, too, as the game of football is reduced, beginning this fall, to its normal importance and size. But the new classes of coaches and directors, including a great many with fat books of newspaper clippings saved from their varsity days, are going to suffer in the readjustment.

A young man now pursuing the mock-studies of the play department in college, preparing for a degree in physical education would be well advised, I should think, to switch over and learn something useful about machinery so that when the question is put to him a few years hence he can answer, "Well, I can put new bands in a flivver or washers in a kitchen faucet."

The hero business began to fall off long before any one was aware of a change and there have been many cases, close onto tragic, of young athletic idols of the sport pages who came out of school never doubting that the world would pension them off like English generals, only asking them to go through the motions of selling real estate, insurance or bonds.

They got the jobs all right, but by this time sport page heroes were as common as people who have been abroad and the readjustment was more than some of the kids could master.

Cites Richards as Example.

Vincent Richards, at the top of his practice as a professional amateur tennis star, was one of the most successful insurance salesmen of this hero type. He went to Florida during the boom, played some tennis at a development called Davis Islands, which naturally commanded some publicity for the islands, and sold a life insurance policy of one million dollars to Mr. Davis, the promoter.

Young Mr. Richards seemed to be fixed for life, but then the boom ended and Mr. Davis, in the course of some hilarity on the way to Europe, crawled through a porthole on a bet that he could suspend himself over the side by his hands and climb back into the room. He lost his bet and owing to some technicality the policy was disallowed, so Mr. Richards mourned the passing of a casual friend with a sorrow that was something special.

Why Not Try Pro Game.

The best opportunity that I can see for these young fellows lies in professional football. In time that game will reach its full development, but the surplus talent will have been placed in jobs at the thing they know best how to do.

In the meantime the boss-educators might give some thought to the idea of curtailing the output because, as Mussolini pointed out, the people who spend their time in a frenzy of games are not doing essential work. I freely recognize, of course, that this being so, the maximum uselessness is achieved by people who only write about people who spend their time in a frenzy of games.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

What will it be? . . .
If we could just but
Draw aside the curtain
There and see:
The Path of Life,
Its mysteries ahead;
The joy and strife
Where we have yet to tread.
But no . . .
What would the future
Hold in store
If it were revealed?
What secrets would Life
Hold . . . if they were not concealed?
Stand stanch,
And with a stronger heart
Look the New Year face to face
And take a firmer start.

Happy New Year!

A tired old world welcomes the passing of 1931. It hopes vaguely for better things to come. A year ago hope was rosy that 1931 must, of necessity, by comparison, be brighter than 1930. It was not so. Not only in this country, but throughout the world, there is such confusion in business, such lack of employment, such distress, such problems of relief, as most of us have never seen. Thus it is that hope, but still hope, is less sanguine than a year ago.

Yet this world was created, if there be a Creator, for a purpose. If not in our memory, at least in earlier times, world affairs have been blacker. Civilization and progress always have emerged triumphant for still more advanced civilization and progress. One knows not when, but one must feel confident that eventually the sun will shine through these clouds now blocking its rays. Hope and courage are trite words of those giving advice. Yet we must embrace them. Saner thoughts of life and what it means, capacity for sacrifice, more intensive effort, are the badges of hope and courage. Let's pin them on this first day of 1932.

FOOTBALL RULES HEAD DEFENDS SEASON OF 1931

Hall Stresses Physical Side of Sport.

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The National Collegiate Athletic association today at its final session heard football defended as a virile game vital in the fighting of an "insidious miasma of softness" and criticized because there is too often lacking in it the spirit of amateurism, and, still further, heard one university president put responsibility for all collegiate athletic conduct squarely on the shoulders of presidents of individual institutions.

Dr. E. K. Hall, chairman of the American intercollegiate football rules committee, presented a report showing that fatalities charged to the game give an entirely wrong impression; Dr. C. W. Kennedy of Princeton, president of the National Collegiate Athletic association, declared that college sport should be amateur in spirit and that its function was not advertisement of the college, nor maintenance of athletic prestige, nor providing entertainment for spectators.

Says It's Up to Prexy.

Dr. Thomas Gates, president of the University of Pennsylvania, just now undergoing an athletic housecleaning, said that "it is my belief that an institution has today the kind of athletic system that its president wants it to have or permits it to have. In the last analysis the president is responsible."

Dr. Hall said that football rules needed no defense and, pointing to the fact that only two of the more than forty football fatalities which occurred in the 150 schools are members of the N. C. A. A., said that football rules had always been made with the safety of the game in mind, seeking at the same time, however, to preserve the ruggedness of the sport.

The game of football, which has been vigorously attacked during and since the close of 1931 season because of the unusually high number of fatal injuries, was defended by Dr. Hall, who asserted that aside from the injuries the recent season was an unusually satisfactory one from the point of view of the rules committee. Dr. Hall declared football to be the most wholesome and most valuable sport of the schools and colleges.

Reviews Casualty List.

Dr. Hall took up in detail the matter of injuries. He said that for twenty-six years the object of the rules committee has been to keep the game both interesting and safe for the boys who play it.

He declared that no legislation could eliminate from American football all possibility of physical injury. No sport, he maintained, which calls for physical contact, no sport which calls for speed and no sport which calls for a reasonable amount of physical stamina is free from the possibility of physical injury. Football calls for all three.

CARLETON FIVE HANDS DE PAUL 27-23 DEFEAT

Carleton college continued its victorious invasion of the midwest last night by trouncing De Paul, 27 to 23.

It was the sixth straight win for Carleton and ended De Paul's streak.

Taking an early lead of 7 to 1 in the early minutes of play, mainly through the work of Arney and Strom, the invaders led at half time, 15 to 11.

De Paul threatened to tie the score in the closing period and came within two points of doing so. The same Arney and Strom, however, came through with long shots in the closing minutes to hold their lead safe. Lineup:

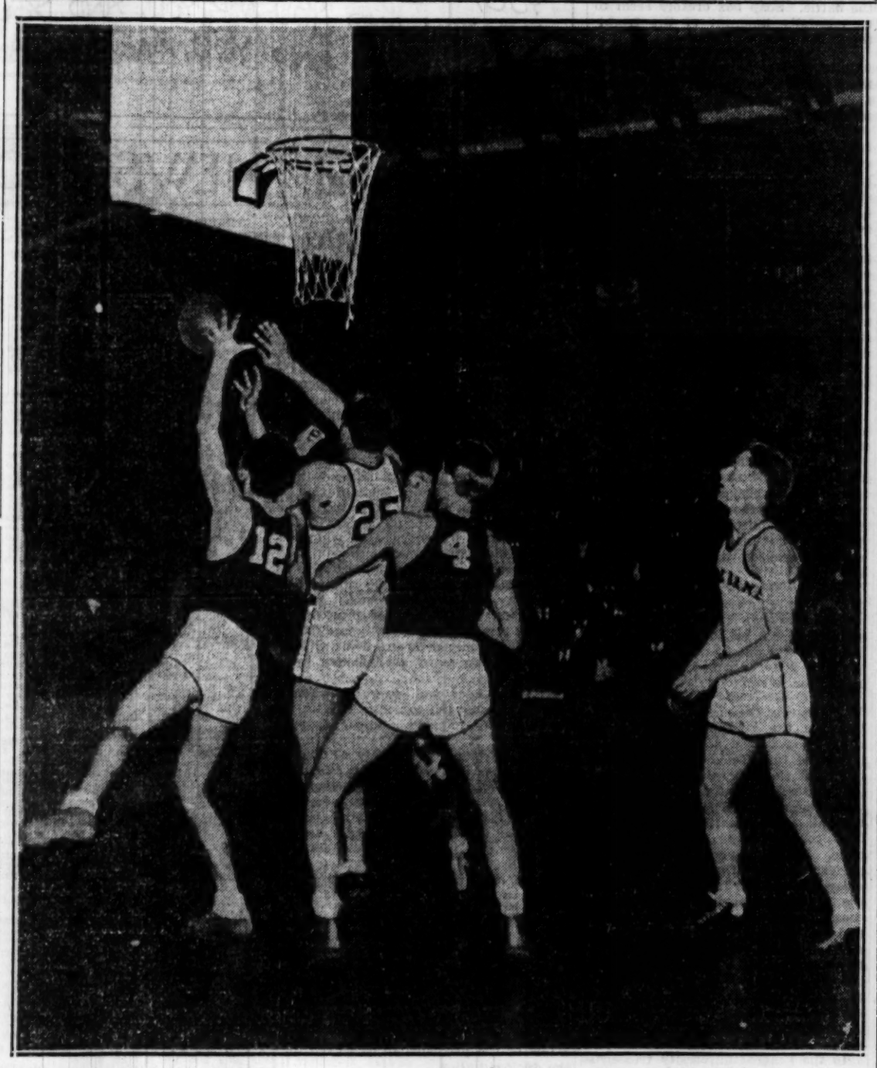
MISSED! A BASKET THAT MIGHT HAVE WON!



Ed Krause spoils another one. The famous Notre Dame tackle, who became equally famous as a basketball player last night, bats Joe Reiff's (No. 12) shot from his hand under Notre Dame's basket in the game at Patten gym. Northwestern lost, 22 to 21. Krause (No. 25) was Notre Dame's star. Helping Reiff in the futile foray is Johnson (No. 4), Northwestern center. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

TALKING IT OVER

BY ARCH WARD.

According to latest dispatches Max Schmeling is not going to fight Mickey Walker at Chicago Stadium after all. I have been reading the sport page comment on the matter and am surprised to find writers who profess to view the collapse of arrangements to bring the bout here with emotions ranging from indignation to seething anger.

Joe Jacobs, manager of Herr Schmeling, is accused of taking a run-out powder after verbally agreeing to let his man work for the Stadium. The plan now is to put on the match in Miami. The site will be changed several times, of course, before the two men enter the ring. This is an essential part of the ballyhoo.

Last year, if you remember, Mr. Jacobs had some of the Chicago boys believing the Schmeling-Stribling match was in the bag for Soldiers' field. He suddenly shifted to Cleveland, leaving the men who thought they were in the know in a bewildered condition.

Mique Malloy is another gentleman of the ring who can tell you something about the ways of fight managers. He once left New York with a Sharkey-Carnera bout in his pocket but lost it before he could get off the train.

In the present disagreement between the Stadium and the champion, Walker and his manager, Jack Kearns, are holding out for Chicago. But Mickey is ready to be a militant martyr and fight anywhere to prove his devotion to the flag, the principles of freedom and fundamentals of democracy. The title must be brought back to America at any cost and

Hyde Park Outlasts Bowen In Double Overtime, 26-24

Three high school basketball teams from Chicago's west district and a fourth from the south side yesterday went into the semi-finals of the Stagg meet at the University of Chicago fieldhouse. They are Crane Tech, Morton High of Cicero, Marshall and Hyde Park.

Two of yesterday's matches, Morton's 20 to 11 defeat of Lindblom, and Marshall's 30 to 15 victory over York, were easy triumphs. But the other two games, the first and last of the day, were among the most spectacular of the meet.

Calumet held Crane point for point until the last few minutes, when Gruenig found the basket for 14 points to give Crane a 24 to 13 victory. Bowen and Hyde Park warred through two overtime periods until Hyde Park at length emerged with a two point triumph, 26 to 24.

Sotos Scores Winning Goal.

At no time during the final game were Bowen and Hyde Park more than a point or two apart. Bowen led 6 to 5 at the quarter, and the teams were deadlocked with 13 points each at half time. It was 17-17 at the three quarter mark, 23-23 at the close of the regular period, and 24-24 at the end of the first overtime.

The game developed into a personal scoring struggle between Bill Haarlow, Bowen forward, and Sam Sotos of Hyde Park. Though Haarlow led in points, with 15 to Sotos' 14, the honor was empty since it was Sam who caged a short basket in the second overtime period to give victory to his team.

Seven of Haarlow's points were free throws. The fact that he was held to four field goals is testimony of the skill of Wetzel and Underhill, Hyde Park guards. Hyde Park owed its victory to superior long distance shooting. Bowen, depending on shots during the in-fighting under the basket, found Hyde Park to consist entirely of ball-hawks.

Marshall Wins Easily.

In the evening opener Marshall rolled over York Community high of Elmhurst with methodical ease. After a close first quarter, which ended at 5 all, Marshall moved to leads of 16 to 7 at the half, 23 to 13 at the three quarter mark and 30 to 15 at the finish.

Marshall controlled the ball most of the game, moving slowly in the back court and flashing into the scoring zone on well planned plays. Substitutes appeared to be as well schooled in the system and adept as regulars.

Long Bob Gruenig, Crane center, remained the most colorful player of the tournament. He was alternately the goat and the hero in the game with Calumet.

Not the least of Gruenig's feats was a goal tipped in with one hand five yards from the basket on a tossup by the refree. Then he missed six free throws within two minutes when he was fouled while shooting by Earl Keth at a crucial stage of the game.

For three-quarters of the game Gruenig found his match in Keth, no

130 ENTER SKI TOURNEY; DECIDE ON DATE TODAY

May Postpone Competition One Week.

One hundred and thirty boys have entered the second annual ski tournament sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and the commissioners of the Northwest Park district, which is scheduled Sunday afternoon at Riis park, Fullerton and Meade avenues. This entry list is eligible to compete even if weather conditions force a postponement of the tournament.

Definite announcement will be made tomorrow morning concerning the tournament. If there is insufficient snow to hold the meet it will be set fo. Jan. 10 at Riis park.

Medals Arrive.

The 13 medals and team trophy arrived yesterday. First, second and third places in each of the four age divisions will receive prizes, while the boy who makes the longest jump of the afternoon, regardless of form, also will be given a gold award.

The team trophy is a silver cup, two feet high, mounted on an ebony base. The team which scores the most points in the four classes will receive the trophy. First place counts five points, second place three points and third place one point.

Norge Entries Strong.

Among the entries received from the Norge Ski club are Howard Jansen, who won one of the two championships decided last year, and Harvey Nilsen, who finished second last year, but won the novice meet in 1930. The Norge club is depending on these boys to win points in the 15 and 16 year old division in an effort to capture the team prize.

The Forest Preserve Ski club and the Fox Athletic club also are outstanding competitors for the trophy.

midget himself, who followed relentlessly, except for a brief interlude in which the 6 foot 8 giant from Crane revolved from his spot on the foul line for a pair of his favorite shots. After the fouling episode Keth, who was all-city center two years ago, transferred his attentions to another man and Gruehig broke loose for four baskets and four free throws in the last seven minutes.

Morton Wins Slow Game.

In the afternoon final, Morton's victory over a Lindblom team which was decidedly off, was slow and unimpressive. Capt. Tom Jordan of Lindblom shot far out on the floor for three baskets. Capt. Irwin Kopecky of Morton, however, was not inserted into the game until the closing minutes and his appearance enlivened the Morton attack considerably. Morton led at the half, 10 to 5. Lineups:

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.
[Commercial Editor.]

The full effect of the business depression was felt by the grain markets the last year with a decline in the price of cash wheat to the lowest figures since 1852 in the local market, with No. 2 red selling at 45c during the month of August, while in Liverpool prices dropped to the levels prevailing when Queen Elizabeth was ruling England more than 300 years ago.

An economic collapse with a drastic reduction in buying power, rather than anything in the supply and demand situation, seems to be responsible for the abnormally low prices which prevailed, as, statistically, wheat should not have sold below 75c in either 1930 or 1931 on the basis of previous experience. There were factors in the situation, such as government interference with distribution, something not contended with in previous business depressions. The full effect of the artificial efforts to sustain values cannot be weighed. However, it is now apparent that the action of the American congress and the Canadian pool to ultimately obtain higher prices became a depressing influence.

Wheat Cannot Be Controlled.

An outstanding feature of the 1931 market was a complete demonstration of the theory that it is beyond the power of any government or individual to influence the price of wheat except for a brief period. The federal farm board sustained the domestic market during the first five months of the year well above a world's parity. Stabilization operations ended on May 31 with cash wheat around 83c and the prices dropped almost 40c after the buying ceased.

All the appreciation in the price of wheat from the depression in 1893-'94, when the farmer secured an average of 49c for his grain, to the high of $2.15 in 1919, has been lost during the last few years, and more. The process of readjustment, however, which promises to bring supply more in line with the reduced demand is now well under way, and better times may be in store for the producer.

Dollar Wheat Not in Sight.

There is nothing in sight at the present time, however, to suggest that wheat will sell above $1 per bushel during the 1932-'33 season, although this will depend largely on whether other leading exporting countries will materially curtail their acreage.

Cash wheat prices in the local market had a range of only 39½c per bushel the last year, an abnormally small spread.

Economic conditions, rather than any other factor, have started to bring about the readjustment between the world's supply and demand. The recent decline in wheat prices has been in the face of decreased production in Russia, and the trade is commencing to believe that the soviets will not prove the depressing factor in the future as was anticipated a year ago.

Corn Crops Below Normal.

While the supply of corn available for consumption during the 1930-31 season was the smallest since 1901-02, the price dropped almost steadily throughout the year to the lowest figures since 1900. The No. 2 grade was quoted at 35c at the inside and at the close of the year the market was practically at the bottom. The smallest foreign demand for American hog products in thirty years with a corresponding decline in hogs had considerable effect on this market, as did the break in wheat. At one time corn sold at a higher figure than wheat, esypecially in the interior. The result was that many million bushels of wheat were used as feed in place of corn, and the latter grain was saved for market.

The corn crop for 1931 proved far below expectations, being 2,556,000,000 bushels, or about 300,000,000 bushels below the average of recent years. Drought in the west and northwest was largely responsible for the poor showing.

From the high of 1930 cash corn has dropped over 70c per bushel, and months ago started to sell at figures materially below the cost of production even after allowing for the drastic decline in farm land values.

Rye Cheaper Than Sawdust.

Action of the oats and rye markets have been largely a repetition of other grains. Small crops proved ineffective as a factor in holding up prices to a basis where the producer could make a profit. Cash oats sold as low as 20½c in August, the lowest figure since 1899, and rye dropped to 34¾c, and was actually cheaper in price than sawdust: The oats crop of 1,112,000,000 bushels in 1931 was the smallest with one exception since 1911. The rye crop was 33,000,000 bushels or only slightly above the average annual domestic disappearance.

Value 1931 Furniture Output at $450,000,000

Domestic furniture output in 1931 was valued at about $450,000,000 according to a special survey of R. G. Dun & Co. This is a decrease of $125,000,000 or 22 per cent from 1930, and a 49 per cent decline from the 1929 output. Buying increased during the fourth quarter, but recuperative influences are still lacking in the industry, the survey said.

Outlook for Real Estate a Bit Brighter

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Most folks like to talk about their operations. If they never had any, they fall back on any outstanding pain. Old Pa Dearborn, who suffered all through 1930 with a bad real estate headache resulting indirectly from the Wall street whoopee of 1929, hardly noticed it during the last twelve months on account of his bad case of first mortgage bond indigestion which occupied most of his attention. Even a bad attack of falling rents didn't stir up much conversation. With this in mind we'll have to review 1931 with the bond pains in the foreground.

HOLMAN D. PETTIBONE.
[Walinger Photo.]

Pettibone Optimistic.

It's too sad a story to dwell on the harrowing symptoms in detail. We all know the bond houses and mortgage bankers, encouraged by our regular bankers, fed Dad Dearborn with such a rich diet of first mortgage bonds that he's been sick ever since. But he's showing definite signs of recovery.

Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, yesterday called attention to the fact that the last stage in such an illness has been reached. Foreclosures have slid down from the big properties until now it's the small homes that are being affected.

This, according to Doc Pettibone, is an encouraging symptom, and he frankly holds out hope for Dad Dearborn. The present pains may last for a while longer, but the next turn, he declares, should be for the better.

New Sales Recorded.

The actual reorganization situation seems more clarified as various bondholders' protective committees gradually get properties on their feet or started in that direction. It seems that most of the big projects that were shaky have taken their expected tumble and are being reorganized. Projects still continue to default, but they are mostly of smaller caliber and signs indicate that the worst is nearly over.

Nothing much can be said about the real estate market itself, for there wasn't much of any in 1931. Realty values, however, have stood up in a way to cheer the heart of the person who believes land is safer to own than stocks or bonds. True, there haven't been many sales and most of them have been distress selling. But more realty owners have stuck it out and held on to their land than have owners of stocks.

Industrial Real Estate.

Industrial real estate has occupied a more conspicuous part of the realty stage than in recent years, at least in comparison with the subdivision, apartment, office building, etc., property which has modestly avoided the spotlight. Of course, the outstanding industrial project of the year was the Central Manufacturing district's announcement of a new 480 acre factory area at 47th and Crawford. This is to be one of the greatest developments of its kind in the world.

In actual construction the year's history is not an especially cheering one to review. The giant $12,000,000 Field office building and the $21,000,000 new postoffice, both under construction, are the outstanding structures. In addition, of course, the World's Fair building program has gone ahead consistently. New buildings for educational and religious uses have helped materially in enlarging construction totals. There has been some factory building.

Little Building in Loop.

In the loop more buildings were wrecked than erected—with the spread of the open air parking idea and the urge to demolish decrepit and dangerous structures. With the exception of the already mentioned Field building, there wasn't a large office building erected in the downtown district during the year.

Apartment building was practically at a standstill. And with rents at the low levels of today, vacancies prevalent in all classes of multiple home structures; and the mortgage bond mess as it is, no one is willing to predict when it'll be resumed.

ATLAS UTILITIES GETS INTEREST IN GOLDMAN SACHS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 31.—The Goldman Sachs Trading corporation and the Atlas Utilities corporation have been brought into close association through the acquisition by Atlas of the largest individual stock interest in the former. The deal is expected to lead eventually to a merger of the two trusts into one with net assets of approximately $160,000,000, the largest in the world.

For the present, as the acquisition does not constitute majority control, Goldman Sachs & Co., investment bankers, will continue to manage their trading corporation. The bankers, it was stated, have not sold any of their interest in Goldman Sachs Trading. Floyd B. Odlum, president of Atlas, would neither state the size of the block that he had purchased nor from whom he had bought it, but it is understood that his interest is now the largest in Goldman Sachs Trading.

U. S. Strongest in Its History, Reynolds Says

BY GEORGE M. REYNOLDS.
[Chairman, executive committee, Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company.]

We have had grave disappointments the last year, but have been through equally trying times before. People who doubt this statement should read the history of 1857, 1873, and 1893. This country is stronger now than it was in either of those years and, therefore, better able to throw off depression. The United States is so rich in resources and its people have such a genius for business that I firmly believe we will whip the depression from which we are now suffering. However, I am still of the opinion, which I have previously expressed—namely: that in order to come into the full enjoyment of real prosperity all of us must get into a better frame of mind, a mental condition in which we will have more faith in God, our country, our fellow men, and ourselves.

GEORGE M. REYNOLDS.

Conditions "Will Improve."

During the first half of 1931 business was making a brave struggle to get a start towards recovery. It needed encouragement. When the proposal for a moratorium on reparations was made the response in Europe and in this country was immediate and decidedly hopeful. The effect of this action did not last long, but conditions in Europe will improve as time goes on and our own recovery, which is bound to come, will help Europe.

England's action in at least temporarily abandoning the gold standard was a bold stroke and for a time the outlook was so dark as to start a run on the dollar. This, however, was not justified by conditions. It resulted more from fear than from anything else, and, fortunately, did not last long.

Says Banks Are Strong.

The thorough liquidation of the past two years has left the banks in a strong position. Reserves at both the federal reserve institutions and the commercial banks are ample to meet all requirements that are likely to be made of them.

For a considerable time people have been more intent upon getting and holding money than upon purchasing goods, houses or securities. Some day accumulating shortages and deferred purchases will bring about a change. It will be discovered that purchasing power still exists, prices will begin rising, and then people will be willing to part with their money for food, clothing, houses, farms and sound securities.

All Markets Closed Today; Resume Work Tomorrow

Business will be suspended throughout the nation today in observance of the New Year holiday. All security and commodity exchanges and the banks will close, but they will be open on Saturday, with the exception of the Chicago Board of Trade, which remains closed until Monday.

GENERAL TIRE CO. UNIT SALES IN 1931 ESTABLISH RECORD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Akron, O., Dec. 31.—Sales of the General Tire and Rubber company during the fiscal year ended Nov. 30 amounted to $20,822,000. During the year the company produced and sold more tire units than during any previous year in its history, President O'Neil reported to stockholders at the annual meeting today.

"We have finished the year with a profit, although we cannot yet tell just how much," Mr. O'Neil said. "During the year we reduced our bank indebtedness to half of what it was. The company has no bonded indebtedness, no debentures and no contingent liabilities, and is in a thoroughly liquid condition. We have maintained the record of never having passed a dividend.

"We are confidently looking forward to a year of increased business in 1932. There is a limit to the time that people can get along without merchandise that they actually need, and I believe that limit has about been reached."

ALWARD TELLS HOW FIRM CAN STAY IN BUSINESS

BY V. L. ALWARD.
[President American Furniture Mart.]

The furniture business finds itself today where it must make an important decision. Three roads stretch out before it; one road is marked "Selling the product at a loss," one is marked "Not selling the product," and the third "Selling the product at a profit."

Obviously the first two lead to the same destination—failure; only the third leads to the destination marked "Success."

To state it differently, there are two ways to go out of business—the first, by selling merchandise at a loss; the second, by not selling a sufficient volume of merchandise. And there is only one way of staying in business, and that is by selling at a price which will show a profit.

Only those firms which have the courage, in spite of general business conditions at present affecting all businesses, to take the third road can hope to survive. Knowing that their merchandise is good, that their costs of production are right, that their quality is being traded up, that their business is built on the solid foundation of honesty and operated in the interests of the consuming public—only those can hope to arrive at the destination marked "Success."

HOLLAND WILL REDEEM SIXTY MILLIONS OF LOAN

New York, Dec. 31.—The kingdom of the Netherlands has called 150,000,000 guilders [about $60,000,000, on the present exchange basis], of its 6 per cent fifty-year loan of 1922, maturing March 1, 1972. Dillon, Read & Co., who headed a syndicate which sold 75,000,000 guilders of the bonds in America in March, 1922, at $940 per bond of 2,500 guilders, made the announcement today that the bonds will be redeemed in New York on April 1 next at par, at the current rate of exchange on the date of presentation. The original loan to Holland was 300,000,000 guilders, consisting of 150,000,000 guilders of series A bonds and a like amount of series B bonds.

Tax Question Pressing One, Rawson View

BY FREDERICK H. RAWSON.
[Chairman First National and First Union Trust and Savings Banks.]

The conditions described in our "Survey of the Year 1930" as existing at that time are still prevalent, and this is particularly true of the commodity price level which has now reached a point where it is in some cases even below the level of 1913 and 1914. Furthermore, the values of stocks and bonds have also continued to decline, reflecting largely the earnings of nearly all business enterprise and the distressed situation of some.

FREDERICK H. RAWSON.

In my judgment the situation has not been helped by the various attempts made to escape the inevitable liquidation which should have been allowed to continue its natural course.

Need Higher Buying Power.

We all realize that we cannot expect a well balanced prosperity until the purchasing power of the farming classes has been equalized, either by a rise in the prices of the products which they sell or a decrease in the prices of the manufactured articles required. But gradually wages have been reduced and in consequence prices of manufactured articles have fallen and have been brought nearer the reach of the agricultural classes of the community.

For a time it was thought that high wages would increase purchasing power and thus help in bringing back more normal conditions. But it has gradually been realized that nominal high wages under existing circumstances merely added to the restrictions imposed upon the output of manufacturers and others, and that there would in fact be greater purchasing power maintained in the community as a whole by permitting wages to fall somewhat in the wake of commodity prices. The wage reductions have not been drastic and real wages of labor measured in purchasing power have not been reduced.

Taxes Higher Abroad.

We are still in this country comparatively free of overwhelming tax burdens such as exist in most European countries and which have been largely responsible for their present plight. It would seem wise to take steps looking toward the reform of our whole tax system in order that there might be some correlation between national and local taxes. There are already manifestations that taxpayers have reached the limit of their patience, for here and there we hear of taxpayers' strikes and of the inability of people in some parts of the country to pay all the taxes imposed upon them.

This tax question is perhaps the most important domestic problem facing our own people, and every effort should be made to reduce governmental expenditures to the lowest possible level.

We trust that the year 1932 may show the beginning of improvement in business so that gradually the wounds caused by the present depression will be healed.

WHO CAN TELL WHAT NEW YEAR HOLDS IN STORE?

Prophets Cautious, Hope for Best.

BY ALEXANDER D. NOYES.
[Financial Editor of the New York Times.]

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Specific and intelligent forecasts of the coming year are probably less easy on this occasion than in many years, perhaps in many decades.

That is not because early prediction during this depression period has gone so far astray. There has never been a period of the kind in which it did not do the same. But the multiplicity of influences in the present situation, the wholly abnormal character of some commanding events, the absolute cleavage of opinion as to what their real economic meaning was, the difficulty of separating actual economic influences from influences of a character purely psychological and the equal difficulty of determining what will definitely put an end to the one set of influences or the other—these considerations unite in creating unusual obstacles to safe prediction.

Four Different Attitudes.

In the financial community itself four distinct and different positions seem to be taken regarding the financial future. The first [and, perhaps, the most general] is one of complete bewilderment and of inability to predict at all. This attitude is obviously no help even to conservative prediction; it is useless to consider it.

The second attitude is based on belief in world-wide disintegration of the credit system, leading to general bankruptcy; it was summed up in one recent somewhat bold prediction that "nothing can prevent a complete world breakdown within two months," but has not in most instances gone quite so far as that.

The third forecast is for a period of financial hesitation, possibly much prolonged; waiting on events, but likely, if the remedial measures now in contemplation are applied and are reasonably successful, to be followed after a reasonable interval by restoration of home and foreign confidence. Such a change would be reflected and perhaps anticipated on the markets, whose own reversal of action would of itself affect the state of financial confidence. This view of the future does not contemplate prompt return to what the markets are accustomed to call prosperity.

View of Rockefeller.

Still another attitude is taken—undoubtedly by a smaller part of the community—which professes to look for return to normal conditions much more rapidly than any one seems at present to expect. Most people in their present mood would brush such judgments impatiently aside but for the rather interesting new year forecast which the elder Rockefeller permitted to be ascribed to him, that "everything possible is being done to promote prosperity and I think it is about to arrive."

In favor of the forecasts of increasing and ruinous credit complications is the existence of an immense and world wide mass of credit obligations incurred before the fall of 30 per cent in commodity prices and of 50 or 60 per cent in prices on the stock exchange. The resultant alarming shrinkage of company earnings and of government revenues, it is reasoned, must have rendered it impossible for the obligations to be met and general default must be the consequence.

The argument for return of confidence, based on remedial measures, has its main support in belief that international negotiation can relieve the burden now imposed on the hard pressed debtor countries and that revenue from the higher railway rates may be so applied as to protect the hard pressed railways.

Reason for Paralysis.

In regard to both it is argued that trade and industry have been paralyzed primarily by inability of consumers to give orders because of individual losses and by their unwillingness to do so because of perpetually falling prices. But the losses must eventually be written off or balanced by drastic present economies and prices have as a whole ceased during five or six months to continue their previous decline.

If prices have fallen below producing cost because consumption has fallen below the minimum actual needs of the community, then, it is contended, economic history teaches that cessation of the decline in prices will bring into the producing markets new and heavy requisitions.

LACKAWANNA RY. ENDS FIFTY YEAR DIVIDEND RECORD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 31.—A record of continuous dividend payments extending for more than fifty years was terminated today when the board of directors of Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad decided to defer action on 1932 dividends until the June meeting.

Lackawanna declared a dividend of 50 cents three months ago, prior to which two quarterly dividends of $1 each were declared. Previous to last March the company paid $1.50 quarterly.

Income of the New York Central will be reduced as a result of today's action. Through its subsidiary, the Securities corporation, Central owns 131,325 shares of Lackawanna.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 31.—They of the speculative fraternity were so thankful to see the last of the old year today that they threw caution to the winds and bought stocks. Most of the purchases were of the chicken-feed variety, it is true, but those who came through with any change at all seemed willing to risk it on almost anything that was offered.

Hence, the spectacle of the worst-licked crew in financial history keeping the faith with a traditional upturn to end the year, come what may. The gains ranged from a fraction to about 3 points on the average. Belated tax-selling kept the rally within bounds and served to prevent the plus marks from becoming unanimous, but there was enough buying by shorts anxious to finish with a clear slate and by bargain hunters who feared another week might be too late to get in on the "extreme" lows to absorb offerings rather handily. Prices reached their best peak shortly after noon but the closing figures in the vast majority of cases were around the best.

Large Tax Sales.

About the only distinguishing feature of the generally drab and listless session was the large volume of cash sales. To be counted in on 1931 income tax returns stocks sold for tax loss purposes had to be made on the basis of coin in hand today inasmuch as delivery would not be made on shares made in the regular way until next Monday. It was estimated that approximately one-fifth of the turnover of the first four hours of trading was made for cash. In the early dealings the cash sales were even heavier than that, running as high as one-fourth of the total.

Several large blocks were turned over for cash at intervals. One bundle of General Motors sold on such a basis was for 10,000 shares. Other issues to figure in large sized "cash" transactions were United corporation, Radio corporation, North American, United States Steel, Kennecott, Socony Vacuum and Industrial Alcohol.

Another thing to attract some attention was the sharp gains made by some of the recently thin marketed stocks of utility corporations. American & Foreign Power 7 per cent second preferred A, American Water Works, Public Service 8 per cent, Bethlehem Steel preferred, Standard Gas 4 per cent and 6 per cent, and Hershey preferred ran up anywhere from 2 to 8 points.

Hopeful for Rails.

Hopes of better times ahead for the railroads of the country brought some buying into the carrier shares, but the leaders slid off again before the finish leaving the group about where it had begun the day.

Public Utilities finished 1 to 2 points higher as a whole. Peoples Gas distinguished itself by going ahead 3 points. The oils did little. Motors had a struggle to keep up appearances.

The sentiment which traders brought to the grave of the dying year was considerably confused. Many observers were inclined to feel that the advance of the last day or two had disclosed inherent weakness in the list and feared that the start of the new year would not be so auspicious. Others were predicting a run of short covering next week by traders who did not wish to increase their profits this year with the income tax man just around the corner—and had delayed covering until January.

Turnover was around 1,500,000 shares.

WORK FOR IDLE, PUBLIC DEBTS MAIN PROBLEMS

Solution to Bring Back Good Times.

BY O. A. MATHER.
[Financial Editor.]

There will be no regrets that 1931 has passed into history. In retrospect its events afford small comfort and its influences, accentuated by the heritage of immediately preceding years, will carry over painfully. The year will be recorded in American economic history, as well as world history, as a continuation of the vast deflation process that has been the aftermath of a world-wide inflationary movement that reached its zenith and collapsed in 1929.

A recital of the drab facts of trade, industry, and finance in 1931 would be neither cheering nor particularly instructive. It is sufficient to say that it was one of the most troubled years in our history—it may be left to the statisticians to argue whether 1931 marked the most severe depression or whether it was less drastic than such periods as 1873 and 1893. However, even the most painful economic experience may afford some lessons and guides for the future. If we soberly appraise the current problems and bend our efforts to solve them, undoubtedly we shall speed the return of that recovery that inevitably follows periods of depression.

Must Solve Own Problems.

There are many problems, both domestic and international, that present themselves. Perhaps there have not been such acute world-wide economic maladjustments since the end of the Napoleonic wars a century ago. However, it is likely that we shall do best for both ourselves and the rest of the world if we solve our own immediate problems. We are the most nearly self-sufficient nation and so should be the most capable of effecting a return to prosperity.

What are the chief problems that confront the American people as 1932 dawns? Most economists view them as follows:

1. The most acute unemployment situation in our history and the necessity for putting several millions of people back to work.

2. The vast burden of public debt and cost of government, which must be reduced to a level within the capacity of the people to pay.

Number of Jobless.

Estimates of the number of enforced idle workers now range from 6,000,000 to 8,000,000. With the constant improvements in machine production and industrial methods, it is unlikely that our industries in the near future will require the same number of workers that they employed in 1928 and 1929. There is no new industry in sight that will absorb the surplus working population.

Within the last two years, particularly in 1931, there has been a growing movement to spread available employment among as many workers as possible, shortening the work day and week. There also has been a growing movement to institute such a program permanently. Perhaps this may be the solution of the unemployment problem. It may be found that modern production methods are capable of satisfying the reasonable needs of the American people on shortened working schedules. Perhaps we are going through another transition period, say, from an 8 hour day and 5½ day week to a 6 hour day and 5 day week, just as our fathers or grandfathers changed from a 10 hour day and 6 day week.

It is axiomatic, both economically and politically, that no considerable portion of the population that wants to work can be left in want. It is equally an impossibility that any sizeable part of the population can be supported indefinitely by those who have work, whether by private or public contributions. It does not follow that shortened working hours would lower the standard of living; indeed, that might contribute to eliminating overproduction, the ills of which we have been experiencing. It is the problem of our industrial leaders to adjust employment and production to meet the reasonable needs of our people.

Problem of Debts.

The other great problem, public debt and cost of government, must be solved by the whole American people. It cannot be other than a rather painful process. The individual who incurred debts during the years of high prosperity has discovered how difficult has been repayment but to his credit it may be said that he has economized and reduced or paid his obligations. But Americans must realize that they have been equally extravagant collectively. Their collective debt is estimated around 35 billion dollars, divided fairly equally between federal debt and local debt. It is from the service on this public debt, coupled with excessive cost of government, that the tax bill of the American people has mounted to around 13 billion dollars a year, or between 15 and 20 per cent of their total income in normal years.

It is true that about one-third of our total public debt is represented by loans made by our government to our allies during the war. But whether or to what extent these loans will be repaid only the future can show. It also is true that the American people have vast private investments in other countries. But the productivity or repayment of these loans also remain to be proved.

Top yesterday, $6.35; average, $5.75.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 1,500; hogs, 26,000; sheep, 10,000.

The closing day of 1931 saw markets for all species of live stock on the upgrade. Some classes sold at the highest prices of the month, with demand urgent in all branches of the trade. However, quotations were considerably under the closing day of 1930. Top cattle sold at $11.50 yesterday, this price comparing with $13.00 on the last day of 1930. Top hogs at $4.65 compared with $8.35 a year ago, while top lambs at $6.35 compared with $8.10 on Dec. 31, 1930.

Light weight hogs were scarce and in brisk demand at 10@20c advance, while medium and weighty stock sagged a little after sharing in the gain at the opening. The top for the day at $4.65 which equals the highest in December, showed 15c gain, while the general average moved up 5c at $4.35. As expected, the range of prices continues to widen, and the trade anticipates a further spreading of prices, with stock weighing 160@200 lbs, bringing substantial premiums during coming weeks when eastern demand is usually broadest of the year. Eastern demand took almost half of the available fresh receipts after directs had been deducted yesterday. Most of the 6,000 left at the close were medium and weighty butchers held off the market.

Futures Bid Up 25@50c.

Buyers advanced their bids 25@50c for January and February contracts on the futures market yesterday without attracting an offer to sell in either month. March and May hogs were bid $5.00 and some March heavy grades were offered at $5.50.

Considering the quality of yesterday's small cattle supply, the market was fully 25c above the general level of Wednesday and some buyers and sellers cited gains of as much as 50c in some of the classes that sold relatively low the last few days. Prime 1,080 lb. long yearlings filled an eastern order at $11.50, the top price, which stands within 25c of last week's peak.

Few other cattle yesterday were good enough to sell above $9.00 and the bulk of the receipts brought $5.25@8.75. Competition was strong and only scattered lots of plain kinds remained at noon. The "cleanup" was the best in many weeks. All classes are closing steady to higher for the week, cheaper grades of stock showing the biggest improvement. Cows and heifers have gained mostly 25c during the week. Bulls show advances of 25@40c and calves are up 50@75c since a week ago.

Lambs Rise 25c.

The lamb market pushed forward against increasing supplies yesterday and at the finish offerings were moving freely in all parts of the sheep house at the 25c advance. The peak price at $6.35 paid by all interests was only 5c under the month's top and shows a gain of exactly $1 compared with 12 days ago, the low spot of the winter. Most of the good to choice slaughter lambs sold to packers at $6.00@6.25. Receipts at 17,000 were exceptionally large and compared with 8,171 a week ago and with 7,454 a year ago.

OIL INDUSTRY SEEN LEADING TRADE RECOVERY

Belief that improvement in the oil industry will precede that of general business revival was expressed by Edward G. Seubert, president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

"The demand for products has been relatively well sustained," he said. "Difficulties caused by oversupply have continued, but progress has been made in meeting them.

"Producers and refiners have been showing a real disposition to hold their output within reason. Rationalization of production and refining will make other reforms in the industry's affairs possible."

ALBINO FAWN IN U. S. PARK.

WHEAT MARKET ENDS YEAR IN QUIET MANNER

Close Shows Loss Around 1 Cent a Bushel.

December wheat went out without any fireworks yesterday, an advance of ¾c early to 55c being followed by a break to 52⅜c when scattered longs started to sell and found support lacking. The finish was at 53⅛@53¾c, showing a net loss of 1c for the day.

The action of the December had some effect on the deferred deliveries, but at no time were the latter below Wednesday's close and showed net gains of ⅛@⅝c, with May at 56⅞@57c and July 56⅛@56⅝c.

Rumors of political uprisings in Russia and the strength in the stock market were the main bullish influences in the distant deliveries. Selling against offers checked the upturn. There was much comment heard during the day regarding the prospects of a better foreign demand for North American wheat after the turn of the year and numerous bids for Manitobas were said to be in the market somerhat below sellers' views. The days business was estimated at 200,000@300,000 bu in all positions.

Winnipeg Wheat Firmer.

Winnipeg wheat market showed considerable strength, especially in view of the firmer exchange rate. The latter was quoted at 14¾@17 per cent discount during the day, equal to around 1⅜c per bu, but at the last the rate was around the greatest discount for the day. Futures gained ⅜@⅝c and closed with May at 63⅛c in Canadian currency. Liverpool was ⅛c higher to ⅛c per bu lower, while Buenos Aires was ⅛c higher, January in the latter market closing at 42⅞c.

There has apparently been a heavy domestic disappearance of wheat in Argentina of late. Broomhalls agent estimated the surplus from the new crop at 138,000,000 bu, an increase of 10,000,000 bu over his previous figures, and made the carryover 16,000,000 bu. For the 1931 season the exports were 136,000,000 bu, and with the carryover made a total available of 152,000,000 bu. As the crop was 239,000,000 bu, this indicated a domestic use of 87,000,000 bu without allowance for any carryover from the 1929 crop.

Black sea exports of wheat for the week were only 1,000,000 bu, against 1,880,000 bu. Russian clearances falling off sharply.

No Pressure on Corn.

There was no pressure on the corn market. Commission houses absorbed the surplus in the pit early, and later local buying and short covering ran prices up around 1c over Wednesday's finish. December finished ⅛c higher at 36⅛@36⅝c, while the distant months were up ⅜@½c, May being 41⅝c and July 43c.

Longs in December oats started to liquidate after a fractional advance in the early trading and the finish was ⅝c lower at 24⅜c. Rye was influenced largely by the action of wheat, and while advancing around 1c early the finish was on a reaction with net gains of ⅛@⅝c.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Bleachable cottonseed oil, closed steady at unchanged to 1 point lower. Sales were only 450 barrels. The steady tone was due to the better tone of lard, grains, cotton, and stocks. Crude oil was steady at 3⅜c bid in the southeast and the valley and nominal in Texas. Bleachable spot closed 4.35c; March, 4.48c; May, 4.59c; July, 4.70c. There were no sales in the prime summer yellow contract with closing prices as follows: Spot, 4.00c; March, 4.20c; May, 4.40c; July, 4.60c.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP)—SILK, RAW—Futures closed barely steady; sales, 2,660 bales. March, $1.79; May, $1.79; July, $1.79; open market quotations [sixty day basis], Shanghai steam extra B, $2.60; Canton double extra A, 14-16s, $1.80; Japanese crack double extra, $1.97.

Ann Arbor Railroad Bond Interest Payment Passed

New York, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Interest due January 1 on the first mortgage bonds of the Ann Arbor Railroad company maturing in 1995 will not be paid, it was announced today by the receivers. The statement attributed the default "to the present cash position" of the road, but said it was hoped provision for the payment would be made well within the six months period of grace permitted by the mortgage. The bonds are 4s and are outstanding to the amount of $7,000,000. An Arbor has been in the hands of receivers since Dec. 4. It is controlled by the Wabash Railway company, also in receivership.

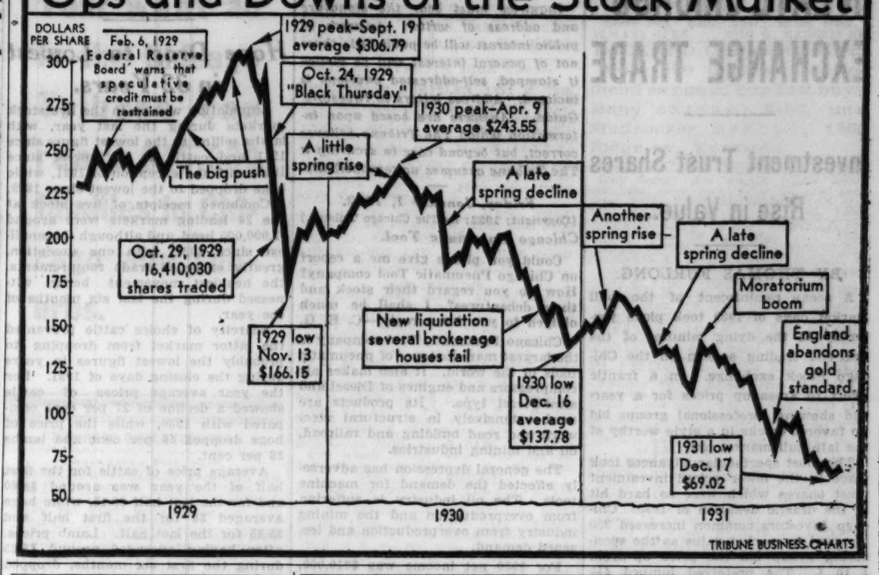
Fifty Representative Issues Reveal Ups and Downs of the Stock Market



BANKS' BONDS TO BE JUDGED ON INTRINSIC VALUE

Take Action as Relief Measure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—National bank examiners, in checking the condition of banking institutions, have been authorized to judge the value of bonds at their intrinsic value rather than the figure they would bring if thrown on the stock market for sale.

In announcing this relief move, J. W. Pole, controller of the currency, expressed the opinion it will strengthen many banks which otherwise would be open to attack. The bank examiners will be the judges of the intrinsic value of bonds, although the price paid for the securities and the current conditions of the institutions back of the bonds will be major factors in determining values.

Would Be Insolvent.

At the present time banks have large quantities of bonds in their investment vaults which are figured in by the examiners in determining the financial condition of these institutions. In some cases, treasury officials said, banks would be technically insolvent if forced to include all their bonds at the prices these securities are quoted in the open market. Officials hold, however, that the open market under present conditions does not reflect the true value of many high grade bonds and that to include them in the assets of banks at their current sales value would be doing an injustice to the banks.

The purpose of the move, Controller Pole said, is to aid sound banks which might conceivably be termed technically insolvent due to the low prices now being paid for bonds. He added that treasury officials were of the opinion this step will not only prove beneficial to the banks but will aid industry generally.

Sell Below Real Value.

"We are interested in the solvency of banks," said Controller Pole. "Today there are many fine bonds on the market which are selling at prices far below their actual intrinsic value. We see no reason for penalizing a bank which has purchased these bonds at a fair price by forcing it to include them in its assets at a figure far below their worth. We wish to protect banks which have purchased good bonds from the effects of the low quotations on the stock market. While every case will have to stand on its own merits, it is our plan to regard intrinsic value as the real basis for valuing the bonds held by banks."

High treasury officials, in commenting on the new move, said that the quoted prices for many high quality bonds were absurd. It was said that there had been days when there was no market for any kind of bonds, even government bonds.

Grain Futures Sales in 1931 Total 11,480,178,000 Bushels

Speculative trading in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade in 1931 were the smallest since the grain futures administration started to compile them in 1921. The aggregate of all grains for the year of 11,480,178,000 bushels was 6,666,000,000 bushels, or 26.9 per cent less than in 1930 and 15,415,000,000 bushels below the record business of 1925. With the exception of corn, trading in all grains was the smallest in over ten years, and corn the lightest during that period except in 1926. Details follow, the last three ciphers being omitted:

BID UP STOCKS IN LATE CHICAGO EXCHANGE TRADE

Investment Trust Shares Rise in Value.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A scene reminiscent of the bull market days of 1929 took place yesterday in the dying minutes of the year-end trading session on the Chicago Stock exchange. In a frantic effort to dress up prices for a year-end showing, professional groups bid up favored stocks in a style worthy of the late bull market era.

The most spectacular advances took place in the lower priced investment trust shares which were so hard hit in the drastic deflation of 1930. Chicago Investors common increased 300 per cent in market value as the sponsoring group bid the price up from 1 to 4. The preferred jumped 4½ points to 20. Frenzied trading in the final minutes sent Continental Chicago common from 1⅞ to 4 as transactions in the issue approached 11,000 shares.

Insull Issues Strong.

Improvement was made in other stocks all along the line. Active stocks scored gains ranging from a fraction to 3 points while some of the less active issues moved up 5 points or more. The Insull issues were strong with Commonwealth Edison leading the way with a gain of 2½ points. North American Light spurted 5½ points on light trade and Central Illinois Public Service preferred sold up 5¾. Other conspicuous gainers were Jefferson Electric with 3 points and Middle West preferred with 3¾ points.

As the year closed announcement was made that an exchange membership was sold at $5,100, which is a record low price since the declaration of the 100 per cent seat dividend in September, 1929. The membership of the exchange now stands at 406, which is a gain of 16 for the year and a gain of 171 since September, 1929. During 1931 a total of 64 memberships were transferred. The high price for memberships in 1931 was $24,000, as compared with a high of $45,000 in 1930. The highest price seats have sold since the seat dividend was $50,000, in the fall of 1929.

Sales 34,404,200 Shares.

At the close of 1931 exchange tickers were in operation in 26 cities throughout the country. Offices of members number 740 in 235 cities.

Total transactions on the exchange last year amounted to 34,404,200 shares, which was the fourth largest year in the exchange's history. The figure fell short of the 1928 turnover of 38,941,589 shares, the third largest year. In 1930 transactions totaled 69,741,500 shares.

Bonds traded in during 1931 represented issues of a par value of $12,480,500, which contrasts with $27,462,000 in the preceding year.

Chicago Pneumatic Tool.

Could you please give me a report on Chicago Pneumatic Tool company? How do you regard their stock and their debentures? I shall be much obliged to you for a reply.—C. E. G.

Chicago Pneumatic Tool company is the largest manufacturer of pneumatic tools in the world. It also makes air compressors and engines of Diesel and semi-Diesel type. Its products are used extensively in structural steel work and road building and railroad, oil and mining industries.

The general depression has adversely affected the demand for machine tools. The oil industry is suffering from overproduction and the mining industry from overproduction and lessened demand.

For 1930 net income was $210,000, which failed to cover preferred dividend reqirements, against $1,582,000, or $4.63 per common share for 1929. For 1928 net was $1,272,000, against $1,210,000 for 1927.

Fixed charges were earned 1.73 times in 1930, against 8.14 times in 1929.

Profits were reported in each of the first two quarters of 1931. Loss of $170,600 in the September quarter resulted in a net loss of $160,400 for the first nine months of 1931, against net income of $448,500, which failed to cover preferred dividend requirements, for the corresponding 1930 period.

On December 31, 1930, current assets were $9,135,000, and current liabilities were $1,801,000, a ratio of 5.1 to 1. Cash was $445,600 and notes payable were $1,071,000. Working capital was $7,334,000, against $7,883,000 the year before. Bonded debt was $2,700,000 and other long term indebtedness totaled $239,000

There were outstanding 187,600 shares of $3.50 cumulative convertible preference stock and 199,469 shares of no par common. The preferred is convertible at any time into common on a share for share basis.

No dividends have been paid on the preference stock since Jan. 1, 1931.

The 5½ per cent debentures, due 1942, are somewhat speculative. Both the preferred and common are quite speculative.

Continental Gas and Electric.

Kindly give me your opinion of Continental Gas and Electric 5s, due 1958. Mrs. O. L. G.

Continental Gas and Electric corporation supplies utility services to about 550 communities in Nebraska, Texas, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Ohio and Oklahoma.

Fixed charges were earned 1.70 times in 1930, against 1.77 times in 1929. They were covered 1.72 times in 1928 and 1.63 times in 1927.

The 5 per cent debentures, series A, due 1958, are a business man's risk.

GOLDBLATT BROS. TO SHOW 10 PER CENT RISE IN 1931 SALES VOLUME

MAURICE GOLDBLATT.

Goldblatt Bros., Inc., will show an increase in their 1931 sales volume of more than 10 per cent over 1930, according to Maurice and Nathan Goldblatt, president and vice president, respectively. Earnings for the year will be considerably ahead of those for the previous year, they state. They said the quarterly stock dividend will be increased from 6 to 10 per cent.

Goldblatt Bros., starting 1931 with four retail department stores in Chicago, has increased this chain to six stores during the year by acquiring, in August, the Loren Miller company store, Broadway at Lawrence, and just before Christmas the Hammond, Ind., store of Kaufmann & Wolf. The latter transaction involved $11,000,000 in the transfer. The store building was completed in 1929 and occupies nearly a square block on Hohman street. It has four stories and a basement, totaling 225,000 square feet of floor space. This becomes the largest of the Goldblatt stores.

"We are prepared to carry on in the same general plan we have been following with regard to our 'underselling policy,' and we're looking for an even better year in 1932," Nathan Goldblatt stated. Maurice Goldblatt also is optimistic about the immediate future and prospects for better times.

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Uruguay will suspend amortization payments on its foreign debt, but will make the interest payments punctually, the government decided today. The suspension was made necessary by a prospective deficit of more than 3,000,000 pesos on June 30.

A Long-Expected

Answer

FINANCIAL leaders have predicted that sooner or later a new type of trust instrument would be created—more flexible than the old fixed trust, yet retaining its stabilizing features. That prediction has been fulfilled in "twin" trusts; NORTH AMERICAN TRUST SHARES, 1955 (Maximum Cumulation Type), and NORTH AMERICAN TRUST SHARES, 1956 (Maximum Distribution Type). ● Their portfolios are fixed to the extent that no substitution of stocks is permitted. Stocks may be eliminated from the portfolios, however, for any sound long-term investment reasons. A Research Department, headed by a noted economist, is continually engaged in studies of conditions affecting the investment standing of the 34 stocks underlying these trust shares. ● The investor receives the benefit of continuous expert supervision such as few investors can individually obtain. More than 1500 banks and security dealers recommend NORTH AMERICAN TRUST SHARES. Consult one of them today.

PRICES TUMBLE ON LIVE STOCK MARKET OF 1931

Hogs Drop to Lowest in 32 Years.

Liquidation was on in the live stock markets during the last year, with lambs selling at the lowest figure since 1911 and cattle at the lowest since 1915, with the exception of 1921, while hogs dropped to the lowest since 1899.

Combined receipts of live stock at the 20 leading markets were around 61,000,000 head, and although the smallest since 1921, with one exception, greatly exceeded trade requirements, the heaviest movement being witnessed during the last six months of the year.

Scarcity of choice cattle prevented the latter market from dropping to probably the lowest figures in years during the closing days of 1931. For the year average prices of cattle showed a decline of 27 per cent compared with 1930, while the price of hogs dropped 46 per cent and lambs 26 per cent.

Average price of cattle for the first half of the year was around $8.30 and for the last half $8.15, while hogs averaged $6 for the first half and $5.35 for the last half. Lamb prices, after having averaged around $8.25 during the first six months, dropped $3 during the last half.

Trade leaders were inclined to be optimistic as to the future trend of the hog market during the early part of 1932.

BUTTER AND EGG PRICES DWINDLE TO RECORD LOWS

Lowest prices on record were established for butter and eggs on the Chicago Mercantile exchange during the past year, the two commodities in common with other agricultural products suffering severe declines due to lack of buying power.

Abnormally favorable weather for the production of both butter and egg prevailed the greater part of the year, and while the consumptive demand was sufficient to absorb the heavier supplies during the early part of the year, the full effect of the business depression was reflected later in decreased purchases.

Both butter and eggs went into storage at somewhat lower prices than the previous season, but speculators were forced to take heavy losses. A sharp upturn was witnessed in butter during the fall, and the price advanced to a point where it was possible to import supplies from Canada and other countries despite an import duty of 14c per lb. A decline set in later that did not end until the closing days of the year.

Hog Future Prices Lowest in December

Trading in hogs for future delivery on the Chicago Live Stock exchange was on a declining scale of prices the greater part of the year, with lowest levels made in December. Since future trading in hogs was inaugurated on March 1, 1930, an aggregate contract of 117,840 hogs has been established, equal to 25,924,800 lbs. Sellers had the advantage throughout the year, owing to the declining prices. High and low prices on the futures market and the cash trade for months when trading was on, follow:

	TOP GRADES. Futures trade.		Cash trade.
